Uncle Sam's Credit.
What, No Beer?
This Old, Old Earth.
Your 250 Billion Units.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE BIG rich city of New York is thinking earnestly about money and where to get it. Bankers, forced to be severe, because they lend other people's money when they buy city bonds, tell New York, "UNTIL YOU REFORM YOU CAN'T HAVE ANY MORE MONEY."

New York has one single piece of property, Central Park, worth as much as everything she owes put together. Her bonds have back of them every bank building in New York, every other building, every dock, skyscraper, hotel. But her credit, for the moment, is feeble.

HOWEVER, New York's public officials are not all discouraged. Mr. Berry, the comptroller, who knows more about its finances than anybody else, yesterday told the writer:

"Buy New York bonds now; there is no better security; you will make money."

UNCLE SAM has no such trouble with his credit. His budget is out of gear, refusing to balance, he owes twenty thousand millions, but his credit is so good that it would frighten him, if anything could frighten him.

Recently, from two or three big banks in New York, he borrowed one hundred million dollars on a ninety-day loan, and what interest do you think he paid for that money? One-eighth of one per cent. That is enough to make the harassed governments of Europe go into a huddle, and never come out.

F. SCOTT McBRIDE, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, says:

"Wets who gleefully anticipate that they may shortly be able to put their feet on the brass rail and blow the foam off a mug of beer are likely to be disappointed."

Beer is not usually sold in mugs, but in large glasses, otherwise Mr. McBride's statement is probably sound. There are, as he points out, 36 states with prohibition laws that would prevent the sale of beer even if the national government should legalize it. Beer, if it returns, will come back slowly, no matter how the election goes.

It is true that beer is here, and whisky too, and gin, and plenty of all three, but of poisonous quality, and high price.

PROF. EINSTEIN says the earth is older than scientists have supposed. Instead of being only three billion years old, it is TEN BILLION YEARS OLD. Ten thousand million years seems very old, but there is nothing unreasonable about it, although there is a big gap between ten billion years and the six thousand years mentioned in the Bible.

Nature rejoices in big figures. "Outer spiral nebulae," in any one of which our earth, our sun and all the planets would be like a drop of water in the ocean, are moving away from us at the speed of twelve thousand five hundred miles per second. Try to realize that speed.

That is part of the expansion of the universe which began ten billion years ago. The earth was born about then.

YOU NEED not be overwhelmed by these cosmic figures, for you also are built on a cosmic scale of grandeur. For instance, you have in your blood vessels red blood cells to the number of 250 billions, which means two hundred and fifty thousand million little active agents, carrying oxygen from your lungs to every one of infinite billions of cells scattered through your body. Breathe deep, keep your windows open at night.

AT STOCKHOLM, the American Negro play, "Green Pastures," is produced, all-Swedish cast, with police protecting the actors from a crowd that protested against "religious lampoonery."

Any nation not familiar with America's peculiarly varied attitude toward religion might well call that play "religious lampoonery."

The Bible Comique, "The Comic Bible," published in Paris years ago, frankly irreligious, was no worse than "Green Pastures," showing the ruler of the universe as a colored man in a clergyman's costume, offering the angels and archangels a "fish fry" as a celestial treat and saying to the Angel Gabriel:

"Watch your step, Gabe."

ALL SORTS of opinions about the depression, "business improving," etc. Everybody is as cheerful as he can be. A pleasantly frank opinion comes from Theron McCampbell, of Holmdel, New Jersey, representing Monmouth County in the state legislature. In his opinion:

"The panic has about run its course. But the depression has just begun."

That is too pessimistic, but sensible men realize that the depression must necessarily last a good deal longer and try to adapt themselves to conditions as they are. The rainbow days of 1929 will not come back soon.

CITY SCHOOL BUDGET CUT $1,367,576

Slow Collections to Prevent Slash In Taxes

The 1933 public school budget calls for estimated expenditures of $13,936,290, a reduction of $1,367,576 compared with this year's outlay, but with little prospect of a tax cut.

N. R. Criss, chairman of the finance committee, in making known the budget, which will be presented to the Board of Public Education this afternoon, explained that slow collections probably will make impossible any cut in the school tax despite the slash in expenses.

PRESENT LEVY

The present school levy is 11¾ mills.

Criss said:

"At present I do not see how there can be any cut in the millage in view of the decrease in collections. I am certain, however, that the board will not stand for an increase next year."

He pointed out that school tax collections are running less than 80 per cent of the levy, whereas, budget estimates had placed the amount collectable at not less than 85 per cent.

DEFICIT AVOIDED

A deficit was avoided this year by the voluntary 10 per cent pay cut by the teachers. This reduction continues in effect in the 1933 budget. In addition 57 teacher jobs are eliminated, chiefly in the elementary grades.

The principal budget slashes follow: Salaries, $1,129,718; interest and sinking fund charges, $171,876; supplies, $48,519; new furniture, $17,462.

LONE MAN ENDS RIOT IN PRISON

KINGSTON, Ontario, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Quiet was restored today at Portsmouth Penitentiary, on the shore of Lake Ontario near here, where troops were called last night to quell a riot of the 906 prisoners in the institution. The riot, in the course of which the prisoners threatened to set fire to the prison buildings, was reported to have begun over a demand by the men for cigaret papers, more tobacco and longer recreation periods.

Two of the prisoners were injured. The soldiers fired several volleys. They finally withdrew after the prisoners threatened to burn down the buildings, including those in which they had barricaded themselves, if the troops remained.

Previously the prisoners had captured Acting Warden Gilbert Smith and held him for a brief period when he entered the building in which they were fortified to attempt to persuade them to quiet down.

The last of them were finally persuaded to abandon the attempt by another prison official, whose name was withheld.

SPAN FRAUD CHARGES PROBED

County Allots Fund For Inquiry Into Bridge Materials

The County Commissioners today authorized the expenditure of $3,000 for exploratory work at the Moss Side boulevard bridge which may be the basis of a criminal prosecution.

The Commissioners acted on complaints that $27,000 worth of material, for which the county paid, was not put into the bridge. Main & Co., in a supplementary report, charged that an additional $10,000 worth of material, also paid for, was never used in the span.

Some of the investigation will be by county road maintenance employes, and test boring in bridge columns will be advertised, it was said. R. H. Cunningham was the contractor on the project, which was completed under Public Works Director Norman F. Brown.

In a report, the County Law Department said:

"Matters referred to in the report are of great significance both from the standpoint of civil recovery and criminal prosecution of persons responsible."

MOTHER, CHILD FUME VICTIMS

Mrs. Marcella Cristello, 32, of 524 McDonald street, and her daughter, Mary, 4, were overcome by gas today in the basement of their home. They are in Pittsburgh Hospital, where the daughter's condition is reported as serious.

Mrs. Cristello said she was working in the basement when she fell ill. She picked up the child and went to her second floor apartment, where her two sons, Charles, 12, and Frank, 10, and her husband, John, found them.

At the hospital, the Mine Safety Appliance Company first aid crew was called to treat the child with an inhalator. Cristello told police he had trouble with a leaky gas heater in the cellar some time ago.

Downtown Thieves Take Elevator Ride

Even robbers like a "lift" now and then, according to a police report of the theft of a small amount of cash from the office of the Adams Sales Corporation, 104 Wood street, during the night. The thieves climbed an outside fire escape, jimmied a window and rode the elevator to the basement where they rifled the desks, a police investigation showed.

Blonde Mind Reader, 19, Held as Bigamist

"Zoe-dyac," a 19-year-old blonde mind reader in a downtown hotel tearoom, today is under arrest and held for Beaver County authorities on a bigamy charge. She admitted to city detectives, they said, she was married to two men but couldn't remember her last marriage ceremony.

The girl, who gave her name as Mrs. Rowena Nicotero, was arrested at her home, 106 West Stockton avenue, by Detectives Edward McEntee and Clarence Raeder, and is reported to have told them she had been married three times since she was 15

She married John Ellis, November 7, 1931, in Rock Island, Ill., and on October 6, last, took her third husband, Ross Nicotero, in Beaver, according to investigators.

Asked if she had divorced Ellis, she told the detectives, they said:

"No, we are just separated."

The girl, who uses the name "Zoe-dyac" in the tearoom mind reading act, told questioners her mind was "vague" about her marriage to Nicotero.

Her husband said he would take steps to have their marriage annulled. Asked if his wife had read his mind, he told the detectives:

"Oh, no. I'm too smart for that."

Romance of Ensign, Miss Dawes Wrecked

Gas Attendant New Fiance, Campus Gossip Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—James Martin, working his way through college as a gasoline filling station attendant, today had supplanted the Navy-ensign fiance of Virginia Dawes, 19, adopted daughter of former Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes, according to reports.

The Northwestern University campus was abuzz with the report that Miss Dawes had been seen wearing Martin's fraternity pin, the college custom of indicating engagement. Only last June General and Mrs. Dawes announced the engagement of their daughter to Ensign John Gardner Tennant, a graduate of this year's class at Annapolis.

Regarding today's reports Mrs. Dawes said:

"Publicly, she is engaged to no one.

"Virginia didn't understand what wearing the fraternity pin implied. Some of the girls told her and she took the pin off and gave it back."

Evidently the rivals for the girl's affections will meet next month. Mrs. Dawes mentioned that Ensign Tennant would visit the Dawes in November.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Led by Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, and Congressman David B. Partridge, of Maine, Republican candidates for state offices addressed city and county committeemen at a rally last night. Senator Davis acclaimed the protective tariff as the "real salvation" of the country.

Elephant's Stumble Perils Parade Rider

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Riding an elephant in a political rally parade here tonight, Raymond S. Springer, Republican nominee for Governor, had to seize the pachyderm's ears to keep from being tossed over its head when it stumbled and fell to its knees.

BLAST WRECKS DOUGLAS BOAT

The towboat R. F. Winton, leased by John Douglas, Jr., was burned to the water's edge in the Allegheny River, near Freeport, following a mysterious explosion at midnight.

A two-deck oil-burning stern wheeler, the boat was moored a short distance below the Freeport municipal water plant when it was literally ripped apart by the blast, attaches at the plant said.

Douglas said the boat was in charge of Capt. Walter Haffill and had a crew of five men, none of whom were aboard at the time of the blast.

During Douglas' recent dispute over wharf rights the R. F. Winton, moored at the foot of Stanwix street, was cut loose during the night and Vang Construction Company boats moved into the vacated wharf site.

The R. F. Winton was built early this year, especially for plying in the Allegheny River.

Douglas placed a value of $60,000 on the boat.

PRIEST RAPS HOOVER'S REGIME

Calls on All Jobless Followers to Back Roosevelt

Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church, today withdrew as presidential candidate of the Jobless Party and urged his followers to vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic candidate.

He bitterly excoriated President Hoover for alleged neglect of means to relieve suffering among unemployed in the last two years.

The ejection of the bonus army from Washington he termed "barbarous," and added:

"America must reject Herbert Hoover and all that he represents if she means to continue as a democracy."

NAME ON BALLOT

The name of Father Cox will remain on the ballot in Pennsylvania, the time for withdrawal of candidates having passed. Between now and election day, however, he is expected to issue additional admonitions to his followers to ignore his name and vote for Roosevelt.

Hoover, Father Cox said in his statement of withdrawal, stands for special privilege and has forgotten the 120,000,000 ordinary American citizens. He said:

"The opportunity to help was presented to Mr. Hoover a thousand times, but never did he lift a hand nor raise a voice to relieve the suffering American people."

"Mr. Roosevelt has pledged himself to the protection of the interests of the common man. He has been frank and courageous in advocating the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. He has pledged himself definitely to policies which will aid in the economic recovery and the recreation of work. He has indorsed the principle of large public construction by the federal government in times of depression."

BONITZ NAMED TO G. O. P. POST

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—United States Senator Felix Hebert, eastern Republican campaign director, announced today that Walter A. Bonitz, Pittsburgh manufacturer, has been appointed an assistant to aid the campaign at headquarters here in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

In 1930, Mr. Bonitz, brick manufacturer, contributed $96,000 to the Republican party's Pennsylvania campaign which brought the election of Senator James J. Davis. He was summoned before the Nye Senatorial Investigating Committee at Washington to explain his gift.

Poll Favors Roosevelt Despite Hoover Gains

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(Universal.)—Despite the gains President Hoover has been making, Gov. Roosevelt still is getting the best of the presidential race.

During the last week 58,690 postcard ballots have been received and tabulated, representing every state in the Union in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Roosevelt received 30,927 and Hoover 27,763. This was a Roosevelt majority on the week of 3,264.

Reduced to a percentage basis, Roosevelt drew 53 and Hoover 47 per cent of the week's replies. That shows the Hoover pickup for the nation as a whole has not been sufficient to put Roosevelt on the short end. Until that comes, the Roosevelt candidacy cannot be regarded as in serious jeopardy.

On the week's returns Hoover scored majorities in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Minnesota, South Dakota, Kansas, Montana and Colorado. He already was ahead in all these 16 states except Minnesota, South Dakota and Montana, so that in the end it was only in those three that he put Roosevelt on the defensive.

Roosevelt scored majorities during the week in 31 of the remaining 32 states, little Delaware be[illegible] ing the exception to divide votes of the week exactly [illegible] a year

If some of his advisers have their way he will also devote one of the final speeches of the campaign to prohibition. He has not discussed this subject in any of his speeches since he dealt with it at length last August at Sea

FORD MOVE TO WIN HOOVER VOTES ATTACKED BY FOES

PLANT 'ORDERS' BRANDED AS 'FEUDALISM'

G. O. P. 'Desperate,' Declares Farley; Not Disturbed

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, today issued a statement attacking Henry Ford because a "bulletin" had been posted in Ford plants urging employes to vote for the re-election of President Hoover.

The Ford bulletin also was characterized as "the most brazen instance of industrial feudalism in recent years" by the campaign committee of Norman Thomas, Socialist presidential nominee, and James H. Maurer, his running mate.

Chairman Farley declared:

"Under our form of government every American voter should have the privilege of exercising his own will in voting for candidates for public office, and I believe this time he will exercise that right."

G. O. P. 'FRANTIC'

Farley issued his statement upon reading in a New York newspaper a dispatch from Detroit stating that bulletin boards at Ford offices carried notices urging employes to vote for Hoover. He said:

"I am not at all surprised at this. Because for a long time we anticipated that this would be the last frantic move of the Republican leaders to re-elect President Hoover. We are not at all disturbed.

"The explanation of Mr. Ford's enthusiasm for Mr. Hoover can probably be found in the fact that Mr. Ford has built automobile manufacturing plants in Canada, in Europe and in the Orient, where he is now employing cheap foreign labor and utilizes foreign materials. Thus, he escapes the penalties placed on American manufacturers by the Smoot-Hawley tariff."

Ford's Vote 'Coercion' Scored; Pay Cuts Cited

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The statement issued yesterday by the Ford Motor Company to its employes throughout the country advocating the re-election of President Hoover brought outspoken criticism today from several Michigan Democratic leaders.

The statement said that President Hoover's "efforts to start the country back to work are beginning to show results," and added that "we are convinced that any break in his program would hurt industry and employment."

William A. Comstock, Democratic candidate for Governor, speaking at Alpena last night, said "Henry Ford has not always co-operated so well with the Republican party." He referred to a recent address at Detroit by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills. He said:

"Mr. Mills told his audience the same thing the Republicans have been telling you for years, that prosperity was only 60 days away. And on that very same day Ford put through his third wage cut."

Hoover to Join Ford In 'Saving' Michigan

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—On the heels of Henry Ford's instructions to his army of employes throughout the country to vote the Republican ticket, President Hoover will journey to Detroit this week-end and join hands with the motor magnate in an effort to keep restless Michigan bound to its traditional Republican moorings.

The President will address a big mass meeting in Detroit Saturday night. Ford will speak for Hoover's re-election over a national radio network tomorrow night from Dearborn.

Admittedly the state is a danger spot for the Republicans. No industrial city has been harder hit than Detroit in the last three years of depression.

Senator James Couzens, former partner of Ford and independent critic of many administration policies, has been maintaining a stony silence so far as the Hoover-Curtis ticket is concerned and it has been frankly expected by Democratic leaders that Couzens would announce for Roosevelt before the campaign ends.

ROOSEVELT ON BONUS HERE

Girt, N. J., when he reiterated that he stood four square on the plank in the national platform calling for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Democratic presidential nominee is in a fighting mood and his advisers predict that he will deal with President Hoover without gloves from now until the campaign ends.

ENDING CAMPAIGN

With the exception of one or two speeches in New England, and possibly one in New Jersey, the present tour will mark the close of Roosevelt's campaign outside his own state. He expects to wind up the campaign in New York City on the Saturday night before election, speaking from the same platform with Al Smith.

Before he leaves New York state tonight he will have made two urgent appeals for the election of Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic gubernatorial nominee—one in Rochester during the afternoon, and the other at Buffalo in the evening.

During the next eight days the Governor will travel approximately 3,000 miles through 17 states, and will deliver three major speeches and a dozen informal ones.

Only the three "big" speeches will be broadcast over nationwide radio hookups. They will be made in Pittsburgh tomorrow night, St. Louis, Friday night, and Baltimore next Tuesday night. Gov. Roosevelt explained:

"We'd like to do it with all the others, but we're too poor this year."

OTHER SPEECHES

Other cities in which the Governor will speak include Wheeling, W. Va., Springfield, Ill., Indianapolis, Louisville, Knoxville and Atlanta.

It was raining hard when Gov. Roosevelt climbed aboard his special train in the Union Station yards today, but a good sized crowd of Albany admirers with a band were on hand to give him a rousing send-off. One man called out:

"This is Democratic weather!"

The Governor, smiling, replied:

"It's Democratic weather all over the country."

Mrs. Roosevelt is expected to join the Governor tomorrow night in Pittsburgh.

COUNCIL BACKS INTEREST CUT

Reduction of interest rates on city deposits in five banks to 2 per cent today was approved by the City Council Finance Committee with action expected to be taken by Council Monday.

The reduction approval followed requests made by the banks which termed the present rates 'exorbitant." Rates now vary from 3.20 to 3.85 per cent. The reduction would be only for the remained rof the year if approved by Council.

Banks asking the reduction to 2 per cent were Pennsylvania Trust Company, whose present rate to the city is 3.85 per cent; Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company and Dollar Savings and Trust Company, whose rates are 3.29 per cent; First National Bank, Federal street branch, whose rate is 3.28 per cent, and Colonial Trust Company, whose rate is 3.20 per cent.

In a communication addressed to Council the bankers said the rates were so high they caused a direct loss to the banks.

BENEDUM TAX FIGHT OPENS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Hearings before the United States Board of Tax Appeals will open here today on the tax assessment of approximately $80,000,000 which the Treasury Department is seeking to collect from two Pittsburgh oil magnates—M. L. Benedum and F. B. Parriott—for alleged delinquent taxes on their 1919 income.

John W. Davis, former Democratic presidential nominee and attorney for the two Pittsburgh men, has described the tax case as "the largest in the history of the world."

Regardless of which side wins the decision in the present hearings, the case is certain to go to the United States Supreme Court for final adjudication.

The case revolves around the dissolution of the Texas-Penn Oil Company and reorganization of the Transcontinental Oil Company shortly after the World War. Attorneys for the oil men contend that the reorganization left them free of the surtax provision of the Internal Revenue Act.

Tool Distributor Dies in Tech Shop

As students looked on in the machinists' department in Carnegie Institute of Technology, Charles McTaggart, 70, of 711 Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg, in charge of tool distribution, collapsed at his desk last night, dying a short time later.

The coroner's office reported death was due to a heart attack. McTaggart had been in charge of the tools for eight years.

PHILADELPHIA RADIO STATION GAGS NORRIS

Nebraskan Pleads for Keystone State to Back Roosevelt

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Fifty-nine radio stations on a nation-wide hookup listened in last night to the address here of United States Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, but the fans of the sixtieth station—a local one—failed to get a single word of the Senator's speech.

In his address, Senator Norris made a plea for Pennsylvanians to vote for the man rather than the party as the veteran Nebraska insurgent launched his active campaign for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency.

COMPLAINTS POUR IN

Complaints galore poured in today on the local radio station. Charges, too, flew thick and fast that it was all "a Republican plot" to prevent Philadelphians from hearing Norris' appeal to vote for the man and not the party.

S. Davis Wilson, leader of the independent Republican campaign for Gov. Roosevelt, declared that he would demand a federal probe of the incident by the Radio Commission.

Directors of the local station of the Columbia Broadcasting System engaged in transmitting the speech declared "mechanical trouble" caused the local station to go "dead."

Norris prefaced his plea with the assertion that the Democratic candidate would receive an overwhelming plurality in the Keystone state if Pennsylvanians disregarded "party regularity" and voted their "conscientious convictions."

ASSAILS BOSSISM

He added:

"The only hope of carrying Pennsylvania for President Hoover, the only hope for the re-election of President Hoover, is the controlling influence of party spirit."

He assailed "party bossism" in Pennsylvania and referred to four men who, he said, had been chiefly responsible for Pennsylvanians voting their "party prejudices" rather than their "convictions."

These men, he said, were Senators Matt Quay, Boies Penrose and William S. Vare, and former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. Referring to the latter, Norris remarked:

"He was the only Secretary of the Treasury under whom three Presidents served."

G. O. P. Negotiates For Coolidge Talks

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—Calvin Coolidge may speak in Chicago during the next two weeks, and he may make a last minute radio speech advocating retention of President Hoover in office, if plans of the National Republican organization are carried out.

According to George Akerson, director of publicity, Coolidge has been asked to make those two speeches, but as yet no answer has come from Northampton, Mass.

POLICE GUARD FOR ROOSEVELT

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate, will have twice as large a police escort on his visit here tomorrow as was assigned to President Hoover on his arrival at Braddock last Saturday.

One hundred Pittsburgh patrolmen will meet Gov. Roosevelt when he arrives at the P. & L. E. station at 9 a. m. They will be divided into units later, stationed at the Governor's headquarters in the Pittsburgher Hotel, and will escort him to Forbes Field tomorrow night where he will make his address.

The police bodyguard will be in charge of B. R. Marshall, assistant superintendent of police, and Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey. A detail of 15 city detectives also has been assigned to the Governor.

FORBES FIELD MEETING

The Forbes Field meeting is to be opened by James L. O'Toole, Jr., who will introduce Lawrence. The county chairman in turn will turn the meeting over to Benedum, a Hoover supporter in 1928, and he will introduce the Democratic candidate.

The seating capacity of the ball park is expected to be exceeded, and arrangements have been made to care for the overflow of the foul lines along first and third base. The speaker's stand is to be situated in the center of the diamond, and will be covered for protection in case of rain.

Admission will be on the basis of first come, first seated, only a few sections having been set aside for delegations coming to Pittsburgh from other Pennsylvania counties, Ohio and West Virginia.

AUTO CARAVANS

Lawrence said today a number of counties were making up automobile caravans for the trip to Pittsburgh.

Returning from Wheeling early in the evening, Gov. Roosevelt will have dinner at the Hotel Pittsburgher, which will be his headquarters here.

The route to Wheeling from Pittsburgh will be over Carson street to Main street, to Crafton boulevard, to Oakwood Park Bridge, Noblestown road, Main street, Carnegie, to Third street, Carnegie, to Glendale, to Heidelberg, to Bridgeville, to Canonsburg, to Washington, to Claysville, to West Alexandria and on to Wheeling.

The party will return to Pittsburgh, passing through Wellsburg, Steubenville, Imperial, Carnot, Coraopolis, Neville Island, McKees Rocks, to Pittsburgh.

Curtis Heading For Home State

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Vice President Curtis was headed for his native state of Kansas today, with an address at Cheyenne, Wyo., this afternoon and another at Denver tonight, his final campaign speeches in, and west of, the Rockies.

Two addresses are scheduled in Kansas for Wednesday, before he reaches his home in Topeka to rest a day. He closed a four-day campaign in Utah last night.

CAPONE OFFER LINKING ROBINS DENIED BY U. S.

Justice Officials Ready To Oppose New Move For Freedom

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Al Capone will renew at Atlanta today his efforts to regain his freedom.

Assistant Attorney General G. Aaron Youngquist left for Atlanta yesterday to ask a federal court to quash a habeas corpus motion. William J. Leahy, Washington attorney retained by the one-time overlord of gangland, also departed to plead that Capone was convicted illegally and is entitled to liberty. He will plead that the statute of limitations covered the three income tax cases on which the gangster was convicted in Chicago.

DENY ROBINS LINK

Administration officials gave no credence to reports of another and more daring move attributed to Capone lieutenants to obtain his release.

The report was to the effect that the Department of Justice had been approached with an assertion that the Capone mob knows the whereabouts of Raymond Robins, nationally known reformer, who disappeared just before coming to Washington to have lunch with President Hoover at the White House. It was said they offered to return Robins alive and unharmed in turn for clemency for Capone.

Ugo J. A. Carusi, executive assistant to Attorney General Mitchell, authorized an unequivocal denial that any such representations ever had been made to the Department of Justice.

The same statement was made on behalf of the White House.

CAPONE NOT NAMED

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(Universal.)—Mrs. H. Edward Dreier, of Northport, Long Island, sister-in-law of Mrs. Raymond Robins, was notified last night of reports that the missing Col. Raymond Robins, dry chief who disappeared September 3 on his way to a conference with his friend President Hoover, was being held by agents of Al Capone.

Mrs. Dreier, speaking for Mrs. Robins in the latter's absence, said:

"I have never heard the name of Al Capone mentioned in connection with the disappearance of Col. Robins.

"And I'm really not qualified to say whether there is any basis of truth in the report."

HOOVER TO WIN PA., SAYS REED

President Hoover will receive in Pennsylvania a majority larger than either presidential candidate will receive in any other state.

President Hoover will be re-elected, but faces a hard fight in the remaining days of the campaign.

These are the views of Senator David A. Reed, stated in his Pittsburgh office today after consultation with Republican leaders in Eastern Pennsylvania. Reed made no effort to minimize the situation confronting the Republican party, but was confident that sentiment will turn definitely to Hoover before election day. He said:

"I think Mr. Hoover is going to win, but obviously we must not relax our efforts for a moment. It's a hard fight. The President's speeches in Des Moines and Cleveland and Mr. Coolidge's speech in New York have been wonderfully effective. So far as Pennsylvania is concerned, my conferences with eastern leaders have convinced me not only that Pennsylvania will give the Republican candidate a majority, but that it will be larger than that either candidate receives elsewhere."

Fair Denies Knowing Of Slot Machines

Sam Fair, fired as Sharpsburg police chief because, he says, "I wiped out a liquor ring," was questioned today by Chief County Detective George W. Murren about the presence of slot machines in the borough.

Murren told Fair he understood Fair had charged that slot machines were being operated in Sharpsburg stores. Fair denied making the accusation and said he knew nothing of slot machines in Sharpsburg.

Miss Booth for Hoover, Curley Shuns 'Army'

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Because Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, came out publicly for President Hoover, Mayor James M. Curley canceled his agreement to attend the army's campaign fund banquet last night.

Col. Joseph Atkinson, commander of the Army's New England department, said that Miss Booth would reply to Mayor Curley in a statement from the national headquarters at New York today.

The Mayor, in a letter to Miss Booth, which he made public, said he refused "to contribute or participate in the further work of the Salvation Army, at least until such time as there is a return to the policy of non-participation in matters political by the Salvation Army."

Miss Booth, who was quoted on her arrival here as supporting President Hoover and prohibition, said:

"The Salvation Army takes no part in politics, so don't ask me if I'm a Democrat or a Republican, but—vote for Hoover. I'm saying that, not the Salvation Army."

Mother Badly Burned, Kept From Funeral

Father and 3 Who Escaped Blaze Will Pay Last Tribute

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 18.—Betty, Lottie and Jacqueline Hedglin and their step-sister, Delila Rider, burned to death when flames destroyed their home two miles east of Volant yesterday, were to be buried today. One funeral service was to be conducted for the four children, the oldest 14, in the funeral parlors of R. W. Cunningham, in Leesburg. The Rev. William A. Lloyd, of Leesburg, was to conduct the service and burial was to be in the Leesdale Cemetery.

The grieving mother, although severely burned about the hands and face, hoped to attend the service, but relatives say she will not be able to leave her bed in the home of a neighbor. John E. Hedglin, the father, planned to take the surviving members of the family, Thelma Rider and Mary and Maude Hedglin, to the funeral.

A HEROINE AT 90

Ninety-year-old Mrs. Caroline Connors, great-grandmother of the dead children, was to remain at home. She is suffering from shock. Mrs. Connors helped rescue Thelma, Mary and Maude from the second floor of the home.

The fire occurred at 7:30 a. m. yesterday morning when Delila, 14, poured kerosene on the fire to hasten it. The kerosene ignited and quickly spread about the kitchen in which Lottie, 4, and Betty, 6, were eating. The three children ran to the cellar and there found the outside door had been nailed shut. They were trapped in the cellarway.

DOG STANDS GUARD

Jacqueline, 2, was asleep in a crib on the second floor. The aged Mrs. Connors, Thelma, Maude and Mary also were on the second floor, as was Mrs. Hedglin. The grandmother aided the children out by a front stairway, while Mrs. Hedglin ran to the children in the kitchen by a rear stairs. She was forced back and badly burned.

Yesterday, the smoldering ruins were viewed by many people, from Volant and from the nearby farms. At the scene of the tragedy they found a guardian, Rex, a hunting dog, who refused to leave. Rex remained near the ruins all day, only leaving last night when a relative of the victims took him to a nearby farmhouse.

FAMILY PERILED BY CRAZED MAN

Four county detectives and a constable today scoured the woods of O'Hara Township for Joseph Czernewski, 51, of Sharps Hill, who is alleged to have threatened to kill his wife and three children with a club after slashing a relative of his wife.

Mrs. Mary Czernewski, 36, told detectives her husband, apparently crazed with liquor came home last night after an absence of three weeks, forced his way into the house, cut her cousin, Leo Schultz, with a knife and threatened to wipe out the entire family.

They fled to a neighbor's and notified state police. This morning, she said, he returned, climbed through a window, obtained clothing and fled after again threatening her and her children, Sylvia, 9; Marie, 13, and Joseph, 11.

State police informed detectives Czernewski is wanted by them on charges of stealing automobile tires and wheels.

GREECE BLOCKS INSULL FLIGHT

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service.

ATHENS, Oct. 18.—Official representations on the part of the American government will keep Samuel Insull in Greece until the intricacies of the extradition problem can be worked out, it was learned today.

Although Insull, wanted in Chicago in connection with collapse of his $2,000,000,000 public utilities empire, cannot be taken back to the United States immediately, he at least will be confined to Greece and will be unable to flee to a country from which extradition would be still more difficult.

Albania, where the American government feared it would be most difficult to extradite Insull, is said to have declared its intention to extradite the former multi-millionaire if he flees there.

Pleads Not Guilty In Oursler Slaying

STILWELL, Okla., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Ed Dudley pleaded not guilty yesterday to a charge of murder in the fatal shooting of Howard B. Oursler, Muskogee federal prohibition agent and former resident of Pittsburgh, Pa. Preliminary hearing was set for November 16.

Dudley, Republican nominee for constable, was alleged to have shot Oursler with the agent's own pistol in a scuffle which followed Oursler's attempts to question him as to whisky sales.

U. S. Seizes Poisoned Vinegar Shipment

Alertness of a federal food inspector, it was revealed here today, has prevented vinegar containing poison from reaching the tables and kitchens of homes in the Pittsburgh district.

Forty-eight half barrels of the vinegar, which had been rendered poisonous by shipment in barrels that had previously contained poison, were being held by local and federal health authorities in a warehouse here.

More than 50 barrels more were shipped to other parts of the country. All has been traced and will be seized by the government.

Using reconditioned barrels, a Middleport, N. Y., manufacturer barreled the vinegar and shipped it to the warehouse here and to other points for eventual bottling and retail distribution.

The federal food inspector, noticing the new type of barrels being used by the manufacturer, scraped the new paint from one and, it is said, discovered they had previously been used to ship white arsenic from Mexico for use in the United States as a tree spray base. Word was flashed to federal and local authorities here, and the shipment was impounded before any of it had been used.

Analysis is said to have revealed that, although the inside of the barrels had been coated with paraffin, poison remaining in the barrels had affected the vinegar to such an extent that its use would have endangered health.

Circumstances indicate that the manufacturer was not aware the barrels, which he had purchased from a cooperage concern, had previously contained poison, authorities said.

GANDHI 'STROKE' DENIED

POONA, India, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Reports published in London saying Mahatma Gandhi had suffered a paralytic stroke were denied officially today.

Gandhi was thoroughly fit last night, the statement said. He was visited by Ambedkar, representative of the depressed classes, who consulted with him about means of implementing the Poona pact negotiated before he ended his recent "death fast" in behalf of the voting rights of these classes.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The Daily Herald quoted "close personal friends" of Mahatma Gandhi as asserting he had suffered a paralytic stroke in a jail at Poona. These friends said the Mahatma was stricken soon after he had ended his recent fast, and this was why the government had suddenly stopped visitors at Yeroda jail.

Film Actress Spurns Alimony on Account

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Helen Storey Glason, motion picture actress and former wife of William Glason, stage comedian, today refused $225 in support money from her former husband, demanding he pay at least $450, or half the sum she claims due her. Judge Edward S. Scheffler continued until October 25 a motion of Glason's attorney to quash a fugitive warrant.

Society Woman Leaps 31 Floors to Death

Last Note, Scribbled With Lipstick, Says 'I Don't Like You'

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Scribbling a farewell note to "anyone" with a lip stick and grasping two white carnations in one hand, Mrs. Charles J. Prescott, social registerite of Boston, jumped to her death today from the thirty-first floor of the Hotel New Yorker.

The former Beatrice Gardiner, whose marriage to Prescott, son of a Cambridge manufacturer, in November, 1926, was the outstanding social event of Boston, left a note which read:

"I don't like you. This is the best way out. Make the most of every living moment."

She jumped to her death through a window of her room a few minutes after registering. Her body crashed onto a five-story extension. Two crushed flowers were found beneath her body. In her room was the scarlet note written on a piece of hotel stationery.

In a small overnight bag police found several clippings referring to friendship and loneliness.

The clippings were all from Atlanta (Ga.) newspapers. One marked passage read:

"When men and women lost their mates after years of comradeship they are dumfounded and they face a world of emptiness."

Another read:

"Every person is entitled to a certain amount of happiness in life."

The elder Prescott, notified in Boston of the death of his daughter-in-law, said she had been in poor health for some time.

Mrs. Prescott was the daughter of Mrs. Chandler Gardiner, of Boston.

LION KILLERS DISAPPOINTED

COMMERCE, Mo., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Deputy Sheriff Tom Hotchkiss, who killed two young lionesses marooned on a small island in the Mississippi River with a sub-machine gun, admitted he didn't get much "kick" out of the shooting. He said:

"Shucks, if this is lion huntin', then I'll stick to 'possums and coons, where a man can have some excitement."

Hotchkiss yesterday ended the long-planned "safari" of Denver M. Wright, St. Louis manufacturer, by killing the animals which Wright had released on a "towhead" island, near here while Wright was on the mainland eating lunch.

Nonplussed, Wright and the other hunters protested angrily, but Hotchkiss contended he had done his official duty, saying:

"The lions were a menace to the peace and safety of the livestock and people of Southeast Missouri."

Hollywood to Bar 'Legs' Diamond's Girl

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—(Universal.)—Marion (Kiki) Roberts' passport to motion picture stardom will not be honored in Hollywood, representatives of the film industry said today. The girl friend of Jack "Legs" Diamond, slain New York hoodlum, is en route here on the liner Virginia. An executive of the Association of Motion Picture Producers said:

"Miss Roberts has no contract with any motion picture company."

And the inference was she would not get one.

Pittsburgher Held For Alcoholic 'Oil'

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Charged with violating the liquor laws, Thomas Leo Page, of Pittsburgh, and his brother, Arnold S. Page, of Niagara Falls, are under arrest today. A highway patrolman halted the pair, asked:

"Hey, what have you got in that car?"

They answered:

"Oil."

The officer said:

"I took a look at the car and found 108 gallons of alcohol."

PASTOR CALLED POISON KILLER

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Two views of the Rev. S. Althea Berrie, song-writing pastor, were ready for presentation to a district court jury today, one depicting him as the slayer of his first wife, the other as a man unjustly accused.

The 52-year-old minister, who wrote "In Beulah Land" and other church hymns, is accused of poisoning his first wife last March 21 in order to wed Ida Bess Bright, 19-year-old Sunday School teacher, whom he married May 17.

Featuring the investigation were love poems allegedly penned by Mr. Berrie to Ida Bess, with whom he admittedly was intimate before the death of the first Mrs. Berrie.

The girl bride, exonerated of blame in the death of the first Mrs. Berrie, has stood loyally by her husband and is expected to testify in his defense.

Exhumation of the body of the first Mrs. Berrie resulted in filing of the murder charge when state's chemists found "poison sufficient to kill."

Unemployed Girl Tries to End Life

Edison Employes Join In Eerie Tribute

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Thirteen men wrapped their coats closely about them at 3:24 a. m. today and trudged through a blinding rain into the darkness of Rosedale Cemetery.

On a grave they placed a wreath, stood in silence for four minutes, then left as they had come.

It was at this same hour, a year ago today, that watchers were told of the death of Thomas A. Edison, whose genius closed the gas-light era and gave to the world the incandescent lamp. The men were executives of the Edison companies.

Members of the family and employes of Thomas Edison, Inc. gathered at the private library of the inventor in the plant laboratory at noon today. The Rev. Arthur H. Brown, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, led a memorial service.

AGED WIFE SAD AS MATE SUES

A soft-voiced, gray-haired woman of 68, mother of six children, today was sad as she learned that the man to whom she was wedded 46 years ago had filed suit for divorce in Reno.

Mrs. Mary W. Davis sat quietly in her home, 622 East Sixth avenue, Tarentum, as a dispatch was read to her telling of the divorce suit instituted by her spouse of 67, George W. Davis. He charged cruelty.

Without emotion, as if she had long anticipated the news, she said simply:

"It is a disgrace for people of our age to be divorced. I was not cruel to him. I only let him alone. If he wants a divorce I will not stand in his way."

They were married in Kittanning July 1, 1886.

Mrs. Davis lives with five of her six children. Her husband, she said, had been at home only at intervals in the last three years. He made and sold medicine, she said.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Velma Kessel, 34, of Ripley, a teacher in Morgantown Junior High School since 1924, was electrocuted in the bath tub at her apartment last night.

Her body was found today after school authorities sent police to Miss Kessel's apartment when she failed to appear at her classroom.

COX QUITS RACE AND SUPPORTS ROOSEVELT

months ago, made a tour of western states stirring up sentiment for a change among the jobless. He says now he realizes that his candidacy cannot succeed, but says he has awakened the nation to the real issues, and today's statement is addressed to voters throughout the country. He was nominated at an open-air convention in St. Louis.

COX STATEMENT

His statement of withdrawal and indorsement of Roosevelt says:

"The paramount issue in the coming presidential election is effective relief for the millions of good American citizens and their helpless families from the terror of unemployment. Charity is not the answer to the economic reign of terror in which the American people have been living for the past two years. Economic justice, which means giving back to the people the right to work, is the answer.

"Those who are familiar with the background of my candidacy for the presidency on the Jobless party ticket know that personal ambition never moved me to take such drastic steps as I have taken to impress upon the minds of those in power the need of legislation to promote work rather than legislation to protect wealth. They will recall that my interest in the jobless was first aroused by the misery, hunger and suffering I witnessed as I labored close to the ordinary people as the parish priest of Old St. Patrick's.

"I tried charity. I gathered funds and food from citizens in every walk of life without regard to race or creed. But charity was not enough.

"So in the winter of 1931, convinced that charity alone was inadequate, would starve and demoralize the people and breed vicious radicalism, I led the jobless army of thousands over the icy mountains into Washington to demand that the Hoover administration restore economic justice by having the federal government launch a five billion dollar nation-wide public improvement program. That march on Washington failed to get direct results, but it did serve to awaken the nation to the fact that something must be done.

MASS MEETING

"Then followed the gigantic mass meeting of 65,000 citizens in the University of Pittsburgh Stadium. Here I reported to the unemployed the attitude of the administration to their requests. Here I informed them of the futility of expecting effective aid from the administration in power. Here I dedicated myself, at the demand of the jobless, to the task of forcing the Republican and Democratic parties to recognize that the only real issue in the presidential election of 1932 could be economic justice to the unemployed, the restoring of the right of mankind to work. To prevent this all important issue from being sidetracked I became the presidential candidate of the Jobless party.

"My campaign has been a success. The nation is awake to the real issue of the election. Both major party candidates now admit that all else are subordinate to economic recovery.

"Now I announce my withdrawal as a candidate for the presidency of my beloved country. In so doing I am animated solely by the consideration of the welfare of my country. I realize that many ballots would be cast for me if I remained as a candidate, but our political system is so ordered that I can not be elected. It is so arranged that Roosevelt or Hoover must win.

"Mr. Hoover stands for special privilege. He stands for the protection of a few who have amassed swollen fortunes and who desire to dominate the country and its government for their own selfish gain. Mr. Hoover has forgotten the 120,000,000 American citizens.

"Mr. Roosevelt has pledged himself to the protection of the interests of the common man. He has pledged himself to look out for the interest of the country as a whole. He has been frank and courageous in advocating the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. He has pledged himself definitely to policies which will aid in the economic recovery and the recreation of work. He has indorsed the principle of large public construction by the federal government in times of depression.

'HUMAN CRISIS'

"This is not only an economic crisis, it is a human crisis. The old system is broken down. A new order must come. The opportunity to help was presented to Mr. Hoover a thousand times, but never did he lift a hand nor raise his voice to relieve the suffering American people.

"Now he comes to us with mouthings about his sympathy for mankind and about measures of relief—measures which were forced on him. Words, words, words. Nobody believes these words. He had his chance.

"Herbert Hoover has lost caste with the American people. Not only was his the most inefficient national administration in history, but he now adds to his infamy by asking the American people to forget that he unnecessarily sacrificed the lives of World War veterans in the debacle of Anacostia.

"America has always stood and always will stand for justice and a square deal. America will never forget. America will never excuse the barbarous treatment of these World War heroes. America must reject Herbert Hoover and all that he represents if she means to continue as a democracy.

"And now I feel I have but one more duty to perform and then I shall have kept my pledge to the jobless. I believe I ought to indicate to the millions of jobless and their friends what convictions I have as to the presidential candidate who gives promise of meeting the real issue—the economic issue—squarely and honestly.

BACKS ROOSEVELT

"That man is Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for President. May God grant his election and save this nation from further reigns of terror.

"To the millions of jobless and their friends in America I say now I have kept faith with you. I have carried your rightful problems to the attention of the mighty. I have toured the land and campaigned for you. I have seen misery and dissatisfaction and burning desire for change throughout the nation. I have done my duty by you. Your duty remains to be done. You may perform this duty November 8 when you go to the polls. I believe it will be your duty as well as my duty to vote for Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"The issues are clear: Hoover stands for reaction. Roosevelt for progressive legislation. The election of Hoover would mean disaster to the country. The election of Roosevelt would give new hope. Therefore, I take my stand with Gov. Franklin Delano Roosevelt and I invite the country to do likewise. I believe he will plight the same oath to God and country that his famous relative, the great Teddy, plighted when he became President: 'What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?'"

Calls It 'Rotten Deal'

BLANCHE YURKA . . . . A WITNESS IN REYNOLDS TRIAL

Miss Yurka, actress and stage director, who at Baltimore has expressed the strong opinion that Libby Holman Reynolds got a "rotten deal" in her indictment at Winston-Salem for the slaying of her husband. Miss Yurka, a house guest, will be a trial witness.

SOCIALISM M. E. MEET TOPIC

Not booze but bread; not jags but jobs, are what the American people want today and these are the campaign issues, according to the Rev. F. J. Miner who yesterday addressed the Methodist Episcopal Ministerial Association on "The Case of Socialism."

The minister also put in a few punches in favor of municipally owned utilities. He called attention to the fact that the City of Cleveland charges only 3 cents a kilowatt for electric light, vastly cheaper than in Pittsburgh.

Hitch-Hike Romance Leads to Marriage

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Marian Baie, 20, of Bend, Ore., and Roland Davison, 25, of Cooper, Tex., hitchhikers, were married by the county judge yesterday.

They met at Hornell, N. Y., while traveling by jerk-of-thumb methods. They fell in love. They spent $2 of their meager funds for a license, were married, and left on foot on a honeymoon trip to the bridegroom's Texas home.

Flier Faces Charges As Fisherman Dies

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Walter Truett, 38, fisherman, whose rowboat was struck by a seaplane, died last night.

Police said J. Carl Haney, student pilot, who originally was charged with "reckless driving of a seaplane," also would face a manslaughter charge. The plane, in an attempted take-off, struck Truett's boat in the Kanawha River Sunday.

SAYS LIBBY GOT 'ROTTEN DEAL'

BALTIMORE, Oct. 18.—(Universal.)—Belief that Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds got a "rotten deal" in her indictment for the slaying of her husband, has been expressed by Miss Blanche Yurka, widely known stage star, who was a guest in the Reynolds home when the tobacco millionaire heir was shot to death last summer.

Miss Yurka is here directing a production which opens soon at a local theater. Declining yesterday to discuss evidence in the case on the grounds that it might influence the weight of her testimony in court, Miss Yurka nevertheless asserted her sympathy for Mrs. Reynolds and her belief that the indictment would not stand up.

ORGANIZE G.O.P. RADIO LEAGUE

Seeking funds for radio political time, the Allegheny County branch of the Republican Radio League was organized last night at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel. Joseph T. Miller, president of the League of Boroughs and Townships, presided, and explained he was mixing in political affairs at the instance of Jeremiah Millbank, eastern treasurer of the Republican campaign.

George Rankin, Jr., Wilkinsburg, was elected treasurer, and Charles Pearson secretary.

Republican County Chairman William H. Coleman, Congressman Clyde Kelly, County Commissioner C. M. Barr, Attorney William B. McFall, E. E. Spafford, former national commander of the Legion, and Senator David A. Reed spoke.

All denied that President Hoover was in any way responsible for the depression and asserted that he had done what he could toward rehabilitation.

Eichleay Sues P. R. R. For Damage By Fire

Sparks from a locomotive set fire to buildings of the John Eichleay, Jr., Company on South Twentieth street June 14, 1929, and caused damage of $10,006, the company alleged in a suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company filed in Common Pleas Court.

HEMPHILL SEES ANTI-DRY HOPE IN DEMOCRATS

John M. Hemphill, Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania in 1930, told members of the Yale-Harvard-Princeton Club in a luncheon speech yesterday that prohibition not only was an invasion of state rights but had brought increases in general taxation through the elimination of revenue formerly received from alcoholic beverages.

Recalling that he had campaigned on a repeal plank, Hemphill said that this year the Democratic party only stood for outright repeal. President Hoover, he said, still maintained the doctrine of federal control and regulation in his acceptance speech.

The only clear-cut Republican pronouncement on prohibition, he said, was that of Vice President Curtis, who declared against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or modification of the Volstead act.

Hemphill frankly said that prohibition had been brought about by Republicans and Democrats both, the latter deserting the Jeffersonian traditions, but that now the party, through its platform and presidential candidate, Gov. Roosevelt, had repudiated the "noble experiment."

Attorney Arthur Scully, introducing Hemphill, remarked that the speaker had been raised in Philadelphia, and said:

"It is too bad he could not have lived here where we have builders and buyers—of expensive rugs. Here we have a delinquent tax collector who receives more than the President, and here we have politicians so devoted to economy they want to get their hands on the public schools."

STATE'S G. O. P. DRIVE OPENS

HARRISBURG, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Republican county chairmen and vice chairmen and members of the state committee met here today to draft final plans for an intensive campaign in the three remaining weeks before the general election November 8.

During the morning the county officials met with members of the various committees functioning under the state committee. At noon all the conferees were to attend a luncheon at which Gen. Edward Martin, state chairman, was to speak and introduce the state-wide Republican candidates. After the luncheon the state committee was to meet with the candidates.

The Republican candidates are James J. Davis for United States Senator; Charles A. Waters for State Treasurer; Frank E. Baldwin for Auditor General; Justice William B. Linn for re-election to the Supreme Court, and William M. Parker, Arthur H. James and Joseph Stadtfeld for Superior Court.

ROONEY BILL ASSAILED

A smashing attack on the Rooney bill, the measure which would make the school board an elective body, was made last night by James W. Bamford, chairman of the taxation committee of the Building Owners and Managers Association, speaking before the parent-teachers association at the Linden School.

Bamford sharply criticized Senator James J. Coyne, sponsor of the Rooney bill, and declared that Coyne's entire purpose in his economy investigation in Allegheny County is an effort to increase his political prestige.

Regarding the Rooney bill, Bamford said:

"If you want ward chairmen as school principals, your teachers selected for political influence and your schools plastered with campaign literature, work for the Rooney bill."

The increases in the city payroll are the chief cause of the increased burden of city taxes, Bamford declared.

4 FIREMEN WIN PAY SUIT

The city government was planning today to appeal the suit in which four pensioned firemen received judgment for back pay amounting to approximately $275.

At the hearing last night before Alderman Edward W. Haas, 1811 West Liberty avenue, the firemen, August Zitzman, Luke Dillon, Goss W. Reynolds and Joseph Echement, claimed they had worked 10 days without pay on a promise that they would receive 10 days off with pay within six months. They were pensioned a short time later and did not receive the money.

Harry Diamond, counsel for the city, declared all firemen who remained in the service had received payment and time off for the 10 days worked without pay, and asserted the claimants were not entitled to the money because they had been pensioned.

Zitzman, Dillon and Reynolds received judgment of $67.74, and Echement $70.

VETS TO GET WATER FREE

Members of the Pittsburgh contingent of the Bonus Expedition Force, to be housed in buildings at 1120 to 1124 Pennsylvania avenue, North Side, will be assured of an adequate water sppply, to be given free by the city, it was indicated today.

Council's Committee on Finance was to act this afternoon on a resolution presented by Councilman Harry A. Little. During the veterans' stay the building would be exonerated from water rents, under the resolution.

VISIT OF CURTIS AIDS TICKET IN W. VA.

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The first sign of encouragement, such as it is, for the Republican organization in the border states of the South has come during the past week or 10 days from West Virginia.

Returns in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States has shown a 1 per cent gain by President Hoover and a 1 per cent loss by Gov. Roosevelt in this mountain state.

SWING NOT LOCAL

This shift followed the recent campaign visit of Vice President Curtis into that normally Republican state. The small Hoover gain, however, has not been sufficient to keep Roosevelt from adding to his already comfortable majority, Hoover merely reducing the ratio between them.

The Roosevelt swing in West Virginia is not localized to any one part of the state. This is revealed by a detailed analysis by counties and congressional districts of the poll ballots. Every one of the six congressional districts shows a Roosevelt leaning, varying from 53 to 65 per cent.

The best Hoover showing is in the Third District, occupying the center of the state, where he has held Roosevelt down to 53. The Roosevelt peak of 65 is in the Fifth District, down along the Kentucky-Virginia border, made famous some years back by the Mingo and Logan County coal mine disturbances.

G. O. P. OUTLOOK POOR

The First (Wheeling) District, up in the Panhandle, and the Second, along the Maryland border, hold Roosevelt down to 55, but the Fourth (Huntington) and Sixth (Charleston) districts give the Democratic nominee 63 and 60 per cent respectively.

With Roosevelt getting the best of it in both the cities and back in the mine areas it does not look very hopeful for the Republicans.

HEARST BALLOT HELD ACCURATE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(Universal.)—The Kiplinger Washington letter under date of October 15, circulated among business executives of the country, has this to say regarding the Hearst and Literary Digest presidential election polls:

"Both are conducted efficiently and honestly. Literary Digest uses telephone subscribers and automobile owners. Hearst uses only telephone subscribers, sending post cards, not using ballots-in-the-paper. Literary Digest sends out ballots wholesale, in greater volume. Hearst has a slightly better statistical system of 'sampling' with few ballots.

"If you see Literary Digest figures but not Hearst's, keep in mind that Literary Digest shows more Roosevelt weight than Hearst shows. This makes quite a difference in close states. Discrepancy is due to method, not to bias. Hearst probably will prove more accurate. (Remember that Hearst's pro-Roosevelt policy has nothing to do with the poll).

3 SMITH FOES QUIT B. E. F.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Three officers of the Bonus Expeditionary Force, recently elected at the organization's national convention held in this city, have turned in their resignations.

The officers, Capt. William E. Jordan, of Savannah, Ga., national intelligence officer; C. B. Snodgrass, of Wellsburg, W. Va., a camp commander, and Sergt. T. Fred Allamong, asserted their action was a protest against the leadership of Capt. Hoke Smith.

The trio contend that Smith, national field officer, "attempted to become the voice of the organization in Washington last week."

Smith headed a delegation received by President Hoover which presented resolutions calling for aid for ex-soldiers.

U. S. Employes Spend 32 Cents Per Meal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—Federal employes here spent an average of 32⅓ cents per meal in government-operated cafeterias during June, according to a report submitted by the Bureau of Public Buildings and Grounds. The report said 160,994 meals were served and $52,037.21 collected.

The report was made in connection with an investigation into governmental competition with private enterprises, instituted by Representative Shannon (Dem.), of Missouri.

Helen Keller Given 'Achievement Prize'

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Miss Helen Keller, blind worker for the blind, was today awarded the $5,000 "achievement prize" given annually by the magazine, Pictorial Review to a woman who during the past year has made some unusual contribution to science, art or social welfare.

The prize, which went last year to Jane Addams and in 1930 to Carrie Chapman Catt, was given to Miss Keller for completion of the $1,000,000 fund for the American Foundation for the Blind "by her own individual efforts."

Presidential Trend By States

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

URGES DOCTORS TRAIN 5 YEARS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Readjustments in medical education are unavoidable, in the opinion of Dr. J. Bentley Squier, of New York, president of the American College of Surgeons, and a medical school graduate should be required to spend five years in hospital training before practicing either general surgery or any surgical specialty.

Such post-graduate training is imperative, Dr. Squier told the clinical congress of the college in his inaugural address, because so many subjects have been added to undergraduate curricula.

He suggested the college of surgeons institute a forum for discussion of graduate medical educational problems, to make sure that a physician calling himself a specialist is adequately trained for such practice.

Banks $700, Foils Robber Gang by One Day

Though Nick Satturday, 66, of 1112 Forbes street, had little faith in banks yesterday, today he was glad he had taken the advice of a friend and deposited $700 he had been carrying around in his pockets.

For today, with a depositor's receipt for $700 and $4.70 in cash in his pockets, he was held up by three young men at his place of employment in Tropical avenue, Beechview. The young men took his $4.70. They fled in a car which bore no license plates.

PROBE DELAYED IN GAS DEATHS

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—District Attorney Edwards today awaited a coroner's report before deciding whether to order autopsies on the bodies of Mrs. Jean Phillips and her two children, found dead yesterday in their Woodmere home from gas which almost also caused the death of the husband and father.

Edwards yesterday expressed the opinion that Mrs. Phillips had taken her own and her children's lives out of love for her husband, Guy Phillips, who was recently sued for alienation of the affections of a neighbor's wife. Edwards said he believed Mrs. Phillips had wished to solve all her husband's problems by removing herself and her children.

Corporal in Marines Married to Heiress

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The marriage of Miss Anna Elizabeth Hartel, wealthy daughter of the late Mrs. Walter W. Hartel, of Merion, to Austin Steed, of Louisville, in Media, a suburb, on October 6, was revealed today by Mrs. Steed.

In the marriage license application Steed gave his age as 22 and said he was a corporal in the Marine Corps and had been stationed at League Island. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin Steed, 419 Park avenue, Louisville, Ky.

Pedestrian Hurt, Truck Driver Held

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 18.—Lemont Kunkle, 20, Hempfield Township, is being held as the driver of a truck which struck and seriously injured Harry Feld, 60, of Jeannette, as he was walking along the highway.

SCHENLEY POOL ON JOB LIST

Tentative plans for expenditure of a $2,000,000 unemployment relief bond issue authorized by city voters in April call for construction of a new swimming pool in Schenley Park, and work on the Four-Mile Run sewer, the Public Works Department informed Council today. Lesser projects also are to be considered.

The park pool is estimated to cost $250,000.

Of the bond issue sum, according to Director Edward G. Lang and Engineer Charles M. Reppert, $662,400 would be spent on sewer projects.

Other items would be improvement of dirt streets, $500,000; improvements to parks, $366,100; improvements to playgrounds, $101,500; relaying of water lines, $101,500, and bridge construction, $40,000.

Jobs would be provided for hundreds of unemployed men, the department believes.

RITCHIE, ALLEN DEBATE ISSUES

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, and former Gov. Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, discussed the Republican and Democratic presidential campaign issues in a lively political debate arranged by Northwestern University last night and broadcast over a nationwide network.

In Thorne Hall on McKinlock Campus dedication of which was the occasion for the forum, the Marylander declared that the traditional policies of the Democratic party were "what the country needs at this time."

Allen, director of publicity for the Republican national committee, replied that the fundamental issue of the campaign was whether the country should risk failure of three years' endeavors to restore economic life by embarking "on an unchartered course with an inexperienced pilot."

The message was sent last night from his exile at Doorn, Holland, to be read at a meeting of the "League of the Upright."

Fabrics

All Imports—of the Interior Decorating Type—at About 1/3 Original Prices

Spread the news to decorators, upholsterers and to every home that has use for materials of this nature, for certainly there have never been such values before. One of our oldest and finest importers got into difficulties with heavy stocks and was forced to sacrifice some of his loveliest things at a fraction of actual cost. They are the sort of things that our own and other fine decorators show—satins, velvets, tapestries, taffetas and broches. There are many places in your home where these fabrics could work to best advantage—for overdraperies, for recovering chairs and sofas, for a distinguished hanging, throw or pillow-top.

We bought $24,000 worth of fabrics at actual value for $8,000—and our customers will buy them tomorrow on exactly the same basis.

Imported qualities of striped and modern French crashes . . . lightweight colored drapery material . . . linen and jute upholstery damask—all in a splendid selection of colorings.	$1 YD.
Imported silk warp broches in bedroom designs and colorings . . . sturdy tapestry upholstery fabrics in attractive, small-scale patterns for covering all types of chairs.	$3 YD.
Silk velvets, 50 inches wide, and narrow width Genoese type velvets in multicolor shades. Also mohair frieze in rust or orchid, and brocades in pastel shades for bedrooms.	$4 YD.
Beautiful silk broches in blue, mauve, orchid and cream; fine silk taffetas brocaded with floral patterns, in blue, beige, rose, orchid, gold. An exceptional group!	$6 YD.

Lower Prices on Drapery Making and Re-Upholstering

In connection with this sale, we will make full-width, completely lined side draperies of any fabric of your choice . . . for $2.00. (Materials extra). Lengths of windows to be furnished us and draperies hung by customers when completed.

The same low scale of prices prevails for re-upholstering; for example, the labor charge for covering an arm chair is $13.50. (Materials extra).

Due to the extraordinary nature of these values and the fact that quantities are reasonably limited, we will be unable to fill Mail or Telephone Orders

My Girl Friday Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: The papers have confirmed your long-ago report that Congressman Sirovich was plotting a new play . . . Worthington Miner, who staged "I Love You Wednesday," feels wretched about the notices . . . If you naughties aren't careful some of these showmen will do a book or play about you all some day and then, by cracky, will your faces be pink!!!

Ina Claire, I hear, just off the boat, and rehearsing as the lead in "Nine Pine Street," the play based on the famous Lizzie Borden murder, cussed out her betters the other rehearsal, and demanded that the third stanza be re-written and improved . . . I can't imagine that story needing any, can you? . . . What did you mean "Brownie" in the item on the successor to Freeman? . . . You must have heard "Crownie," the pet tag for Frank Crowninshield, you dope! . . . At the premiere of "Criminal-at-Large," the mys-mystery show with the shudders, the other night, it was John Mason Brown who, during the skin-lifting shrieks, put his paws around Brooks Atkinson's neck and choked him . . . In the dark, yet! . . . The shock shelved a dozen pounds off Brooks' tiny body, the poor thing.

Your Benchley item wasn't false. He did get off the train at San Bernardino and returned to H'wood. He's back, however—and glad . . . "Rendezvous" came in with a heavy "buy"—and the brokers have such a headache, already.

Ben Bernie says he gets dozens of letters asking about you . . . Here's a line, feller: That so many theaters have been foreclosed by banks (which will not permit operating funds) the theater must work on a guaranteed weekly basis instead of a percentage. And many producers are afraid to take risks . . . One of the flicker firms cabled a Germany company for the price of a certain cinema. The cable came back reading $6,000 . . . They wired back: "We offer you $4,000" . . . Another cable from Germany read: "Mistake in transmission price. Should have read $60,000" . . . So the Hollywood goup replied: "We'll offer $40,000."

Here is an idea for sensational tome—the "fix" book of a circus . . . In it are recorded the names of mayors, aldermen, et al. of every town in the U. S., and their prices. For a circus cannot come into town without breaking some sort of an ordinance, and the fees for fixing range from a pair of seats up . . . The Times Sq. Hotel is permitting guests with good references to live there for three years, trusting to their honor to pay some day . . . I say a dozen orchids and a barrage of bravos to the Times Sq. Hotel management.

Have you heard the ditty "Old Man of the Mountain?" Plenty nice . . . Elliott Grennard called. Said that things are so bad most of the Park avenue kiddies have forgotten what a silver spoon tastes like . . . Kiki Roberts hasn't any movie contract—she still wants to see her name in the papers, after all she's had. Let that be a lesson . . . Are you serious about snubbing any and all night club premieres. Why? . . . Remind me to tell you the newest Dorothy Parker snapper—a pip!

Mr. Greneker phoned. Wanted to know if you would go into "Americana" for awhile. That's what comes from Variety listing you as an "F" (freak) under its lists of radio names, etc. . . . When Irene Bordoni played at Loew's Palace, they featured a Hollywood opening with Kleig lights, etc. . . . Irene was urged to attend and say something into the mike. She was given such short notice that an opera coat was borrowed from one of the local stores. So what happened? Irene walked under the glare of bulbs before the crowd wearing a coat on which a sign read: "Special, $12" . . . Haw! . . . Walter Anderson called. Said his next waltz will be with a doll named M. G., of Montrose, N. Y. You got his divorce straight, though.

The Camden Courier-Post had a tale about two seamen being killed in fights. One of the prisoners gave his name as Walter Wowwinchel, 22, of 60 Wall street, N. Y. . . . Now don't tell me there could be two of you Wows in the one town! . . . Mrs. Pauline Potter Stewart (she was my teacher in diction at Carnegie Tech), is going to Calif to either crash the movies or teach. She is supposed to speak the "purest English," etc. While playing in London several years ago, she made all the speaking records for an American—having a better English voice than any of the British actors . . . Ed Maulsby of the Journal is doing some all right ghosting these days. And is the sort of ghost-writer who wants it known . . . The book isn't good enough to rate your giving it a free ad, however . . . And with that, sir, I think I've earned my wage for this day . . . I am now shoving off to make me alluring—for a certain person who really thinks I'm the lemon in his tea.—Ruth.

DRAMA REVIEW -:- Critic Tells About Play And Its Actors

'The Animal Kingdom' at Pitt Is Much Improved And Well Presented

By GEORGE SEIBEL

That man Edwin Vail is surely an intrepid lion-tamer, to bring back the Philip Barry play of "The Animal Kingdom" to the town where it started out and was badly mauled. He not merely brought it back—and it was well played by the stock company at the Pitt Theater yesterday—but it was able to come back on its own feet. Which is due primarily to the fact that Barry has deepened his characters and lightened his comedy. And also to the fact that the company at the Pitt was put upon its mettle, knowing they had a most difficult task and must perform almost a miracle.

Mr. Seibel

It seems that miracles still do happen.

Alden Chase gave a very good account of himself as Tom Collier, especially in his scene with Daisy Sage in the second act, when his enthusiasm for her art work carries him out of himself and brings her back into his arms. Alden Chase has a good deal of the physical equipment of Leslie Howard—what might be called adolescent eagerness—and as a result he made a personality out of a role that is still somewhat of a theory.

It would take an actor much greater than Alden Chase or Leslie Howard to convince the world that Collier is really a great publisher and critic, or much more than a billiard ball caroming between two lady cushions.

THAT ARTIST DAISY

Daisy Sage is another theory, but Shirley Booth also put flesh and blood upon the artistic skeleton. Her scene with Tom Collier actually struck fire and had the thrill of drama and passion. Shirley Booth is particularly good in the little touches of cameraderie that make the Bohemian side of the character ring true.

More difficult still is the role of the wife interpreted last night by Kathryn Meskyl. This wife is another theory—the animal corner of the triangle—and an unpleasant part to play. Kathryn Meskyl did it with sufficient sympathy to avoid offense and to rouse no wonderment as to how the high-minded Tom Collier came to marry such a woman.

THE IRREPRESSIBLE RED

As at the first performance, the heartiest sympathy went to the actor who played Richard Regan, the red-headed ex-prize fighter. Last night the role fell to Roy Elkins, who was drunk and sober with equal gusto. In this character, Philip Barry has created a living figure who should have had more to do in the plot. Sam Flint, who acted the father of Tom, also gave a fine portrayal of a real person.

Ella Ethridge as the impossible Grace Macomber and Sylvia Manners as the Teutonic violinist both played acceptably, as did Baker Moore and Henry Richards in the two remaining masculine roles.

Despite its very modern and unconventional theme, "The Animal Kingdom" pleased the audience. Philip Barry with his elusively natural dialogue and his adept psychology has saved a somewhat unpromising comedy from being impossible—and Edwin Vail's Players deserve great credit for having helped to finish the job.

-:- Plays and Players -:-

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Although the Nixon is dark this week that house will resume for an extended period of activity next Monday, when Ed Wynn will be seen at the head of his own show, "The Laugh Parade," for which seats are now on sale in the box office. There will be no show Tuesday night, when Mr. Wynn will turn his weekly radio broadcast into a public entertainment on the Nixon stage for the benefit of the Welfare Fund. Following the Wynn show, the week of October 31, will be another subscription play of the American Theater Society. It will be "Best Years," new play by Raymond Van Sickle, with Katherine Alexander and Harvey Stephens.

"The Vinegar Tree," comedy that will be presented by the Edwin Vail Players in the Pitt next week, takes its title from the nature of the woman who is the central character. Vinegar tree is another name for the common red sumac, which, in its growth, tends to smother all other vegetation around it. In the same way, the chief feminine character in "The Vinegar Tree" overwhelms her family and everybody else in her home. The comedy was a vehicle for Mary Boland last season, who made a road tour in it after a successful engagement in New York.

The Children's Theater Company, of New York again will give a series of Saturday morning plays in the Nixon Theater this season, the offerings to be under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Branch of the Women's International League For Peace. The first attraction, Saturday morning, October 29, will be "Pinnochie." The players of the Children's Theater are all professional actors under the direction of Clare Tree Major.

Elmer Kenyon, dean of the School of Drama, Carnegie Tech, will give the third of a series of lectures on "The Spirit of the Times in Modern Dramatists" in the College Club, North Craig street, at 8 o'clock tonight. The specific topic will be Henri-Rene Lenormand—France."

The Yiddish company in the Lando Theater, Center avenue, is presenting "Forget Me Not" for the first half of this week, to be followed, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, by an operetta, "Peshke, The Circus Girl," the title role to be played by Hannah Hollander. Last week, the first for the company, was most successful, Manager Boris Bernardi reports.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

Heritage

FRED'S EARLIEST memories weren't happy ones. Most of them concerned Pop, and if you knew the type of gent that Pop was, you could readily understand that Fred's childhood days were far from carefree.

Pop had no steady job. He spent most of his time draped over the bar in the corner saloon, spending Mom's hard-earned money. The greater part of his waking hours, during the week, were passed in this fashion. So, by the time Saturday night rolled around, he was in fine fettle. On these memorable occasions he celebrated Mom's pay day by beating up Mom and Fred, and wrecking whatever furniture he could lay his hands on.

Fred, cowering in a corner, was filled with deep hatred for the old man. His mother, of course, he loved. She was sweet and kind and gentle. She taught Fred his prayers. But Fred, silently, uttered a prayer each night that Mom knew nothing about.

"Please God," Fred whispered earnestly, "don't let me be like my father!"

In due time, Pop went to his just reward, or otherwise. Fred was far from unhappy about it.

"What are you crying about?" he demanded of the relatives who were gathered about Pop's coffin. "Me and Mom are better off. He was nothing but an old soak. It's better for everybody that he's dead than the way he was!"

They were all horrified. What manner of boy was that who spoke the truth about the dead? Fred, seeing the sorrow in his mother's eyes, never repeated his assertion. Not aloud, that is . . .

Life, with Pop gone, became peaceful. Fred, at 18, found a job, and he and Mom were content. Fred was a model son. He worked hard at his job, turned in his pay each week—and kept far away from the corner saloon. It was the same old place. Same old gang. Same drinks. The only difference was that now it was known as a speakeasy.

Fred had few friends. Most of the boys he knew were running around with girls and drinking. Fred didn't mind the girls—but the liquor! Even the smell of it would bring back horrible memories of Pop and his unpleasant habit of beating up the family on Saturday nights. Fred shuddered when he thought of it. Never, he was determined, would be become what Pop had been.

Fred, if the truth were known, was just a little afraid. He had read somewhere that children were inclined to inherit evil tendencies from their parents. Suppose he were to develop a liking for the stuff! Thinking along in this fashion, he grew more determined than ever to keep away from liquor.

When Fred was twenty-one, he married one of te neighborhood girls. Although you may not be able to imagine such an unusual situation, he and Rose and Mom lived together in perfect harmony.

During the second year of his marriage to Rose, a son was born to them. Fred became quite delirious with joy. As soon as he was assured that his wife and baby could struggle along without his presence, he rushed out of the apartment to bring the glad tidings to the neighbors.

In the flat across the hall, someone proposed a toast to the new offspring. A bottle of gin was brought out. It was impossible for Fred to refuse to drink to his own son. That night, for the first time in his life, Fred broke his promise to himself. One drink led to two, and two to two more. At the end of an hour, Fred was tight. Forgotten were his resolutions, his ambitions. At that moment Fred felt that he would rather be tight than President.

The next day, however, he was extremely remorseful. He vowed that he would never drink again. Yet he was uncomfortably aware that he had enjoyed his little celebration.

And that day, when the boys at the office insisted upon a round of drinks in honor of the new father, Fred didn't have to be urged very strongly to join them.

There followed a very unhappy period for Fred. And, of course, for Rose, too. Decidedly, he didn't want to be wasting his money on liquor and jeopardizing his happiness. Yet he could not hide from himself the truth that he honestly liked the stuff.

"Pop!" he groaned. "I knew it! I've inherited the taste from him."

After having placed the blame where he felt that it rightly belonged, he ceased to fight very strongly against the hold that liquor was getting on him.

"What's the use?" he asked himself hopelessly. "It's a curse, that's all—yes, sir, a curse that I inherited from the old man!"

During the next three months Fred was drunk exactly twelve times. Rose, watching him with worried eyes, made up her mind to do something about it. When Fred came in one night in exceedingly good spirits, Rose was waiting up for him.

"Dear," she said, gently, "I don't want to quarrel with you. But can't you see how unhappy you're making me? And Mom, too? I've tried to shield you, but I'm sure she suspects something. Look, hon, you can stop if you want to. You've just started drinking. Please, Fred, do this for Mom and me!"

Fred growled. "Go to bed! What I do is my own business."

"No, it isn't," Rose insisted. "It's my business, too. Please stop, Fred."

"Go to bed!" he shouted. "If you don't—"

He was horrified to find that he had raised his fist and was advancing toward Rose. With a little cry, she fled. Fred dropped his arm and sat down heavily. So that was what he had become! No better than Pop, who had beaten Mom with such regularity each Saturday night. He was becoming what Pop had been—a soak. And what was it he had said about Pop?

"He's better off dead. The world is better off without him!"

Fred dropped his face in his hands and groaned aloud. A wife-beater, a drunkard! And no hope for him. He would grow worse each week until he was fully as bad as Pop.

"Better off dead—"

He went into the kitchen, scribbled a note on a piece of wrapping paper, gathered up his hat and coat and started out toward the East River.

Rose found the note in the morning, when it was too late. For many minutes, she and Mom weretoo horror-stricken to Mom were too horror-stricken to weep bitterly. Rose tried futilely to comfort her.

"Poor Fred," she said softly. "He was really a wonderful boy at heart. It was just that he was afraid of—of being like his father. He felt that he would eventually become like him and that it had to happen. And he went out to die rather than have us suffer the consequences of the curse."

Mom raised her eyes.

"Poor Fred," she repeated tearfully. "There was no curse, Rose, and he didn't have to die. I never told you this, and Fred didn't know it either. I married my second husband when Fred was a baby. And the man he believed to be his father—wasn't his father at all."

Two Hearts Again Beat In Waltz Time

That jewel of film operettas, "Two Hearts That Beat in Waltz Time" (Zwei Herzen im dreiviertel Takt), came back to the Avenue Cinema yesterday, after a dozen imitations had shown that it could not be imitated. It pleased the large audiences as much as ever—and there seemed to be no fault to be found except that the screen cannot be encored. That is compensated for by the frequent recurrence of the theme song, which has all hearts beating in rhythm with it. Need more be said?

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Woman Confess Sin To Husband She Betrayed?

Should she tell her husband the truth about the expected babe he is so proud of?

"I know that I will never be happy unless I do," she sobs, now that her mad moment is over and she realizes what she has done; "yet if I do it, I know it will break his heart!"

What is your answer, Stranger?

Should she tell him, or shouldn't she?

Confession would relieve her soul of its load of guilt, but—

Has she a right to such relief if it kills her husband's happiness and brands her baby?

"Dear Sally:

"I have a terrible load on my soul, so I am writing to you to see if you can't give me a little advice and comfort in my trouble. My shame is too great for me to ask any of my friends, and I can't ask my mother, for it would break her heart, and she is not well.

"My husband and I have been married quite a number of years, and we have both worked hard together all that time to get our little home. We have always been very happy, except that now I have done something terrible and my heart is breaking over it.

"I have always been a good and faithful wife and a good daughter, and never harmed anyone that I know of, until lately, when I was thrown into too close association with another man, a member of my husband's own family, and I forgot everything for him.

BOTHERED BY CONSCIENCE

"I can't explain it. I don't know what was wrong with me. He was rather spoiled, and I was fond of him, and—well there's no excuse. Now I feel heartbroken, and my conscience is nearly driving me crazy, for I have discovered that I am to be a mother, and my husband is very proud and happy about it. But instead of being happy over it, I am nearly crazy with grief and remorse.

"Should I keep my sin a secret or should I confess it to my husband and break his heart, too? I can't decide. My conscience tells me that I should be honest and tell him what I have done, and yet—I don't know! I don't know!

FACES UNHAPPINESS

"I am on my knees every day, asking God to forgive me, but I am so unhappy, wondering if He will, if I don't tell the one I have wronged. I know my husband will never forgive me if I do tell, but I know that if I don't tell him, I will never be happy, even though I am a good mother and try all the rest of my life to be a good wife.

"What shall I do? Shall I tell him, or shall I keep my secret? We have wanted a baby for so long, and he and all my friends are so delighted. If they only knew how wretched I am!

"HEARTBROKEN WIFE."

Poor soul! A terrible question. I know what my answer would be—but I want you to have more answers than one, so I'm handing it on.

What's you opinion — and yours—and yours?

Is it this woman's duty to tell, even though it spoils her husband's new found joy?

Is it a black sin to keep this secret from him?

Or would it be a greater sin to destroy his happiness? Is it her duty to bear her load of remorse alone?

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Preventing an End-Play

End-plays are often looked upon by the average bridge player as being miraculous things. Actually, they are part of the equipment of every expert bridge player. Even the experts, however, frequently miss opportunities for preventing a simple end-play.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

In the hand given below, South saw an end-play which was about to be worked out, with his partner as the victim, and prevented it very simply by leading the suit himself. The play seems simple enough, but it is one which would undoubtedly be missed by the majority of players.

East—Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

♠ K 6 2
♡ K J 6 2
◇ J 4
♣ 7 6 5 4

♠ A Q J 5
♡ A Q 10 4

North
South

♠ 10 9 8 7 4
♡ 8 7 3
◇ A 6
♣ A K Q

♡ 9 5
◇ K Q 10 9 8 7 3
♣ J 9 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ◇	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

South considered a long time before passing the four-spade bid, since his opponents were vulnerable and he was not, and it seemed that he might escape with a 400 penalty. However, it also looked possible that he might be defeated 1,000, and he finally decided to allow the hand to play. He opened the diamond King, which was won by Declarer with the Ace. Declarer immediately led the spade suit and finessed the Knave, North winning the King. North now laid down the diamond Knave, and South paused to consider. It seemed logical to allow the Knave to hold and permit the club lead to come up to the weakness in Dummy, but it did not seem as though much could be accomplished this way.

Declarer had bid on a Ten-high suit and must hold the high honors in clubs. The only chance of defeating the contract, therefore, lay in the heart suit, and if, as he suspected, Declarer held the high clubs and nothing in hearts, North would eventually be caught in an end-play. He therefore overtook the Knave with the Queen and led a heart. Declarer finessed the Ten and the trick was won by North with the Knave. When a club was returned, Declarer was unable at the end to avoid the loss of another heart trick.

If South had not made this play at Trick 3, Declarer's path to game would have been extremely simple. With the diamonds already stripped, he would have merely had to lead out the spades and then take three rounds of clubs, after which any heart finesse would place North in the unpleasant position of leading up to the tenace in Dummy. The play is unquestionably simple, but it proves that the defense should always be on the alert even on hands which appear unbeatable.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South opens the bidding with three notrump, which West doubles and North passes. Can East redouble his partner's Double?

Answer: A Redouble of a partner's Double is void. Penalty: The opposing side may add 100 points to its honor score.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Finger Bowl

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I would like to know when to place finger bowls on the table, before the dessert or after?

2—Is a napkin placed with the dessert, and what size should the napkin be?

3—Is it proper to dip the left hand first? JOCE.

1—The customary way of having the finger bowls placed is with the dessert service. That is, the waitress brings in the dessert plate, and on it the finger bowl, with, if you wish, a doily between the finger bowl and the dessert plate.

The guest removes the finger bowl, with the doily, if there is one (although this is not necessary), placing it on the left of the place. Then the dessert plate is ready for the dessert.

If there is to be a fruit course after the dessert, another plate, larger than the dessert plate, is placed under the dessert plate. Then, when the dessert is finished, the fruit plate remains, for fruit course.

2—The guest has, during the dessert course, the same napkin that he has had during the rest of the meal.

3.—It doesn't make any difference whether we dip the fingers of the right hand or the left hand first, so long as we dip the fingers of one hand at a time. Only the tips of the fingers are dipped . . . gently and unostentatiously . . . into the water of the finger bowl. If it is necessary, we moisten our lips with the fingers of one hand.

Acceptance Form

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Will you kindly inform me as to the proper reply to the following invitations?

Mr. and Mrs. A.
Mr. and Mrs. B. request the pleasure of your company at the Tenth Anniversary of their marriage on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock
Address
Please respond

This invitation was extended to my husband and me. We have known Mr. and Mrs. A. for only a short time. Mr. and Mrs. B. are old friends of ours.

2—Would it be proper to only present a gift to our old friends, or both? SUBSCRIBER.

1—This is the correct form of your acceptance:

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arthur Wells accept with pleasure the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Atwater and
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baldwin to the Tenth Anniversary of their marriages on Wednesday,
the first of November,
at eight o'clock

2—I think that it would be charming if you present a gift to your old friends, and perhaps to send a box of flowers to Mr. and Mrs. A. on the morning of the anniversary. This would make an appropriate bow to each.

Only Tragedy Bares Some Rich Children's Problems, Says Fay King

NO ONE KNOWS HOW UNHAPPY I AM. SOMETIMES I THINK I'LL RUN AWAY—OR DIE!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Not until tragedy has prostrated them in unutterable remorse have some wealthy parents realized how unhappy their child was amid luxury.

In humble homes unaffected emotion, which is the language of the heart, gives constant evidence of affection, joy or sorrow which is shared by all.

But some of those in high places, wishing so much to be superior, stifle this emotion which is common to all. So that here it is hard to discover a joy or sorrow which is paraded in such perfect poise before family, friends and servants.

In the stilted surroundings and slight companionship of rich parents, a child's problems go unnoticed.

Without sincere emotion one can never hope to be understanding or understood.

Where there is understanding and love no child is ever unhappy.

Blood Count Only Way to Prove Pernicious Anemia

Dr. Copeland

Pernicious anemia was at one time a dreaded and fatal disease. Within recent years discovery of the curative value of liver has changed the prospect, for the use of liver and other important foods has helped to make possible the cure of pernicious anemia.

This is a disease of the blood, but its real cause has never been discovered. In this disorder there is a destruction of the red cells of the blood, and the blood becomes thin and watery. Not only is there a reduction in the number of red blood cells, but a loss of coloring matter as well.

The patients are pale in appearance, listless, and have no desire or ability to work. Though they may be extremely weak, there is no marked loss of weight. Swelling of the feet and shortness of breath upon slight exertion are common signs. Faintness and dizziness occur as the disease progresses.

As a rule, there are digestive disturbances which are frequently overlooked. Such symptoms as indigestion, "biliousness" and severe diarrhea are often definite signs of the trouble.

Pernicious anemia is misleading because it runs in cycles. The afflicted person improves greatly and for a short time may be decidedly better in health. This favorable state of health may last for several months, only to be followed by a relapse. As time goes on the periods of partial recovery become less frequent and of shorter duration.

The diagnosis of the disease is easily made by what is called the "blood count." In this test the actual destruction of the red blood cells and the decrease in the coloring matter can be determined. The condition may be confused with a more simple form of anemia. It is only by means of this test that the presence of pernicious anemia can be accurately determined.

For many years diet was believed to be the only means of curing pernicious anemia, and the diet was planned to increase meats and other proteins. Vegetables and milk were recommended, also strict control of the foods and complete rest in bed, but with little success in combatting this disorder.

Since the discovery that liver is of extreme value in the treatment of pernicious anemia, great strides have been made in its mastery. Liver has been found to multiply red blood cells four or five times, and in addition the general health of the individual has been decidedly improved within a period of from one to three months.

Fresh liver is often difficult to obtain. For it may be substituted certain recommended liver extracts. One of these is in the form of a powder that may be sprinkled over the food. Research is now being carried on in an effort to make a highly concentrated liver extract which can be injected into the tissues. When perfected, this method will be economical, easy to administer and more rapid in its action.

Never make your own diagnosis of anemia and certainly do not attempt to prescribe for yourself. Merely because you are pale and tire easily does not mean you are anemic. The diagnosis and treatment of this disease are highly technical and should only be undertaken by your physician, who is trained for this work.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Eye shadows have no place on lids that have taken on crepy lines. They call attention to complexion wear and tear. Even the youngsters look older when they apply dark tints to flesh that surrounds the soul lanterns. But that's what they want. They're out for sophisticated distinction. All right, maybe if they practice restraint, don't overdo.

No movie star would ever have flickered on the silver screen had she neglected proper care of her teeth. We must harp a bit on tooth care. It is reported that, in Uncle Sam's domain, only one person in four receive dental service. Make an appointment with the dentist at the first sign of pain or cavities; face the music. URGE ECONOMY TO REPLACE SALES TAX

A general curtailment of state government expenses will be advocated in Harrisburg this winter by the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association, in place of re-enactment of the sales tax, Arthur C. Kaufmann, general manager of McCreery & Co., said today.

Kaufmann is regional vice president of the Association in Western Pennsylvania.

The association, a permanent organization, was founded with its first object of blocking a sales tax measure similar to the present tax in the next regular session of the Legislature, in February. Kaufmann said:

"We feel that the regular mercantile license tax and real estate taxes and others now in effect were sufficient without the new tax. We're going to propose that they get the same money out of economy in operation of the state government. The government in Harrisburg today doesn't know there's a depression on."

The present sales tax, Kaufmann says, throws a heavy burden on retailers, encourages interstate smuggling, and forces merchants to keep complicated and difficult records.

Kaufmann Players To Give 'Out of Sea'

The Irene Kaufmann Players will present "Out of the Sea," the fourth major play production of the season, on October 25 and 26. The play revolves about three characters and is a story of the Cornish headlands.

Next Sunday a dance revue will be given in the auditorium. The program will include tap, acrobatic and novelty dances.

Springdale's New School Dedicated

Springdale Borough's new $80,000 high school was dedicated last night in the school auditorium. More than 1,000 attended.

Dr. Charles E. Dickey, superintendent of Allegheny County schools, delivered the principal address. He was introduced by Prof. Loyal S. Marshall, head of the borough schools.

MISSION HEAD TO SPEAK HERE

Dr. Higginbottom

A leader among world's missionaries, Dr. Sam Higginbottom, a Presbyterian missionary at Allahabad, India, will speak Thursday night at the Bellevue Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Higginbottom, who has been stationed in India since 1903, is founder of the Allahabas Agricultural Institute, a Presbyterian mission institute, and is superintendent of the mission leper asylum. Recognition for his work was shown by Great Britain in awarding Dr. Higginbottom the Kaiser-i-Hind medal.

The agricultural institute was founded to aid Indians too poor to provide for themselves and assist farmers. Hindus and Mohammedans compose most of the leper asylumpatients, where the victims cast out by their own people receive chalmoogra oil treatments.

Princeton created the degree of doctor of philanthropy to confer on Dr. Higginbottom. Prior to attending Princeton, he received his bachelor of science degree from Amherst College.

BEATEN BY TAXI MAN, WINS SUIT

For injuries in an attack by a taxicab driver who would not follow instructions, James H. Murphy, of Squirrel Hill, was awarded $3,500 damages by a jury before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in a suit against the Yellow Cab Company.

Returning from a visit in Beltzhoover avenue, Knoxville, May 22, 1930, Murphy testified, the driver refused to follow the course directed. When Murphy protested, he declared, the driver stopped the cab, opened the door and struck him several times, cutting his lip, loosening his teeth and injuring his nose and jaw.

An additional $28,000 for construction of the Mt. Washington roadway, from the Liberty Tunnels to South Tenth street, had been requested today from Council by the city Public Works Department. The project is being completed under supervision of Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert with city forces.

Entire cost of the physical work will be $280,000. The improvement will be completed next spring, Reppert estimated.

Where Does She Get Her "Pep?"

SHE doesn't look seventy. Nor feel that old. The woman who stimulates her organs can have energy that women half her age will envy!

At middle-age your vital organs begin to slow down. You may not be sick, simply sluggish. But why endure a condition of half-health when there's a stimulant that will stir a stagnant system to new life and energy in a week's time?

This remarkable stimulant is perfectly harmless. It is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. So, if you're tired of trying every patent medicine that comes along, tell the druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a bit of this delicious syrup every day or so, until you know by the way you feel that your lazy liver is again active, and your bowels are poison-free.

Men, women, and children who are run-down, who tire easily, get bilious spells or have frequent headaches, are soon straightened out when they get this prescriptional preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh laxative herbs. (Syrup pepsin is all the help the bowels need, and you do not form the very bad habit of always taking cathartics.)

Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin in the house, and take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. It is all that a great many people ever take to keep strong and vigorous, and absolutely free from constipation.

THE STRIPED TIGER

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal artist, Paul Bransom . . . inspired by the savage ferocity of the striped tiger, known throughout the world as the terror of the jungle. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

Copr. 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

CHARGE WIDOW HID ASSETS

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 18.—Federal Judge W. E. Baker today pondered the case of Mrs. Lena Rivers Solomon, 54, formerly of New Castle, Pa., on a contempt of court charge. She has been in the Ohio County Jail since last July 6.

It is charged that Mrs. Solomon, in filing a voluntary bankruptcy petition, failed to schedule assets. Attorney Clarence Patterson, of New Castle, appearing in court yesterday for Hiram C. Stewart and Samuel Young, makers of the complaining federal affidavits, said Mrs. Solomon collected $14,000 life insurance on her late husband, tied $10,000 in a belt around her waist and started on a world tour. He said she lost most of the money in Mexico, and on returning home was hounded by the family's old debtors, thereupon going to New Cumberland, where she filed the bankruptcy petition.

A son to whom Mrs. Solomon had given $1,000 appeared in court and tendered a check on a building and loan company for $918.50. The court permitted acceptance of the check, although it will be paid at the rate of 3 per cent a month.

FIGHTING ABBE MADE BISHOP

PARIS, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Abbe Patrick Flynn, Franco-Irish pastor of the famous Church of the Madeleine, and well-known to many American visitors to Paris, was consecrated Bishop of Nevers today at Notre Dame Cathedral.

The new bishop served as a "doughboy" in the French army during the World War. His elevation to the bishopric follows that of Cardinals Binet and Lienart, respectively Archbishop of Besancon and Bishop of Lille, who also wore the horizon-blue uniforms of soldiers during the war.

Bishop Flynn shed his black cassock for the uniform on August 2, 1914, serving first as a buck-private stretcher-bearer and in the following year as chaplain of the 33rd French Division in the trenches.

Officer to Face Trial On Charges of Girl

Earl Bradley, Harrison Township patrolman, today is under bond for court trial on serious charges preferred in behalf of a 16-year-old Natrona Heights girl. Bradley, with John Schragg, of Natrona Heights, waived a hearing. Harry Stauffer, of Brackenridge, has posted bond for a hearing.

When George Dennis, of Brackenridge, was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace J. Francis Heck, of Natrona, testimony of a woman agent of the Humane Society caused the arrest of Bradley, Schragg and Stauffer.

Raid on Coal Bin Fails to Awaken Patrolman

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Patrolman Howard Knecht, his wife and their three children are sound sleepers.

Their dreams were undisturbed as thieves drove a truck up to their residence, kicked in a cellar window, and drove off with two and a half tons of coal.

Knecht found out about it this morning when he went downstairs to stoke the furnace and couldn't find the coal.

Stomach Pain Ends. Can Eat Anything Now

"For four years I suffered with my stomach. About a month ago I began using ACIDINE," says Dorothy L. Usher, Minneapolis, Minn. "Today I am a well woman and am eating everything. ACIDINE has made my life worth living again."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy, starchy foods that cause trouble. ACIDINE stops burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, ends gas, headache, sleeplessness from acidity and helps digest starchy foods and meats.

Don't run chances of dangerous painful troubles from acidity. Get ACIDINE today from your druggist and note quick relief from sourness, pain and belching. You can eat, drink and smoke as you like. Maker guarantees results that satisfy you or money back.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

To make Children
EAT

Don't force children to eat! The girl or boy who has no appetite has stasis—which means the child is sluggish. But cathartics have caused more constipation than they ever cured! The "California treatment" is best—just pure fig syrup. Try this for a few days then see how eagerly your youngster will eat.

How to Conquer Sluggishness

Stimulate the colon and that child with a finicky appetite will devour everything set before him. Here's the simple treatment that does more for babies or older children than all the diets, fad foods, or tonics.

Nature has provided the only "medicine" you'll need to stir a child's colon muscles into proper action. California fig syrup. Pure, delicious, harmless. It acts on the lower colon—where the trouble is. It has no ill effects on the intestines.

Begin tonight, with this marvelous "California treatment." Any druggist has California fig syrup, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the clogged colon of every bit of poison and hard waste. Then just a little twice a week until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. Whenever a cold or other upset clogs the system again, use this natural vegetable laxative instead of drastic drugs.

WARNING

There are dealers who practice substitution. Be sure to protect your child by looking for the name CALIFORNIA on the bottle.

WOMAN ADMITS FIRING HOUSE

Mrs. Lena Greenfield, 29, a divorcee, admitted in Central Police Court today that she set fire to the home of Samuel Stolofski, at 911 Shawnee street, at his request, but that she bungled the job.

Mrs. Greenfield, who lives at 1616 Forsythe street, and Stolofski were held for court charged with arson and conspiracy by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. She testified:

"Stolofski told me he wanted to get rid of a woman he was living with, that he would take her to New York and while he was away I was to set fire to his house. When he came back and found I hadn't done so he called me 'yellow.' Later I did as he requested and poured benzine on the floor and set fire to it, but all that burned was a rug."

City Detective Gus Ellis testified Stolofski had collected $55 damages.

WRIGLEY DOLLARS STILL IN PITTSBURGH

Doctor Advocates Wrigley's.

By MISS MINT

A call upon a doctor.—It usually means one of those queer prescriptions, and a dose of nasty tasting, ugly medicine. Saturday, I called upon Dr. Paul J. Dunn, in his office, 1557 Broadway Avenue, Beechview. Dr. Dunn was very pleasant and I couldn't imagine him suggesting anything but sugar coated pills or a pleasant-to-take liquid. I'm sure he must be popular with kiddies and grown-ups alike — he's always seeking the best for them, and the easiest to take. His opinion of Wrigley's convinced me of this. "Wrigley's is the only scientific aid to digestion that is a pleasure to take," he stated. Thanks, Dr. Dunn.

Others receiving Wrigley Dollars on Saturday were:

JULIUS A. GOTTFRIED, 1629 Rutherford Ave.; HILDA MULLEN, 1414 Methyl St.; MATTHEW PERRY, 1625 Broadway Ave.; MISS LOVELL GRAY, 245 Parkway Drive; G. A. NEWMAN, 88 Crafton Ave.; PATRICIA BRACKEN, 3230 Wainbell Ave.; ELMER FIERING, Seavey Rd.; MRS. M. McNALLY, 1425 Methyl St.

Now, folks, are you convinced that it is an easy matter to get a new, Wrigley Dollar? Just carry your Wrigley's gum with you—and be ready to produce it when I stop you. I'm traveling everywhere about the city—are you waiting—hoping?

I should like to present each and every one of you with a snappy, new Wrigley Dollar bill. Get in line. Good luck. I'm still in Pittsburgh!

PIMPLES?
BLACKHEADS?
LARGE PORES?
OILY SKIN?

End These Ugly Faults —with medicated cream nurses depend on for skin beauty

WHAT causes these distressing flaws that mar your attractiveness? Simply this: Ordinary creams and lotions cleanse only the skin surface and fail to remove the ground-in grime. The pores become choked and clogged. Blackheads form. Then come disfiguring blemishes.

But you can have a lovely skin—and quickly, too—by adopting the correct medical treatment. Do as your doctor would—use Noxzema, the medicated cream that purges and heals. So effective is Noxzema that it is prescribed even in serious skin conditions. It's used by nurses themselves and guards the complexion beauty of over 6,000,000 women.

Why? Because Noxzema is more than a skin cream. It's a skin medicine. Noxzema's penetrating medication and soothing balms first purge the pores thoroughly of all choking, blemish-causing pore dirt. It stimulates the sluggish circulation. Then it heals, softens, refines the rough, irritated skin texture.

See what Noxzema can do for you tonight—in only 8 hours—while you sleep! Apply after removing make-up. (Greaseless—will not stain.) Tomorrow what marvelous improvement! Complexion clearer, finer—blackheads, pimples, eruptions noticeably improved. Natural beauty begins to shine through. Use Noxzema every night and before powdering. Even the first few days will bring ample reward.

For lovely skin admired by all, don't delay starting on the Noxzema treatment. Get the inexpensive trial jar today at any drug or dep't store.

Campaign Tenseness Shown by Meeting

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mr. Shields

Convening of all the Pennsylvania Republican county chairmen, as well as members of the State Committee, in Harrisburg today, is indicative of the tenseness of the political situation in the commonwealth, and the alarm with which the Republican party management views the trend of sentiment.

Today's meeting, three weeks before election, is unprecedented in this state of normally preponderant Republican majorities in a presidential campaign. Heretofore there has been no necessity for resort to such "pep" meetings, not even in 1928 when the Al Smith people mistakenly thought they were stronger than the balloting proved.

Things Different Four Years Ago

Four years ago the Republican management was able to discount the Smith claims, because it knew the undercurrent of sentiment. Times were prosperous, there was no "against the ins" feeling among so many people, and the Republicans exerted themselves primarily because they wished the self-satisfaction of a million majority for Hoover. And they almost got it, without a last-minute meeting of chairmen and committeemen.

Parenthetically, there will be some absentee committeemen and committeewomen tomorrow, because they lack themselves the money to go tripping to Harrisburg, and the state committee has not this year the usual ample fund to finance such journeys.

One of the things which has chiefly concerned President Hoover on his trips through Pennsylvania has been the verdict of the straw polls so far taken. He has asked Pennsylvanians who traveled with him on his train from stop to stop whether these indicatives that Gov. Roosevelt was more popular are truly interpretive of the sentiment of the people.

By some of those with whom he talked he was told that certainly the vote reflected the sentiment of those who had sent ballots, but the consolation was extended that things weren't as bad as they seemed, and that there would be a turn for the better. The interest of the President is proof that he does not dismiss as lightly the straw votes as one would believe the Republican national management does, judging by published statements. However, published statements and actual opinion are not always the same.

Says Republicans May Surprise Roosevelt Men

For example, Mrs. Sarah Etter, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, says Pennsylvania is going Republican by as much as it went for Hoover in 1928. Yet one leader who knows more practically about Pennsylvania politics than do some of those in the state committee, said privately yesterday that the Republicans might surprise the Roosevelt champions by defeating him by 225,000 in the state. This, he thought, would be a great accomplishment, and he is sincerely for the President.

Another ventured the assertion that the state would go for Hoover by no more than the majority of Philadelphia, if it did not go Democratic.

These opinions are merly thrown in to show the reason for the meeting today in Harrisburg, for at this date no one may say accurately what the state will do, and estimates of majorities, for or against either candidate, are mere guesswork three weeks ahead of the campaign.

A better forecast can be made after Gov. Roosevelt completes his visit here tomorrow, and after some of the big employers of the district endeavor to counteract an unquestioned anti-Hoover sentiment by pleas to their employes—and former employes.

Some of the latter are being told that perhaps business will be better if Hoover is re-elected, and that they will be the first taken back on a business pick-up.

Party Regularity Makes All Pure

There has been considerable comment hereabouts on the association of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Senator James J. Coyne and Mayor Charles H. Kline—the latter only modestly—in the Hoover campaign. Additionally comment has been heard on the presence of Ralph Flinn in the same adventure.

The comment arises because of the recent primary, when Coyne and Kline were against McGovern in his efforts on behalf of Gen. Smedley Butler and Gov. Pinchot's state committee ticket, and fought Flinn, candidate for the nomination of auditor general on the Pinchot ticket. There was bitter language passed.

But apparently Mr. Hoover, though titular head of the Republican party, is not guilty of the faults of that party as exemplified by the organizations of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, which McGovern and Flinn fought. Party regularity makes all pure.

Really, there should not be much comment about this association. Recall 1930, and you will remember that these same gentlemen were together, and for Gifford Pinchot at that. The changing years make strange and changing alliances.

FIRST 'COMMUNITY BUS' EXPECTED HERE NEXT WEEK

COUNCIL PROBES OPPOSITION TO RATE CUTS

Bell and Peoples Firms Agree to Conference; Two Others Silent

Flat declarations by the Peoples Natural Gas Company and the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania that rate slashes at this time were impossible were to be discussed today by Council's committee on finance.

Both organizations filed answers yesterday to President John S. Herron's invitation to confer with city officials toward amicable rate cuts. A number of othe. utilities organizations have yet to be heard from, according to Herron. So far no answers have been received from the Equitable Gas Company and West Penn Power Company.

The South Pittsburgh Water Company ignored Council's request and submitted their recent cut of approximately $1.86 annually direct to the Public Service Commission for approval, while the Parmelee Transportation Company increased its tariffs last month. The Parmelee interests operate the Yellow and Green cabs here.

AGREE TO CONFER

The Peoples Gas Company and the Telephone Company, however, agreed to confer with city officials soon and state in detail, they wrote, why rates could not be reduced at this time.

In a preliminary report, John B. Tonkin, vice president of the gas company, told Council:

"There seems to be an impression everywhere that because rates are fixed by law, they are not affected by adverse business conditions."

Explaining the company's present financial status and rate structure, the vice president said:

"The company's rates were approved by the Public Service Commission after a thorough and exhaustive investigation relating to 1924 and 1926. Calculations for those years show a net earning available for return on the company's gas plant of $1,479,208 and $2,043,850. It said that these earnings would amount to a return of about 7 per cent on a rate base of $21,100,000 for 1924 and $29,100,000 for 1926, and would not produce an excessive net return on any fair value which it could reasonably find for the company's property.

FIGURES ON EARNINGS

"A comparison of these figures with the years 1930 and 1931 shows a drastic reduction in the company's earnings. The net income available for return on the company's gas plant for 1930 was $998,204.15 and for 1931, $850,653.36. These earnings amount to a return of 7 per cent on rate bases of $14,260,059 and $12,151,191 respectively.

"These amounts are so far below any fair value which could be put on the company's property that the fairness of rates cannot be called in question. This decrease is accounted for largely by the reduction in gross earnings, which for the years mentioned, has been as follows:

"In 1924, $9,169,064; 1926, $10,919,140; 1930, $9,563,215, and 1931, $8,079,599."

"A comparison of figures for the first seven months of 1931 and 1932 shows that this trend still continues.

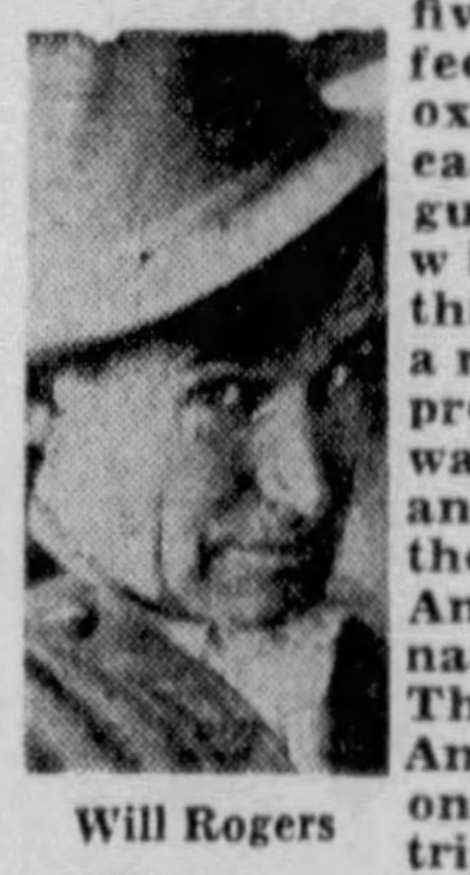
"Gross operating revenue from January to July, 1931, was $5,516,958 and for the same period of 1932, $4,374,275. Net operating revenue for the same period in 1931 was $1,125,634, while for the same period in 1932 it was $522,011.45. At that rate and in the absence of a substantial upturn in business the company's net operating revenue for 1932 will hardly exceed $250,000.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BAIRES, Oct. 18.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Had a great trip over those Andes Mountains. Our highest altitude was twenty-one thousand five hundred feet. They have oxygen tubes at each seat, but I guess I am so windy anyhow that I didn't use any. I kept prowling up forward and talking and looking with the pilot, an American boy named Wagoner. They are all American pilots on this whole trip.



Will Rogers

We could see the railroad thousands of feet below, winding its way over and through, but high tariffs between each country have killed off the trade and it's not running any more, so that's one way to help the railroads. It's just the starting of spring down here now. Flew over hundreds of miles of checkerboarded green fields like Kansas or Iowa and the fattest and biggest cattle you ever sow.

Yours, WILL.

Administration Cheers Drowned Silent Battle

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Reason we didn't hear those silent battles fought by Mr. Hoover was because of the noise made by the administration cheering itself.

How about another silent battle to lessen taxes? We will go forth to war with a first mortgage nailed to the mast and no power on earth shall reduce it.

This nation is in debt to its ears. And in case like that silence is not golden. It ain't even tin.

The government owes seventeen billion of those well-known but very shy dollars. And even the Anti-Saloon League recognizes that as a staggering sum.

How about the European debts? There's silence of the most considerate sickroom brand. The doctor is following the patient's instructions not to talk.

There comes a time when silence shrieks. Instead of stealing Silent Cal's rubberized and noiseless thunder why not give us some raucus covenants boisterously arrived at? We prefer 'em to those administration lip readings in soundproof rooms.

HAIR DYE FAILS TO SAVE GANG CHIEF'S GIRL

Blonde Goes Brunette, But Lands in Court As Dynamite 'Cook'

When Gladys Jackson, 23, read in the papers that her sweetheart, John Maug, had been taken in by the law as the leader of a murder mob, she changed her name, her address and her hair.

She explained in Central Police Court today that she had dyed her platinum locks to a chestnut color, assumed the name of Peggie Rodgers and taken a room in North Lincoln avenue because she wasn't interested in meeting up with any police.

But the police caught up with her. And in court today they accused Gladys of having been one of the dynamite "cooks" for Maug's outfit. This Gladys denied, just as the two other women held with the Maug mob have denied a similar charge.

Gladys was held for investigation, along with her landlady, Mary West, 24 of 834 North Lincoln avenue, North Side, who was charged with harboring a fugitive. Mrs. West's brother, Michael O'Donnell, 20, was cleared and discharged.

Maug and two other alleged members of his gang, C. J. Moyer and Edward Turpack, are said to have confessed the murder of Constable Vernon (Port) Moses. Shooting of Patrolman Ozeanus Walker and Constable Carl Hildebrand and 50 holdups in the city and county also have been charged to the gang.

Three Suspects Held In Market Robbery

Eugene Saldutte, 20, of 21 Welsh way; Frank Steggert, 21, of 2423 South Eighteenth street, and George Flosnick, 21, of 103 South Eleventh street, were held for court today in connection with the robbery of the market of Harry J. Heck at 1614 Lowrie street.

They were charged with pointing firearms, carrying concealed weapons and robbery. A fourth man, Frank Sterzinger, 23, of 1300 Goettman street, who had planned to rob the place with the others, police said, was held for court as an accessory.

SHOT, SURVIVES 3-STORY FALL

A suspected bandit was in Passavant Hospital today with bullet wounds in the chest and arms and a companion was held by Center Avenue police as a result of a holdup late yesterday of a chain store at 1103 Wylie avenue.

John Garvey, 29, of 605 Ridge avenue, rear, married and the father of three small children, was shot by Patrolman Keith Hill while running over the roof of 1223 Gilmore way, police said. A bullet knocked him from the roof three stories to the pavement. His condition, however, was not serious, according to hospital attaches.

Garvey's alleged companion, Richard Thompson, 23, who gave his address as 314 Lawn street, was arrested an hour later in the former's home where Detectives Robert Best, Albert Barry, George Best and Dan Owen awaited him. Thompson was nabbed when he walked into the Garvey apartment while the sleuths were searching it.

Thompson and Garvey are ex-convicts, according to detectives.

WILD CARGO -:- By FRANK BUCK With EDWARD ANTHONY

"THE ANOA NEVER GROWS OVER THREE FEET HIGH—WEIGHS ABOUT 200 LBS. BUT CAN WHIP ANIMALS MORE THAN THREE TIMES HIS WEIGHT—THE ONE WE CAPTURED WAS LATER KNOWN AS "LITTLE TOUGH GUY" AND AFRAID OF NOTHING"
Hal Coffman

Sweet Potatoes Used to Lure Powerful Pygmy Anoa Into Corral

Frank Buck, king of the wild animal catchers, has been commissioned to catch a pair of anoas—pygmy water buffaloes—which exist on the Island of Celebes. Here's his story of the difficult task he faced.

CHAPTER V.

The animal kingdom, like the world of humans, has its midgets—miniatures that frequently are more interesting than the larger species to which they are related.

In the many years I have devoted to collecting living creatures of all kinds for the zoos, circuses and pet shops I have encountered three animal midgets of outstanding interest. These are the anoa or pygmy water buffalo, the chevrotain or mouse deer, and the honey bear. Each a pocket edition of a larger species, they comprise a trio that has never ceased to fascinate me. As the honey bear plays the principal role in a later chapter, I shall confine myself in these paragraphs to the other two.

Perhaps the most arresting single fact concerning the anoa is that he is the strongest animal in the world for his size. The smallest of the bovines—a full-grown male standing about three feet high and weighing not much over 200 pounds—this little-known animal is capable of prodigious feats of strength.

To give you an idea of how much of a pygmy the anoa is, let me cite that it is not unusual for the Asiatic water buffalo, of which he is a pocket edition, to attain a weight of well over a ton.

A DIFFICULT TASK

This tiny member of the buffalo family is brownish black in color, with a small white blaze on the throat. As the males grow older they get darker, eventually taking on a coal blackness. This does not apply to the females (who, by the way, rarely reach a height exceeding two and a half feet); these ladies retain their original color. The anoa's horns stand up straighter than those of the regular water buffalo and though much smaller they are nevertheless formidable weapons.

About 10 years ago I found myself preparing to leave for the Island of Celebes, a Dutch possession located due east of Borneo. This is the only place in the world where the anoa is to be found. I had an order for a pair of these odd miniatures from Dr. William T. Hornaday, then director of the New York Zoological Park. Dr. Hornaday was ever on the lookout for the rare and unusual. A live anoa had never been seen in America and it was his ambition to add the first available specimens to the fine collection of bovines on exhibit in the famous zoo which he headed for so many years.

I accepted the order with misgivings. Whenever I am asked to bring to this country an animal that has never been seen on our shores my first reaction is, "Thanks for the compliment." My second is one in which my pleasure over the faith displayed in my ability to deliver the goods is suddenly submerged in a sea of doubts.

It is not that I lack confidence but that I am keenly aware of the difficulties attendant upon securing and delivering—alive—a little-known species.

Before leaving Singapore, my Asiatic headquarters, for Celebes, I thought it wouldn't be a bad idea to determine just where on this big island (which

12½-CENT RIDE GROUP SEEKS MEMBERS

Opposition to Plan Likely, Railways Official Says

Delivery of the first bus expected next week with the initial unit of 12 buses anticipated within 30 days, was reported today by leaders as community groups speeded plans to complete organization of the citizens' co-operative bus system designed to provide approximately 12½-cent transportation to thwart the existing excessive 25-cent fare.

Because it is co-operative the line is exempt from public service regulation, its sponsors say.

OPPOSITION LOOMS

That the movement will encounter opposition in its efforts to establish cheaper bus transportation free from commission supervision was expressed by Thomas Fitzgerald, vice-president and general manager of the Pittsburgh Railways Company and Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. Declining to comment on the question of whether the commission would have jurisdiction over a co-operative membership operation, Fitzgerald said:

"While the point has not been discussed by company officials, it would seem that such broad transportation on city streets would necessarily be under some form of regulation. We'll take whatever action that seems advisable for the protection of the mass transportation service of the community.

"Any severe competition impairing the revenues of the railways company may have disastrous effect on the existing unified system and corresponding effect upon the public welfare."

Developments announced by leaders of the citizens' organization today included:

Plans are being made to call community mass meetings to organize groups for membership in the Association of Communities.

MODERN TYPE BUS

The order for the first bus has been placed with the Hackney Brothers Body Company, of Wilson, N. C., calling for a 21-passenger coach of lighter construction than now used here, but providing engineering innovations offering comfortable transportation with economic operation.

First route operation will be from Wilkinsburg to Downtown Pittsburgh, via East Liberty, giving five-minute service during peak hours and 15-minute service during the day. Approval by the Public Service Commission will not be necessary, it is held.

Weekly membership cards will be issued from headquarters established in each community and open form 6 a. m. until midnight.

Unlimited number of rides will be granted with each membership, according to plans. With the growth of the association's routes, which are eventually expected to reach to Beaver Falls, to New Kensington and to Washington, members will be allowed to travel to all points on the same membership cards. No fares will be accepted on the buses nor will any form of transfer be issued.

CONTRACT MADE

The association leaders already have contracted with the Community Transportation Company, a recently formed Delaware corporation, to provide the bus transportation. Organizers of the transportation firm included Frank Ellis, of Wilkinsburg; Edgar Myers, Squirrel Hill; E. A. Reichard, Wilkinsburg; Lowden L. Campbell, East End, and Henry Shor.

Reichard and Campbell, accompanied by C. V. Shoup, secretary of the Allied Boards of Trade and appointed executive director to effect organization of the association's community groups, visited Raleigh, N. C., over the week-end to inspect the type buses being bought.

Expressing satisfaction with progress being made by the leaders, Reichard said:

"This movement will serve a distinct need. Business and civic leaders are showing wonderful support. The association idea is a development evolved from thoughtful study that was the aftermath of the Sun-Telegraph's revelations on other cities being furnished cheaper."

Ex-Constable, It Seems, Can Use That $1.50

In 1913, the World War was just around the corner, and C. C. Stewart was constable in the Fourth District of Plum Township.

In those days, constables received $1.50 for more or less patrolling the polling place on election day. And for that September primary, Stewart received the customary certificate which, when presented to the County Treasurer, would bring him his $1.50.

That was 19 years ago.

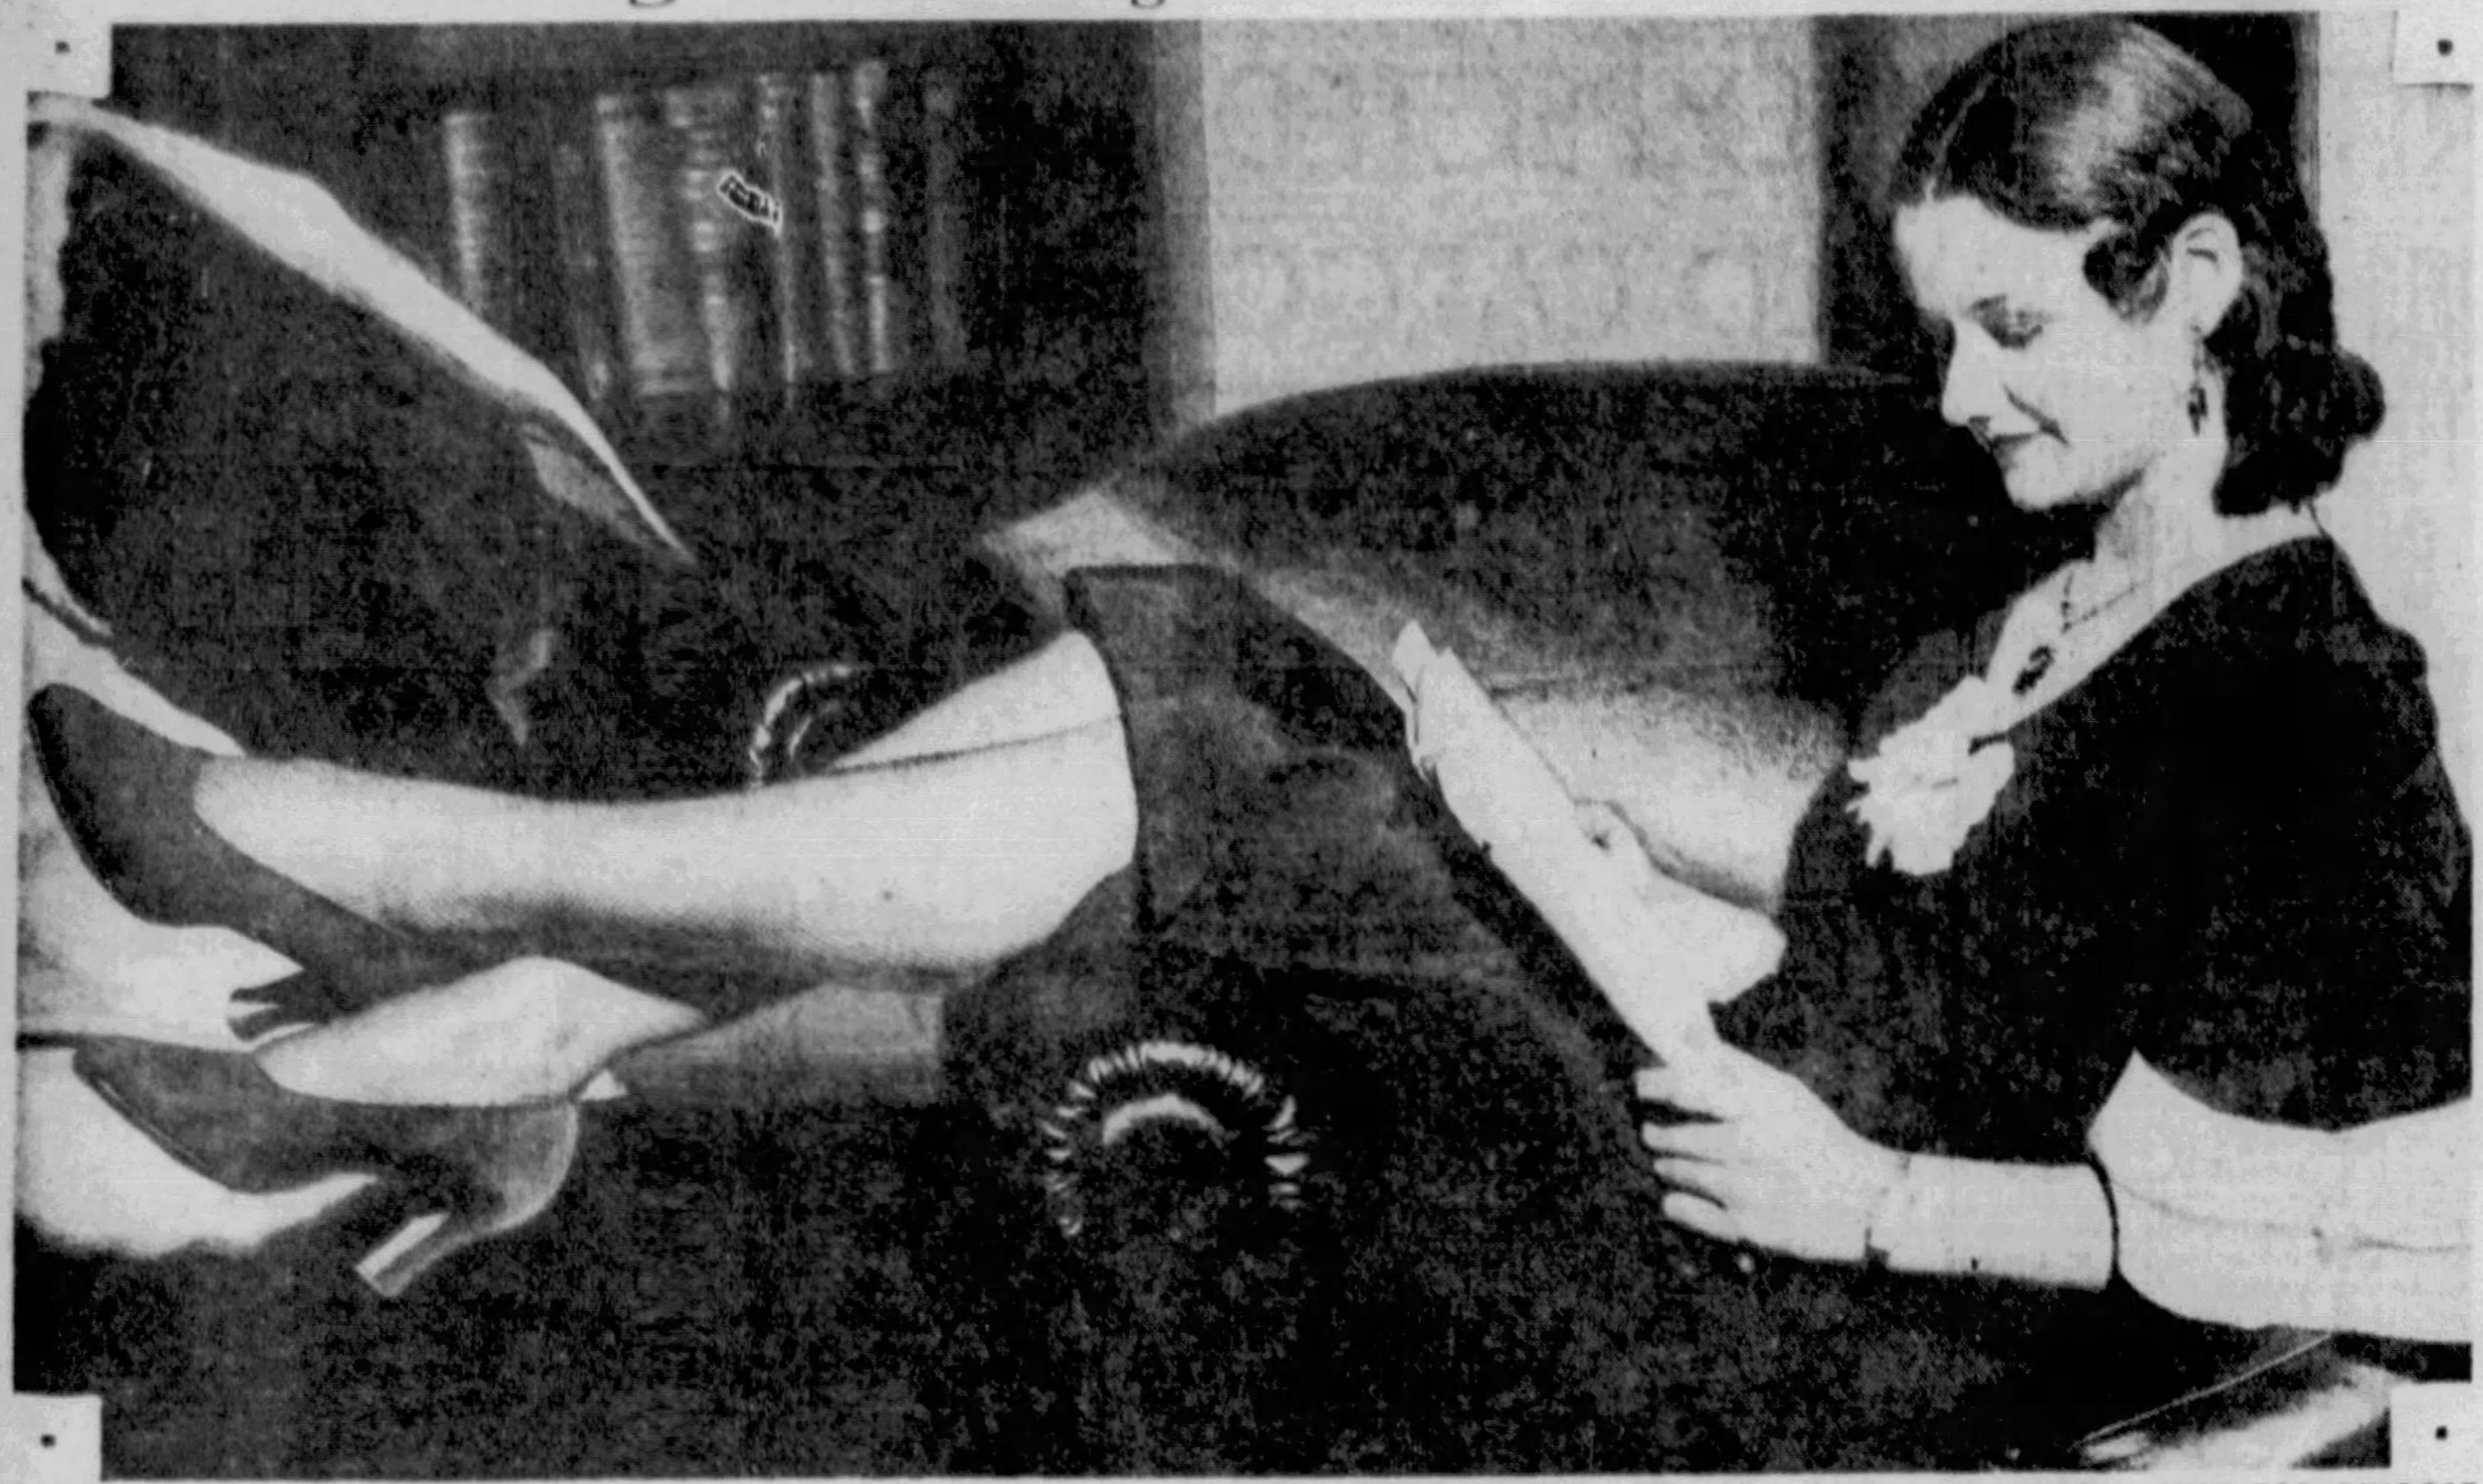
Today Stewart strolled into the County Controller's office and asked for his money. What's more, he had the certificate with him. What's still more, there was nothing wrong with his demand, although perhaps a trifle late.

Stewart explained that, shortly after the election, he had moved to Butler County and that this was his second visit to Pittsburgh since 1913. But lately he has returned to Plum Township. And he's driving his wife to the city daily because she's a juror.

This afternoon the County Commissioners, more accustomed to dealing with thousands, will ponder whether Stewart should be paid.

WELFARE FUND CUTS NEW CAMPAIGN GOAL TO $2,480,159

Convalescing in Pittsburgh As She Awaits Her Divorce



MISS NANCY LINK, 21 . . . . . CONVALESCING FROM A DISLOCATED SHOULDER AS SHE AWAITS A HEARING IN HER PITTSBURGH SUIT FOR DIVORCE

MILLIONS LESS THAN 1932 APPEAL

The Welfare Fund will ask private pockets of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County to furnish $2,480,159.98 as their share in efforts to provide for the needy during 1933. The sum is less than half of that which was asked for this year.

Final approval of the proposed budget by the Welfare Fund Council late yesterday ended for another year a threatened breakup of the fund, due to disputes over curtailments of agency budgets.

The drastic cut—private solicitations for 1933 will be $3,041,040.10 below 1932—was made possible by anticipated federal and state aid for relief of the destitute. Very little is provided in the new estimate for unemployment relief. Social service, preservation of morale and reserve funds to handle emergencies account for most of the 1933 figure.

ADMINISTRATION COST

For administration of relief funds nothing is provided.

Decision of the Fund to omit this item from its estimated expense for next year was announced some weeks ago when it was revealed that a $500,000 deficit was impending for 1932 because of expense of administering public funds for which no administration percentage was provided.

Present deficit stands at $269,663.38; most of this is expected to be cut by curtailment in expenditures of agencies until January 1.

A committee representing the fund was in Harrisburg today to consult with Gov. Pinchot on the possibility of including administration expenses in allotment of further public funds to Pittsburgh and Allegheny County.

INDIVIDUAL ITEMS

Individual items of interest on the new budget include Allegheny County Emergency Association, $300,000; Family Welfare Association, $274,293.84; Public Health Nursing Association, $150,000; Federation of Jewish Philanthrophies, $358,736.04; Conference of Catholic Charities, $97,168.65.

'It' Girl Seeks Fame As 'Grown Up' Actress

CLARA BOW, CAN SHE BECOME A GREAT DRAMATIC ACTRESS?

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—Clara Bow dreams of becoming a great dramatic actress.

And with the characteristic energy and forcefulness that made her famous as the "It" girl of motion pictures, she plans to strive in that direction.

Her "comeback" is a permanent one, she declared today.

The picture in which she has been working, the first since a nervous breakdown caused her to retire from the screen, is nearing completion. Said Clara:

"I've been delighted ever since I started work again six weeks ago. I'll make some more pictures if I can get the right kind of stories, but I want more dramatic roles."

The "it" girl of the screen still is red headed, but declared that would not interfere with her dreams to play highly dramatic and emotional roles.

The "new Clara" is on the studio lot from 8:30 a. m until 6 p. m., and is taking her "comeback" in all seriousness.

With her husband, Rex Bell, cowboy film actor, she lives in an unpretentious residence near the studio. She declared:

"I want to be a 'grown up' actress, and not an 'it' girl all my film career."

AD VALUE TOLD TO CREDIT MEN

There is nothing on earth that advertising cannot move, in the opinion of Frederick A. Weston, advertising director of the Sun-Telegraph, whose address on "Advertising—a Definite Means of Improving Retail Credit," together with election of officers and directors, marked last night's meeting of the Retail Credit Men's Association in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Because of Mr. Weston's absence, the prepared address was read by George M. Rowland, Jr., manager of the newspaper's consumer research department. Mr. Weston emphasized that the credit manager has marvelous things to sell to the public in the operation of his department. He said prompt paying customers buy more than those who are negligent, and that the advertiser can today buy more reader attention than for a long time.

Officers chosen by the credit men were: President, J. B. Lindberg; vice presidents, J. A. Brown, Felix Weil and R. W. Phillips; secretary, J. R. Truesdale; treasurer, David H. Goldman; directors, A. N. Fraser, J. L. Gillespie, D. Laifer, W. G. Taylor and Mrs. A. R. Joyce.

Col. Franklin Blackstone, chairman of the committee on nominations, presented the committee's report. Mr. Lindberg, elected president for a second term, is credit manager for Spear & Company.

PROBE PENSION CHARGES BY LUTHERANS

Board Scans Millions Spent to Provide Pastors' Fund

Charges by former State Senator, Judge Ellwood M. Rabenold, of New York, before the United Lutheran Church in America, meeting in convention in Philadelphia, that the Board of Ministerial Pensions and Relief of that church is guilty of fraud and deliberate malfeasance, are likely to result in the convention directing the investment commission to handle church investments, Attorney Robin B. Wolf said today.

Attorney Wolf who is a member of the proposed investment commission says the board invested about $3,000,000 the last few years and some of the mortgages placed in Philadelphia "went sour." Wolf said that the original plan of the church which campaigned for between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 was to pay ministers, conditioned on age and disability, $50 a month, but had not been able to reach that figure.

He said at the former meeting of the church convention in Milwaukee an investment commission was named to work out plans for supervision of investment funds of all boards, with the door left open to any other institution of the church to take advantage of the plan. The commission was to plan for a centralizing all agencies of the church, such as the American Missions, Foreign Missions, Board of Ministerial Pensions and Relief and other boards and institutions having funds for investments.

The plan has been prepared for submission to the convention. Under the proposed commission, Wolf says, the commission would represent the combined judgment as a group against that of a single board, this commission including bankers, lawyers and others.

COLDS GO THROUGH 3 STAGES!

And They are Far Easier Stopped in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily passes through three stages—the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. Relief is twice as easy in the first stage.

For prompt relief take a couple of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine immediately upon catching cold. This will usually expel the cold overnight and thus prevent the spread of the infection within your system.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is effective because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels. Kills the cold germs and fever in the system. Relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is absolutely safe to take. Contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. It is regarded the world over as the standard cold tablet. Comes in handy, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. For sale in every drug store in America. Make it your first-aid in all cases of colds and grippe.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

-With-

Patricia Pitt

One of the most stately ceremonies I know of is a high nuptial mass in a cathedral. This morning the fashionables of Pittsburgh attended a notable wedding in stately St. Paul's Cathedral, the first large wedding there since the Diebold-Steitz ceremony in June.

The bride today is charming Virginia Eberhardt Murphy, daughter of the Bert L. Murphys, of Murray avenue, and the bridegroom is Dr. William L. Mullins, son of Darragh Mullins, of the Schenley Apartments.

Cibotium ferns and crotons and chrysanthemums in colorful autoumn shades decorated the alter. The same autumn shades were repeated in the boquets of the bride's attendants and in the decorations of the Pittsburgh Field Club, where a wedding breakfast and a reception were held.

Ivory Satin

Shimmering ivory satin formed the gown of the bride who was given in marriage by her father. Rose point lace from her mother's wedding gown formed the sleeve from the elbow to the wrist with flaring cuffs of lace over the satin. The long train of satin fell from the draped skirt. Her flowers were calla lilies.

Mrs. William N. Steitz, the former Edna Diebold, as matron of honor, and Betty Murphy, as her sister's maid of honor, wore picturesque gowns of cappucine chiffon velvet, fashioned with brief puffed sleeves, copper brown velvet hats, long brown suede gloves, and carried chrysanthemums in coppery tones.

The mother of the bride chose a gown of fuschia velvet, beaded in white, and a hat to match, and had a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Men in Party

Acting as best man was James J. Flannery, III, and as ushers Dr. Harold Kipp, Dr. Ralph Lynch, Dr. Kevin Reeves, D. Meredith Reed, William Siebler and Bert L. Murphy, Jr.

Crotons, cibotium ferns and autumn-hued chrysanthemums centered the horseshoe bridal table, with smaller chrysanthemums in vases decking the table itself.

The reception was limited to the bridal party, members of the two families and a few intimate friends.

The ceremony will be simple, taking place in the Tim home. There'll be a small bridal party, but it hasn't been named yet.

Mrs. C. J. Conrad was matron of honor, Miss Margery Hewitt, a cousin of the bride, maid of honor, and Miss Marguerite Durham, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. All wore velvet gowns in rich autumn shades, and carried dahlias.

Wallace Dodd, of Cleveland, was best man, and Crawford J. Conrad, William J. Nolan and Gardner Vose, of Cleveland, were ushers.

The mother of the bride wore blue peau de soie and a shoulder corsage of talisman roses, and the mother of the bridegroom, orchid triple-sheer georgette and a shoulder corsage of orchids.

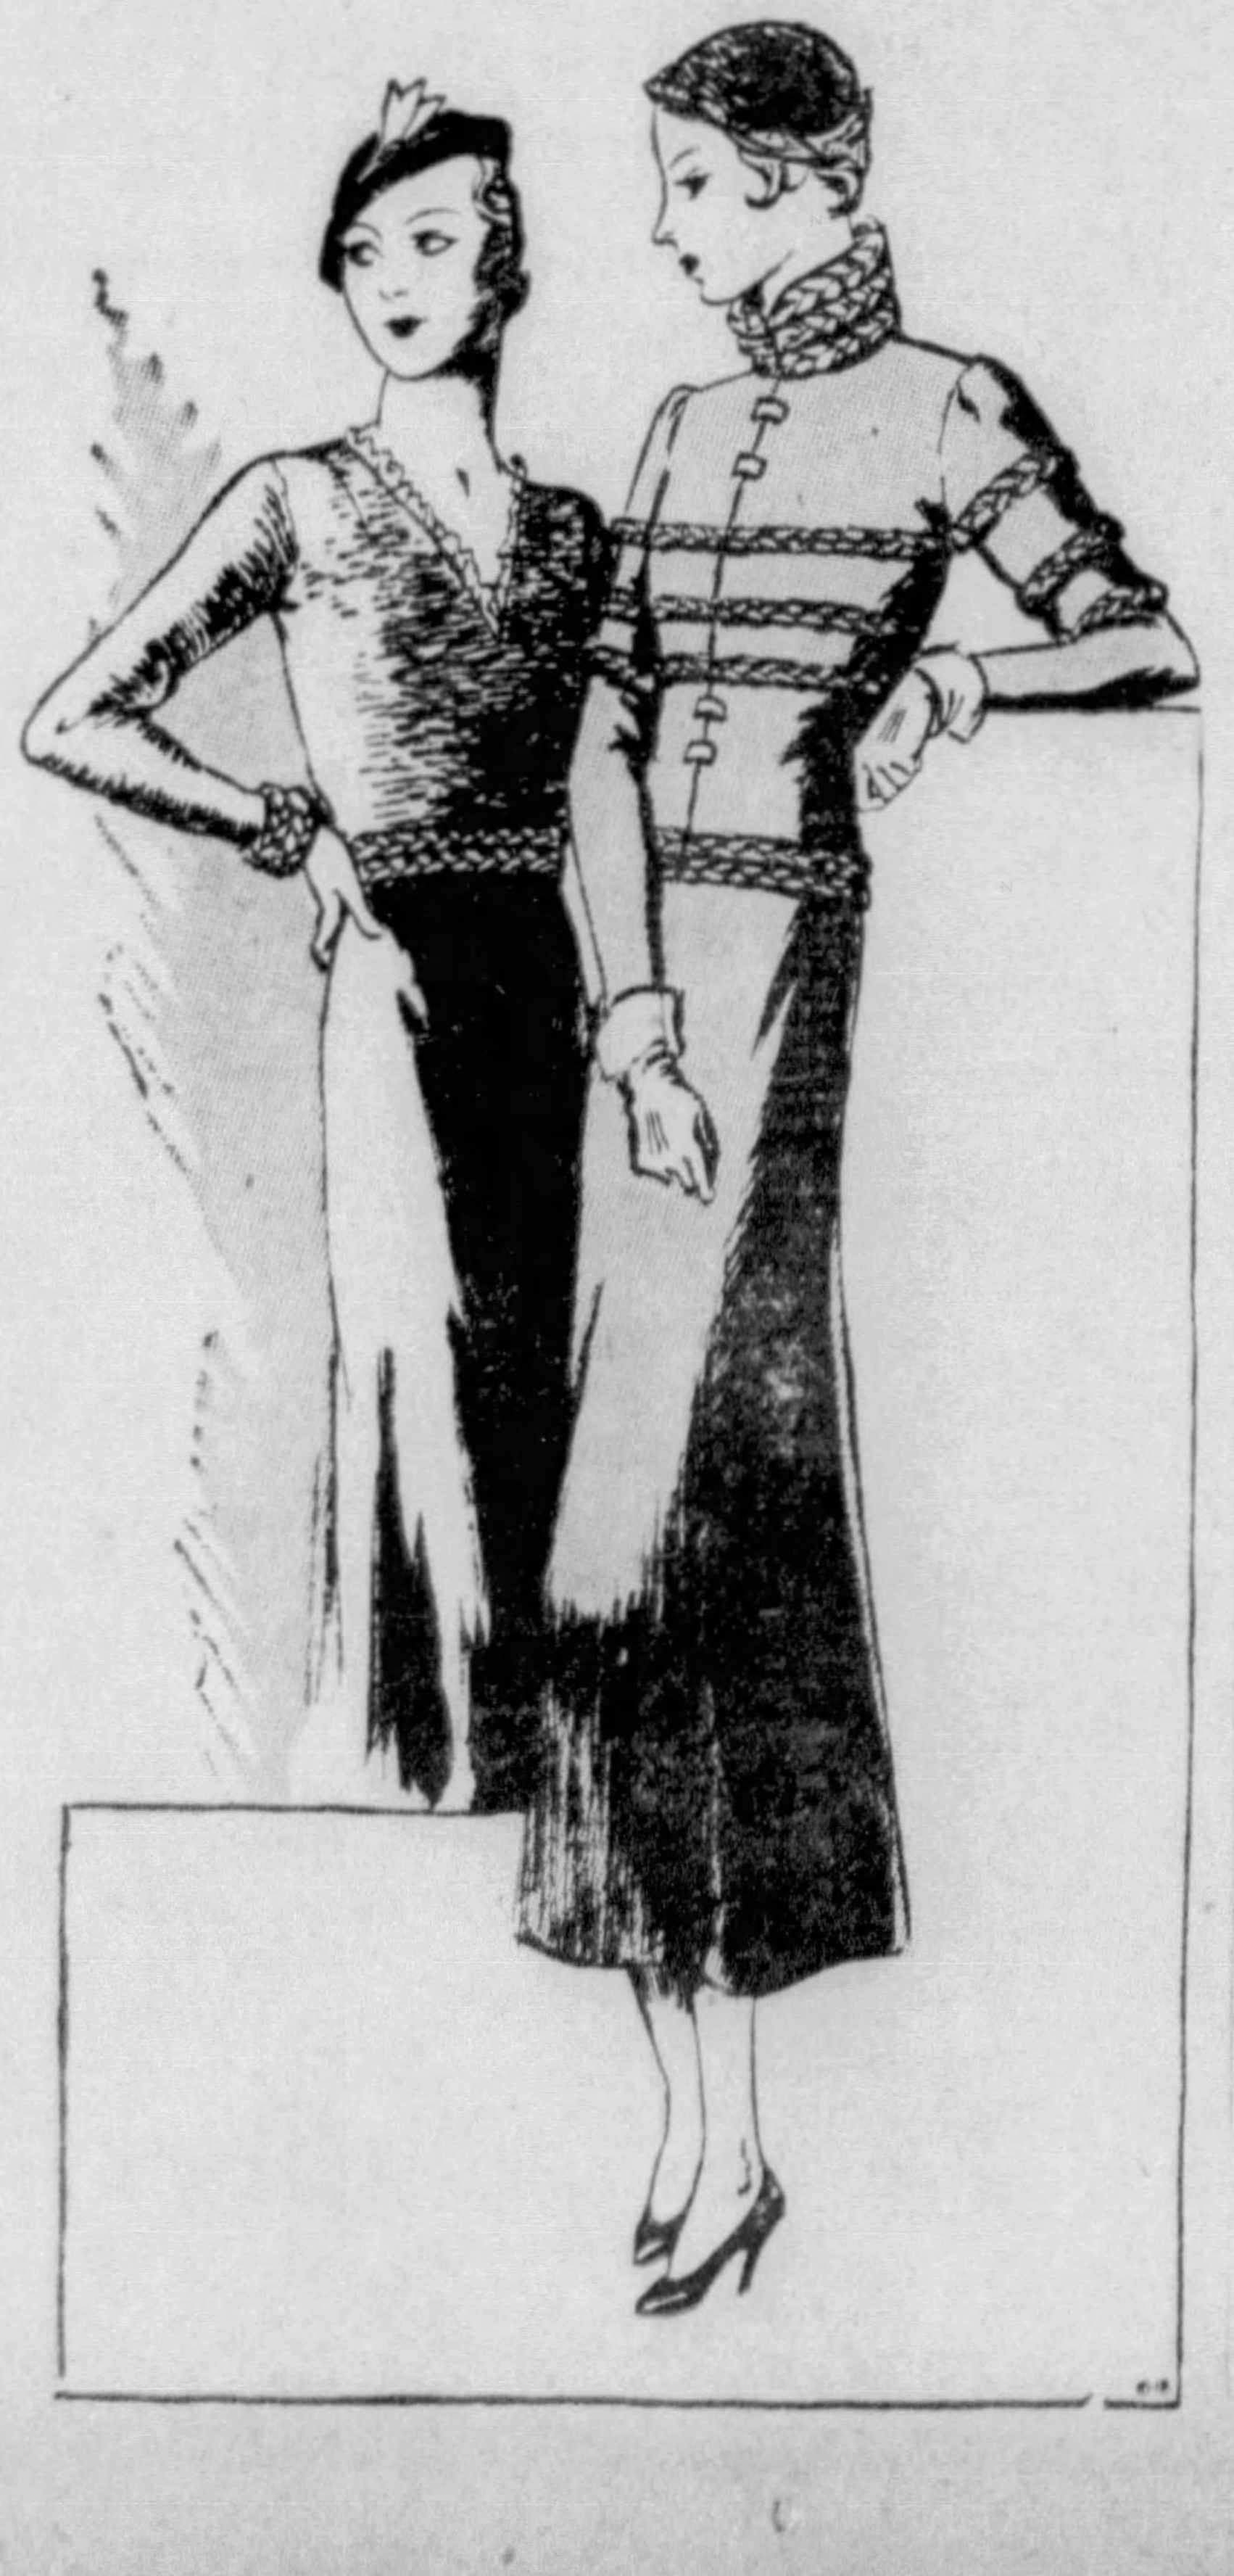
DESIGNERS FAVOR ELABORATE TRIMMINGS FOR 1933 FROCKS

—Sketched in Paris—



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARS, Oct. 18.—The day of the no-trimmings rule among Paris fashions is over, and 1933 dresses and suits, with French signatures, are sometimes even elaborately trimmed; such elaboration is allowed this year because the cut of the clothes and the silhouettes are so strikingly simple.

TODAY'S SKETCH has been chosen because it demonstrates how Paris uses its trimmings not only as decorations, but to effect certain lines—the broadened shoulders, the narrowed hips and the lowered waistlines that are current favorites.

THE SUIT is from Chantal, and, unlike the usual colorful costumes credited to Chantal, is in severe navy blue and white.

THE SUIT itself is of a new material—a wool crepe, whose crepe texture gives the effect of little squares in the weave. The braids which form the trimming bands are made of coarse wool yarn. Note how, on the jacket, they are placed at the hem, to give a second, lowered waistline, while the natural waistline is marked by the fitting of the jacket. Bands of braids across the front, back and sleeves give a widened effect just below the shoulders, and three bands of braiding form a little upstanding collar.

BRAIDS ALSO form the belt to the skirt and the cuffs on the knitted blue blouse. There is a single touch of white in the organdie frill which outlines the V-shaped neckline.

American Paris Club Plans Musicals

By HELEN WILLS MOODY

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

PARIS.—The Ritz Sunday night gala dinners have been resumed for the winter, and present gay and colorful evenings, with dancing and special entertainment.

Mrs. E. Berry Wall, who is the first vice president of the American Women's Club in Paris, is arranging as usual, for the winter, the Wednesday morning musicals. It will be the ninth season, and is arousing as much interest as ever among the members. Some famous artists have appeared, among them Mlle. Lily Pons, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York. She made her Paris debut some seasons ago at one of the Wednesday morning musicals of the American Women's Club.

Lunching at Ciro's recently were seen the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, and her brother, the Grand Duke Dimitri of Russia. The Grand Duchess was wearing a very simple turban in black, and a tailored dress with touches at the neck and wrist of gray and black.

Also lunching at Ciro's were Mrs. Clarence Gould and Miss Jean McKelvey. Mrs. Gould was wearing a black coat with silver fox collar and a small felt hat. It had a tiny turn-down brim on one side and a little fantastic feather in white, black and red placed high on the other side.

Miss McKelvey was wearing a black velvet turban with a jeweled clip. Her black coat had a large triangular collar, removable, in light gray fox.

At the Cafe de Paris, another well known restaurant, were seen Miss Pearl White, wearing a black crepe dress and a tiny black turban. Also Miss Florence Walton, in a black velvet hat, and black velvet dress with a white satin draped bodice. Also at the Cafe de Paris, was Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the famous French tennis player. She is very tanned, having spent two months in the sun on the Cote D'Azur this summer.

The opening night of the smart restaurant, "Bagdad," presented an animated and colorful scene, with the lovely dresses and jewels of the diners and dancers reflected in the multitudinous mirrors. The restaurant while not actually large in floor space, gives one the impression of having enormous distances because of the arrangement of the mirrors. There are two orchestras—one for foxtrot and one for tango and rumba.

is over 300 miles long and almost as wide at its widest point) the anoa made his home. Not until I started making my inquiries did I realize how little is known—even among the animal traders of Malaya—about these curious freaks. The first three men I consulted—real experts who had dealt in animals all their lives—all agreed that the anoa was to be found only in Celebes but each named a different part of the island as the creature's grazing ground. The fourth, who, it developed, knew nothing at all about the species, thought it best to give any old answer instead of none, and advised me to try Borneo.

I resorted to a very old and simple method. On the way to Java, my first stop en route to Macassar, the principal port of Celebes, I made inquiries of everyone who looked sociable in an effort to find a person who could give me some reliable information. These inquiries yielded nothing. However, on the way from Surabaya, Java, to Macassar I learned from a Eurasian ship steward that there was a Dutch resident on the west coast of Celebes who, while traveling on the same boat, had mentioned a strange little animal — a sort of dwarf buffalo—that was to be found in his district. Everyone thought that this was an animal the Dutch resident had seen in his cups, and there had been much joking about it.

PHOTOGRAPHIC PROOF

The more irreverent passengers, according to the steward, pressed the Dutchman for information as to whether one could not also find in Celebes a pygmy rhinoceros—and a diminutive elephant that could be worn as a watch charm. The resident finally silenced his hecklers by producing a picture of his midget buffalo, which, as described by the steward, convinced me that I would be taking no great chance in trying the west coast first. I have run down fine specimens of all kinds on the strength of slimmer tips than this.

I put in at Macassar and from there made my way up the West Coast on a small inter-island trading schooner. It developed on my arrival that the steward's information had been correct. The anoa was fairly well known on the West Coast and was believed to be moderately plentiful in certain districts about 50 miles inland. With half a dozen experienced native animal boys to help me, I set out for the interior.

After following several false leads and wasting three days in fruitless wanderings, we located the grazing ground of a herd of anoas. As there was no precedent for the method of trapping them, I decided as an experment to build a big corral and try to lure some of the wary animals into it. The corral, built of three-inch stakes of bamboo, the strongest fencing material in that part of the world, covered an area of nearly half an acre and required several days of hard work by myself and all my helpers. When it was done, I prepared the bait which I hoped would lure my prizes into the trap.

Carefully I strewed along the ground leading to the corral's open swinging door a mixture of sweet potatoes, padi rice, tapioca root and green grass, a combination guaranteed to tempt any bovine. For the first few days there was no result. Each day I patiently renewed the feed and spread a faint trace of it far out into the edge of the meadows. On the fifth day one of the natives reported some anoa footprints nearby. But it took us two weeks to make our first catch—a fine, husky young male. Ten days later we landed a female. Our efforts during the next fortnight or so to pick up a few more specimens were unavailing. A drought had set in and the herd started migrating to better feeding grounds.

MALE SHOWS STRENGTH

Our female pygmy gave us no trouble at all. She behaved like a lady. The male, however —who later became known as Little Tough Guy—resented his captivity and at regular intervals tried to do something about it. Head lowered, he would come charging at the bamboo fence, seemingly hopeful of butting it to pieces. At that, he succeeded in shaking loose some of the strong three-inch uprights, which, driven into the ground and lashed together with rattan peelings, formed the wall of his prison. This was quite a feat for so small an animal.

The next step was to drive each of our captives into a native-made log cage, the approach to which was strewn with the same kind of feed we had used before. Hunger weakens judgment and our pygmies fell for the device again, the lady being quite docile—even seemingly perfectly content—about it. Little Tough Guy, however, didn't like his new home at all and lost no time in making clear what he thought of cage life. Again he tried to butt his way to freedom, snorting furiously as he charged the logs that held him captive. I assigned two boys to watch him in shifts and more than once they had to reinforce the rattan lashings, these tough fibers giving way before the repeated onslaughts of the unwilling prisoner.

TRAPS BIRDS

Little Tough Guy finally began to calm down. He remained restless and sullen throughout the journey back to Singapore but he had the good grace to leave off trying to batter his cage apart.

It hardly paid me to make the trip just for the anoas. Before leaving Macassar, which is the great shipping center for scores of small islands of the Malay Archipelago, I decided to pick up a number of birds for which I had orders. To Macassar, birds of all kinds—including the rarest and most valuable are brought in by traders and this was a perfect opportunity to do a little shopping.

By the time I was ready to leave Macassar for Singapore I had assembled a remarkable collection that included fine examples of the yellow-backed lory, the Papuan lory, the racquet-tailed parrakeet (with its curious tail that resembles a tennis racquet), the eclectus parrot (the only species of bird known to science whose females are more highly colored than the males) and the Victoria crown pigeon, the largest and most beautiful member of the pigeon family.

In those days—several years before I established my sheds and shelters in the nearby suburb of Katong—I maintained a compound in the Orchard Road section of Singapore. Here I deposited Little Tough Guy, along with the other specimens I had brought out of Celebes.

Listening In—Evans With Denny. Kreisler, Jeritza. Butterworth's Brogans

That good lady, Luck, was with Evan Evans the other day when he was named soloist with Jack Denny's orchestra to be featured in a new series of programs scheduled to open via CBS Thursday, October 27. Evans was sitting in the Columbia reception room, unaware that an audition was being staged to select Denny's soloist, when the maestro himself rushed out and took the baritone in tow with the comment, "You're No. 15." So, a bit nonplussed and completely unprepared, Evans sang one song chosen by Denny—and emerged as the winner.

Mr. Evans

Fritz Kreisler and Maria Jeritza, both of whom arrived from Europe on the S. S. Bremen yesterday, are preparing for extensive concert tours under NBC Artists Service management. Armand Tokatyan, Metropolitan tenor, also plans a tour under the same management. He arrives in New York from Cherbourg today on the S. S. Ile de France.

Those Showboat comedians, Molasses 'n' January, give an authentic southern flavor to the Thursday night broadcasts. They both were born in the south—one in Texas and the other in Georgia . . . Incidentally, they're really those two popular blackface stars, Pat Padgett and Dick Malone.

Ed Wynn himself couldn't have been more concerned over the loss of his famous shoes than Wallace Butterworth was when he discovered that his comfy pair of brogans, which he'd worn in the studios for the last year, had disappeared from his locker. He's offered a reward.

Raymond Paige, musical director of the Omar Khayyam series, has three batons—a light one for popular music, a medium weight for semi-classics and a heavy one for symphonic works. . . .

Comedian Fred Allen, who inaugurates a new series over a Columbia chain Sunday night, will have his wife, Portland Hoffa, Queenie Smith, Sheila Barrett, the Randall Sisters, Roy Atwell, Ann Leaf, Charles Carlile and Mary Lou Dix as co-stars on the opening program.

Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, currently appearing in vaudeville in Chicago, have just signed another contract with CBS, extending their services for another year.

Ted Husing, in a rush these days between football broadcasts and film shorts, reports a tragic fumble. He's lost the famous slouch hat he always wore at the mike. He hopes that some honest person will return it, and says that although its intrinsic value is zero, so is the temperature atop the press boxes of the various football stadia.

PITT HOLDS LEAD IN BIG TEN GAMES

VICTORIOUS IN TWO out of three battles with Big Ten teams in past seasons, the Pitt Panthers will face Ohio State's formidable forces in the big game at the Stadium Saturday with strong hopes of adding to their lead. In the two tussles won over Western Conference opponents, Pitt's victims were Ohio State and Iowa. Sam Willaman's gridders were defeated here in 1929, 18 to 2. Iowa was beaten in Iowa City last year, 20 to 0. The Buckeyes evened their score in Columbus in 1930, 16 to 7.

Sam Willaman

This year, Pitt and Ohio State appear to be more evenly matched than in either of their previous meetings. Both have fast, rugged lines, and four-man-power backfields. Willaman's eleven can match Sutherland's outfit ball carrier for ball carrier, passer for passer, pass receiver for pass receiver, and interferer for interferer. In Carroll, the Buckeyes have a match for Pitt's Heller or Weinstock in ball-carrying ability. Hinchman and Reider, opposing captains, are on a par at receiving passes. Both Heller and Cramer are adepts at throwing them, and Hogan and Vuchinich are about equally good blockers.

IN ADDITION, BOTH teams will be able to go out and play every-day football, as neither will be keyed up to such a pitch that bad or over-eager play may result. For the game comes in a bad spot for each of them, as Pitt must face Notre Dame the following Saturday and Ohio must meet Northwestern.

So there won't be a chance of one team's being keyed to a higher point than the other for this particular battle. Neither can make it the sole objective of the season. The winner of Saturday's struggle probably will be the school that has the better team, not the one that has prepped the harder.

DOWN SOUTH THEY have their own way of dealing with the attempt of college athletic heads to stop the broadcasting of football games. Alabama, for instance, has taken steps toward frustrating the plan by making it illegal.

There is a bill before the Legislature there that would prohibit any state supported college from interfering with the broadcasting of any of its games, and giving every radio station the right to broadcast gridiron contests as often as desired.

FOOTBALL VETERANS HOLD that a minor team does not mind being beaten by a strong major team. It prefers a defeat at the hands of a strong major outfit to a beating by an eleven of its own ranking. It would gladly lose to a major team for the distinction it sees in being placed on the schedule. Harry Salsinger recalls that Knute Rockne told him a year before the death of the famous Notre Dame coach: "The toughest job I have is making schedules. These coaches drive me mad with their insistent demands for games. Why, if I scheduled all the minor teams that want to play Notre Dame, I could play about one hundred games every year and be fairly sure of winning them all. So we have limited our schedule to major opposition. You have to lose so many games in a career, and I'd much rather lose them to major elevens than to minor teams. It gets you nothing to play a minor team unless you lose, and then it's terrible."

Bill Urbanski

ANOTHER BRAVE WHO is not on the trading block, Manager Bill McKechnie wants it understood, is Shortstop Bill Urbanski. The latter's name has been mentioned in several stories about contemplated deals, but McKechnie has hung up the "nothing doing" sign.

"We're keeping Urbanski, you can be sure," the Wilkinsburg skipper declared. "All that talk about his being traded is foolish. We're building up, not tearing down. Urbanski rated as the best or next best shortstop in the National League last season. Some ranked Dick Bartell ahead of him, but many others did not concur. Where could we get anybody to fill his place who would be anywhere near so good?"

It is said that one of the reasons why the Giants did not do so well last season was that there were some players on the club who resented the appointmnt of Bill Terry as manager to succeed John McGraw. That's why Terry decided to do a big job of housecleaning.

It has been suggested that there may be a possibility of the same kind of trouble for Joe Cronin in Washington. But Clark Griffith knows what he is doing, and if there is any cause for fearing anything of that sort it's a good bet that the possible disturbers will be playing elsewhere in 1933.

THIRTEEN out of 19 minor leagues that started the 1932 baseball season managed to weather the storm. Among those to blow up were such famous old-timers as the Three-I, Eastern and Cotton States. The others were the Southeastern, Interstate and Arizona-Texas. The survivors were the American, Southern and Western Associations, and the International, Pacific Coast, Western, Texas, Central, New York-Pennsylvania, Piedmont, Middle Atlantic, Mississippi Valley and Nebraska State leagues.

Non-stop boxing has been introduced in England as the newest idea in the Queensberry line. The sponsor and promoter is Jack Bloomfield, former light heavyweight champion of Great Britain. He has leased the Pavilion Theater, in London's Whitechapel, and every Sunday afternoon, from 2 to 6 o'clock, those who pay the price of admission can watch dozens of young fighters continually punching one another.

Bloomfield says, however, that his main object is to encourage the youthful brigade. He invites all lads with fistic ambitions, pays their expenses, and provides them with boxing kits if they have none. Capable judges look the boys over, and frankly express their opinions as to whether or not they have a chance to succeed in the ring.

THIS FORMER BRITISH champ, who appeared in a number of bouts in the United States, will be recalled as the man Tommy Gibbons flattened in three rounds at Wembley Stadium, London, in 1924, in an international show that was a big financial flop.

Bloomfield was perhaps the only fighter ever to ruin his own career by winning a bout. In attempting to pick up Bombardier Wells after knocking him cold he suffered an injury that necessitated several operations, and from the effects of these he never fully recovered.

Ben Jeby

THOUGH FRANK BATTAGLIA was held to a draw by Chick Devlin while Ben Jeby was knocking out Paul Pirrone in the middleweight championship eliminations last week, fistic dopesters still believe that Battaglia will be Jeby's opponent in the title final next month. Jeby watched Battaglia closely in his training bouts with sparring partners and also during the Devlin fight. An odd circumstance was that though Jeby and Battaglia had met in the ring, Ben really was getting his first good look at Frank. For when they came together in Chicago last spring, Jeby was floored by almost the first punch and was declared the loser when the referee ruled he had not regained his feet before the count of ten was completed. The winner of the American final is to be matched with Marcel Thil, of France, for the world middleweight crown.

BRAVES' PILOT DICKERS ONLY WITH GIANTS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

McKechnie

With George Gibson and Willie McKechnie both tossing in hot embers the Pittsburgh baseball kettle threatens to boil over right into the middle of a great football season. Gibby and Skipper Bill arrived in Pittsburgh almost simultaneously, each admitting he was willing to do the David Harum act under the proper conditions.

McKechnie has been conferring in New York on trade matters. One story is to the effect that Bill would be willing to give Centerfielder Wally Berger to the Giants in exchange for Centerfielder Fred Lindstrom and Catcher Frank Hogan. This swap appears to be quite reasonable, but a new one has popped into the open that has all the hallmarks of a writer's nightmare.

PROBABLY A DUD

The second alleged swapfest involved four clubs. It is one of those four-cornered things wherein the Giants, Braves, Cubs and Red would make up a trading foursome. A whole galaxy of stars is involved.

When the four-cornered rumor was broached to Wilkinsburg Willie he threw up his hands and smiled. Bill appears to think it nothing more than an off-season paper yarn. And apparently he is right in his conjecture.

McKechnie is set for at least one more year as Boston pilot. The coming season will be his fourth. When Bill signed with the Braves he affixed his signature to a four-year document. In his three-year reign at the City of Culture, the Scot from Pittsburgh has thrown a lot of coin of the realm into the Boston coffers. And he has given the city a run of headsup baseball.

Gibson will remain in Pittsburgh only a short time, but he already has had some conference with the Pittsburgh moguls relative to deals. The Buccaneers are ready to dicker for several stars, but they hint they are being rebuffed by managers, who seek double value for those whom they are willing to swap.

DEAL DENIED

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Published reports of an impending baseball deal involving four National League clubs and seven players valued at approximately $500,000, last night brought denials from Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Boston Braves, and William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs.

The Evening American said a trade, understood to have been started by Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, would send Fred Lindstrom and Frank Hogan to the National League pennant winners in exchange for Kiki Cuyler, Gabby Hartnett and Pat Malone.

The Braves, in turn, would, the paper said, turn Wally Berger over to the Giants for Cuyler and Hartnett, while Cincinnati would become the fourth club involved by giving up Babe Herman for Pat Malone.

WEIL SPIKES RUMOR

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, denied last night there is any deal being consummated involving Babe Herman, his heavy-slugging outfielder.

GIANTS SILENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—No comment was forthcoming last night from New York Giant officials on the reported four-cornered player trade among the Giants, Chicago Cubs, Boston Braves and Cincinnati Reds.

Secretary Jim Tierney, official spokesman for the club, could not be reached. John McGraw, former manager and a heavy stockholder in the organization, said he had heard nothing of such a deal.

REPORT FALSE, CUBS SAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—The Chicago Cubs may do a lot of trading this winter, but they will not participate in a big four club exchange, nor will they dispose of Kiki Cuyler, Gabby Hartnett and Pat Malone, it was asserted here today by William L. Veeck, president of the National League champions.

Rosenbloom Wins Over Jack Fox

DAYTON, O., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized outside of New York, as light-heavyweight champion of the world, pounded out an easy decision over Tiger Jack Fox, Terre Haute, Ind., Negro, in a 10-round bout here last night.

TITLE BOUTS PLANNED

NEWARK, Oct. 17.—Kid Chocolate and Tommy Paul, respectively New York State and N. B. A. featherweight champions, may meet in Detroit next month to decide their claims. Meanwhile steps are being taken to match the Chocolate against Baby Arizmendi, California's choice for the laurels, here on November 18 or 25.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A BUSINESS HERO—George F. Leavitt, of Woonsocket, R. I., who was paralyzed in 1913 as a result of a football injury, is living proof of what real grit and determination can accomplish in the face of adversity. Although he found himself confined to bed, unable to move or turn his head, he succeeded in holding his own by building up a small mail order business to which he attends in a reclining position in bed. As he assured me cheerfully, he is earning his living and supporting his father by selling seasonal greeting cards and magazine subscriptions. To use his own words, "the current depression has left him unlicked." Flanked by his typewriter and his telephone, he literally never has left his office for the last 19 years. A FRENCH SOLDIER'S PARADOX OF SERVICE—L'Adjutant Thomas, who at present is the caretaker of the military cemetery at Boulogne sur Mer, France, joined the army at the age of 10. When he quit service at the age of 40 he had 60 years of military service to his credit. The doughty warrior had served in the military campaign of colonial France during the interim of 30 years, and, in accordance with French military rules, the years so served count double.

Vincent Eldred, of Highland, state open champion, was meeting Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg, West Penn open champion, and Ted Luther, of Valley Heights, was opposing Wayne Tobias, of Greensburg, in the semi-final matches of the Western Pennsylvania Professional Golfers' Association match play tournament at Fox Chapel today.

Alekhine, Kashdan Share Chess Prize

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—By winning his adjourned game with J. Medina, of Zacatetas, in 65 moves, Dr. Alexander Alekhine, of Paris, world chess champion, equaled the score of Isaac Kashdan, of New York, and tied that player for first place in the international tournament ended early this morning.

The totals of the two leaders were 8½—½.

They will divide the first and second prizes. Capt. J. J. Araiza won the third prize, Dr. J. A. Asiain, the fourth, and Capt. J. Vazquez, the fifth.

KLEIN NAMED 1932 LEADER

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—As the climax to his steady rise toward the top, Charles Herbert (Chuck) Klein, of Indianapolis, cleanup clouter of the Philadelphia Nationals, today emerged as the choice of the baseball experts for the distinction of being the National League's most valuable player during the 1932 season.

Klein was third in the 1930 voting and runnerup to Frank Frisch, St. Louis Cardinal captain, last year in the balloting by a committee representing the Baseball Writers' Association of America. His selection was announced by J. Roy Stockton, of St. Louis, chairman of the committee.

The Phillies' right-fielder, now generally rated among the greatest all-round batsmen in the major leagues, won the honor from Lonnie Warneke, the Chicago Cubs' sensational freshman pitcher, and Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, of Brooklyn, league batting champion, in a three-cornered contest.

Klein received 78 out of a possible maximum of 80. He was the first choice of six and second choice of the remaining two members of the writers' committee. Warneke, first choice of two critics, was next with 68 points. O'Doul finished with 58.

Klein hung up a fine record in every offensive department, besides showing speed and skill on the defense. He finished third in the National League batting race with .346, tied with Mel Ott for home run leadership with 38, led both leagues in run-scoring with 154, drove in 134 runs and stole 20 bases.

The complete results of the poll follow:

Klein, Philadelphia, (six firsts, two seconds), 78; Warneke, Chicago, (two firsts, four seconds, one third, one seventh), 68; O'Doul, Brooklyn, (one second, four thirds, two fourths, one eighth), 58; Paul Waner, Pittsburgh, 37; Stephenson, Chicago, 32; Terry, New York, 25; Hurst, Philadelphia, 24; Traynor, Pittsburgh, 17; W. Herman, Chicago, 16; Ott, New York, 15; R. Brown, Boston, 10; F. Herman, Cincinnati, 8; L. Waner, Pittsburgh, 6; Berger, Boston, 6; L. Wilson, Brooklyn, 6; Orsatti, St. Louis, 6; Maranville, Boston, 5; J. Wilson, St. Louis, 5; Cuccinello, Brooklyn, 4; Dean, St. Louis, 4; Frisch, St. Louis, 3; Collins, St. Louis, 3; Vaughan, Pittsburgh, 1; Bush, Chicago, 1.

Columbus Mayor To Speak At Smoker Here

According to plans announced by Harold Obernauer, chairman of the Pitt-Ohio State Home-Coming celebration committee, Ohio State guests of Pitt will be in for plenty of entertainment this week-end when they arrive for the game between Pitt and the Buckeyes.

The entertainment program will open Friday night when a smoker for Ohio State, other Western Conference and Pittsburgh alumni will be held in the main dining room of the Hotel Schenley.

The Mayor of Columbus will be the chief speaker, according to Chairman Obernauer, and Coaches Willaman and Sutherland will introduce the rival captains.

Fraternities will keep open house Friday and Saturday, and there will be an undergraduate dance in the Hotel Schenley the night before the game as well as other affairs at the different houses.

On Saturday morning the crack Ohio State Band, 150 pieces strong, will arrive in Pittsburgh and will be met by the Pitt Band. The two musical organizations will then march through the downtown district.

PRIMO LANDS K. O.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, hefty Italian heavyweight, knocked out Jack Taylor, former Marine, of New York, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. Carnera weighed 262, Taylor 220. The knockout punch, a left to the chin, came after one minute of fighting in the second round. Taylor was knocked down twice in the first round for counts of eight and seven.

TECH HOSPITAL LIST HEAVY

Three Carnegie Tech tackles, one guard and one end were unable to respond when Head Coach Bob Waddell called for practice yesterday in preparation for the Notre Dame game at South Bend Saturday. Ray Tesser, of course, will be out of the lineup for the Irish encounter. He has been discharged from the hospital after having his painful cheek bone fracture set, but football will be far from his thoughts for several weeks.

Although co-Capt. Sample was in the last two plays of the first half against W. & J., he was unable to run on his bad leg yesterday, and was excused from practice.

Thurman Croft and Jacques Croissant, tackles, both suffered leg hurts on Saturday, and Carl Forsman, another tackle, had an arm injured. It is expected that all three will be ready for Notre Dame, but yesterday's varsity signal drill saw Nutter and Doloway at the first string berths.

Hard work will be resumed this afternoon, since the squad will depart for South Bend Thursday night, and there is very little time to correct the many mistakes that cropped up in the W. & J. game.

Despite the tie score, the squad's morale is still high, for the blocking on Saturday was much improved, especially in the first half.

The Carnegie coaches also are confident that the middle of the front line defense will be considerably stiffened when Capt. Sample is able to resume his post.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Steve Cox was elected president; James Bond, vice president; Bert Colmery, secretary, and Thomas Flannagan, treasurer, by the Pittsburgh Umpires Association last night. The elections were unanimous.

200-POUNDER ALL-AMERICA PROSPECT

By JESS CARVER

Ohio State's Buckeyes think they have one of the most promising prospects for all-America honors in the Big Ten this fall and they are going to fasten the trousers of possible success against Pitt here this week on this junior star. He's Joe Gailus' of Vandergrift, former Kiski star, who has been dubbed the "Ideal Guard" by Coach Sam Willaman.

Now there are those among the Ohio State alumni right at present who will get right up in meeting and ask how Coach Willaman could possibly know an ideal guard if he did see one. Ohio State alumni are alumni of the most rabid sort, and the tie with Indiana and loss to Michigan hasn't served to put Brother Willaman exactly in the good graces of the Buckeye adherents. But nevertheless, the Ohio mentor has seen a football player or two in his time, and besides, Gailus' record with the Bucks has been impressive enough to warrant his high ranking.

WEIGHS 200 POUNDS

Gailus is an unassuming giant of bone and muscle. He stands six feet one inch, weighs 200 pounds and has all the requisites of a great guard.

He has size, and he has that which pleases football coaches most—speed. With the possible exception of the "blond express," Bill Carroll to you, star halfback, Gailus is the fastest man on the Scarlet and Gray squad.

It's this combination of speed and power, and the way he uses it to block, tackle and lead interference that causes coaches to view this human dynamo and chant:

"Boy, that Gailus is a honey."

What a nice play-fellow Mister Gailus will be for the Panthers here on Sat'day. Yeah—he and a buzz saw.

SUTHERLAND AROUSED

The good Doctor Sutherland exercised his tongue no little yesterday as he discussed the Army game with his Panthers. By the time Jock was finished pointing out the mistakes that cropped up, it was time for evening porridge, and were some of those Pitt faces red? You're asking me?

There are two fair-haired boys on the Pitt squad right now, a couple of lads who stood out in the Army struggle. One is Frank Walton, the Beaver Falls Tiger, and the other the Tarentum Fireman, Harvey Rooker. Walton may have won himself a starting job at right tackle by his work against the Cadets and Rooker has been advanced to the post of chief understudy to Ted Dailey, varsity left end.

The Tipoff

The West Shore R. R., which hauled the Pitt Panthers from New York to West Point last week, will never be noted for the speed with which it runs its choo-choos and for some reason or other, probably because the Panthers were on edge and anxious to get to the Point, the train Friday morning seemed to be merely crawling along. It made practically every stop. Finally, Capt. Paul Reider's nerves gave completely away. He button-holed the conductor and cracked this one:

"Hey, what are you guys waiting for, a base on balls?"

Reider is a great jockey. He has a ready tongue, and when he wishes, a bitter one. The Army was primed for Pitt; would rather have beaten the Panthers than Notre Dame, and were cracking the boys plenty hard. They'd drop the backs there in that first period plenty hard, and when they got them down, make some reference to their all-America ratings and their reputations.

Reider was silent until Heller sped away for his touchdown run. Then he went into action. The Cadets were in a huddle before lining up for the kickoff, and the Pitt Bulldog sauntered over, poked [illegible] head into the circle of Army players and remarked:

"Well, how did you tin soldiers like that one?"

The afternoon was a pleasant one after that.

Michigan's victory over Ohio State was a costly one. The Wolverines traded two touchdowns for two star backs, Jack Heston and Fay. Heston, son of the famous Willie Heston, dubbed by some as the greatest fullback of all time, suffered a fracture of a small bone in his leg and may be washed up for the remainder of the season.

This fellow Strutt, who appears to have wrested the fullback job up at Duquesne from Silvio Zaninelli, is an impressive looking back. He is big and fast and handles himself very well. Zaninelli's main forte always has been his booting. Strutt looks like a better ball carrier and all-round performer.

The ranks of the sport writers (may their tribe increase) will be swelled by the addition of Joe Kurth, Notre Dame tackle star, next summer, according to Miss Virginia Ortlieb, 19-year-old Wisconsin miss. Miss Ortlieb is going to pass up her college education to marry big Joe as soon as he graduates, or as soon as the football season is over. She says Joe will forsake his original plan to coach and will take up sports-writing. From the way in which Miss Ortlieb is starting out, Joe will have to take his out in writing as it appears the future Mrs. Kurth will do the talking for the family.

Gehrig Turns Down Political Invitation

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The Sun says Lou Gehrig, slugging first baseman of the New York Yankees, has no intention of making political speeches for President Hoover. Gehrig is quoted as saying:

"I have all I can do to play first base and hit the ball without plunging into a game of which I know nothing."

The Republican National Committee had announced Gehrig would make a radio address this week in the President's behalf.

By JULIUS LEVIN

Undefeated in five straight games, including four in a row with Class A opponents, Ambridge High School, coached by Moe Rubenstein, continues to show the way to all rivals in the race for the championship crown relinquished by Clairton High.

Latest figures computed under the point system by which the championship is awarded annually, show Ambridge in front of the procession with an average of 117½ points.

TWO TIED FOR THIRD

Latrobe, having played only one Class A opponent to date, rests in second place with 110 points. Butler, with three victories and Swissvale with two victories are deadlocked for third place, each having an average of 105 points.

Beaver Falls, showing four successive victories, the same number as credited Ambridge, has a point total of 102½, Midland being the only opponent to give the Heckathorne team any assistance in the race to date.

FOUR IN DEADLOCK

Glassport, Springdale, East Bethlehem and Edgewood are involved in a four-way deadlock in the Class B race, all showing an average of 110 points. Springdale became one of the strongest contenders for the title by eliminating East Pittsburgh, heretofore undefeated, in a 7-6 battle.

Freedom shows the most victories in this division, having won four in a row, but its opponents have shown no inclination to increase its point total. Freedom's average is 103¾, giving the valley eleven second place.

School Notes

Ambridge will have two weeks in which to prepare for its battle with Aliquippa, no game being carded for the Bridgers this weekend. While Aliquippa has not been impressive in its early games, the Lippemen always play their best when opposed to Moe Rubenstein's club. There is no love lost between the rival coaches.

Glassport likely will enhance its chances for the Class B title Friday when Verona is met on the latter's gridiron. Glassport, judging from its showing to date, is riding on the crest of a championship wave.

Uniontown High was dealt a tough blow when injuries forced Danny DeCarbo out of action for several weeks. The fleet-footed back suffered an injury to his right elbow in practice and will be lost to the team for several weeks. Sammy Julian, another backfield ace, also is unable to play because of injuries.

The loss of Vince Stapulis, brilliant fullback of the California High eleven, has weakened the Aschman machine considerably. Injured in the Donora game, Stapulis may be out of action for the rest of the season. An effort will be made to have him in shape for the clash with Charleroi.

Westinghouse will have a chance to move into undisputed possession of first place in Section I of the City League, by defeating Fifth Avenue Friday at Schenley Field. Schenley will not play Friday, being carded for a battle with Steubenville on Saturday.

Three attractive night games are listed for the school fans Friday. Ellwood City plays at New Castle, Scott and Homestead renew their sectional feud at Homestead and Donora and Charleroi, two arch rivals, battle at Charleroi.

Swissvale, making a strong fight for the Class A title under the guidance of Coach Paulie, faces its toughest test of the season Saturday when Duquesne is met at Duquesne. A victory over Duquesne will be worth 125 points to Swissvale.

Panka, Belanger Mere Proxies in Battle

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Bunny Buntach vs. Joe Jacobs and Billy McCarney—by proxy.

There's the main bout at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night.

The bills say it's George Panka, of Homestead, vs. Charley Belanger, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, but don't pay any attention to them.

Charley Belanger

There's a story behind the story of this fight. It all centers around Panka, the poor but honest former bricklayer, who is trying to turn over a dollar or two in the fight game and finally get somewhere with his fists.

'Twill be remembered that Panka was a sparring partner of Max Schmeling when the then heavyweight champion was training at Conneaut Lake, Pa., during the summer of last year for his bout in defense of the title in Cleveland. So far, so good. Well, after that fight, Schmeling went back home to Germany, and Panka returned to Homestead. When Maxie returned to prepare for the fight with Jack Sharkey, in which he lost the title, he decided upon a barnstorming tour, which was to open in Canada. Managers Jacobs and McCarney contacted Panka to act as a sparring mate again, and George told them to see his manager, Prof. Buntach.

Buntach told the managers how much it would cost them to use Panka for a training and sparring mate and they balked and tried to induce George to come on of his own accord. When Bunny heard this, he burned up and called McCarney on the telephone and told him what he thought of him and added insult to injury by reversing the charges.

THAT TORONTO INCIDENT

A few nights later, Schmeling opened in Toronto and was booed as he went through his act against a choice collection of neverwasers. Assuming that Panka would be along, his name had been advertised as one of the troupe, and news reports were sent out that he had been one of the punching bags belted around by the champion. This was too much for Buntach, who immediately wrote letters to the editors and sent a demand for an investigation to the National Boxing Association, which called upon Jacobs and McCarney to explain. They reported it was a case of mistaken identity and smoothed out matters, but, like elephants, they never forgot.

The New York pair have been biding their time waiting for a chance to get hunk with their dear old pal, Peter J. Buntach—and did they break their necks to get their man Belanger in there with Bunny's George Panka! Did they, or did they not? They're coming here intent upon wreaking their vengeance both in and out of the ring—and, if they don't watch out, Bunny probably will have them yelling for succor before it's all over, for he's pretty slick himself.

PANKA TO FIGHT

So much for the plot. Now about the proxy fighters. Buntach says Panka will be a different type of ringman in this battle than he has been for some time. He's been sold on the idea that he's not going to build up a following shaping up in pretty boxer fashion. The fans want punchers for their heavyweights, and George is going out to do or die. He wants to beat a good man and see if he can't get some offers from other cities for battles.

Belanger is the Canadian light-heavyweight champion or he isn't the Canadian light-heavyweight champion, as you will. The only man to dispute the claim is Larry Gains, the Negro, who is too busy boxing heavyweights in Europe to be bothered, which about makes Charley's claim unanimous.

In recent starts, Charley has knocked out Jimmy Slattery in two rounds, whipped Lou Scozza in 10, and drawn with Tony Shucco in the semi-final to the Sharkey-Schmeling battle. He is at his peak right now and figures to prove one of the toughest men Panka has faced. A win over him would give Panka the break he has been seeking for so many months.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Babe Triscaro vs. Johnny Edwards, 10 rounds, and Wallace Caple vs. Johnny Young and Buddy Hollender vs. Steve Jones, 6 rounds each, Youngstown, O.

Baby Arizmendi vs. Newsboy Brown, 10 rounds, Los Angeles.

Chet Smallwood vs. Tracy Cox, 10 rounds, Terre Haute, Ind.

Roy Williams vs. Dick Daniels, 10 rounds, Des Moines, Ia.

Between Rounds

Nick Venore and Jim Rhodes meet in return bout in Philadelphia Thursday night, with Mickey Michaels and Ernie Caesar in the semi-final.

Buster Brown and Young Firpo battle in Philly, Friday night, with Vince Guidici and Yonder McLaughlin in the semi-final.

Seven former Chicago Golden Gloves boxers will be on the card when Barney Ross boxes Battling Battalino in the Chicago Stadium, Friday night. Charley Retzlaff, who meets Jack Roper, was in the 1929 tournament, along with Ross, who won the lightweight title. Paul Dazzo, who meets Little Jack Sharkey, was the featherweight champion in 1930 under his real name, Paul Leberto. Johnny Phagan, Negro winner of the welterweight title this year, boxes Bill Connell, a member of this year's team. Joe Bozak and Davy Day, who appear in another bout, also are former Golden Glovers.

Motor Square Garden is trying to land an opponent for Ted Yarosz for October 31. Ted, by the way, also is wanted in New Orleans for a third meeting with Eddie (Kid) Wolfe at around the same date.

Tony Herrera will be accompanied by his manager, Ray Alvis, when he arrives here next Sunday for his bout at the Garden the following night with Battling Gizzy, which already is doing a good advance business. Sid Silas and Matty Oldoch will box the second preliminary.

Jack Collins, local Negro heavyweight, wants to fight Frank Novak, Lloyd Clements or any of the other big fellows.

Tony Rabino, of Lisbon, O., and Lloyd Clements have been matched for the second bout at the Arena, Friday night. Ray Winbush and Johnny Constantino are in the opener.

Harry Zieg boxes Art McGivern, Henry Klena meets Billy Schwerin, Jimmy Ferry engages Johnny Seville, John Petro tangles with Billy Ryan and Leo Sweeney battles Al Martin in feature bouts on the card of an even dozen battles for the benefit of the Jewish Home for Babies in Motor Square Garden one week from tonight.

BOBBY RAY LOSES

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Snooks Campbell, hard-hitting featherweight, of Miami, Fla., scored three knockdowns against Speedball Cite, flashy Mexican, of Detroit, in the first round here last night, but his opponent came back to win the decision in 10 rounds. DENVER U. EN ROUTE

DENVER, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The University of Denver football squad, including 28 players, left here yesterday afternoon for Philadelphia to play Temple University Friday night. The Denver players will take a limbering-up workout in Chicago today, and arrive in Philadelphia Wednesday.

LOUGHRAN BOWS TO POREDA

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Stanley Poreda, slugging newcomer to the ranks of the heavyweights, gave Tommy Loughran's comeback hopes a severe setback last night by pounding his way to a 10-round dicision over the former light-heavyweight champion of the world.

Poreda, from Jersey City, never allowing Loughran to get set, except for a slow first round and a slugging sixth session, kept his 201 pounds rushing toward his opponent. Loughran, outweighed by 14½ pounds, put up a fine defensive battle, but could not cope with the smashing left jabs and round-house right hands which Poreda poured at him from the second to the sixth rounds and again in the seventh, eighth and ninth cantos.

Loughran's right ankle went bad early in the third round and his seconds wound tape over the shoe between every round after that. The former champion favored the injured member to some extent after that, but the handicap did not appear to affect his defensive ability greatly.

The refereeing of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, was popular with the 9,000 fans assembled for the bout.

DUQUESNE SHIFTS LINEUP

VETS BENCHED FOR BATTLE WITH 'CATS

Coach Elmer Layden, of the Dukes, has two new backfield men and a tackle on deck for use as starters against West Virginia Wesleyan, Friday night's opponent of the Night Riders at Forbes Field. The play of the three men against Oglethorpe was of such high caliber that it appears they have clinched varsity jobs.

In the backfield, Layden plans to use Art Strutt, of Mingo Junction, at fullback, and Dick Nussbaum, Ambridge veteran, at right halfback, in the places which have been filled previously by Sil Zaninelli and Ben Pawlina. Joe Wiehl, a sophomore from Charleroi, is expected to play right tackle.

Jerry Baker, of Greenville, is working in the left end berth of Capt. Paul Abele. These changes were in effect yesterday as the Dukes worked indoors in preparation for their third annual meeting with the Bobcats.

Coach Layden evidently has been planning changes in his outfit and it seems that the time has come when those strutting sophomores will not only give the juniors and seniors a run for their positions, but may actually replace them permanently in a number of positions.

The gymnasium drills yesterday consisted of signal formations against West Virginia Wesleyan plays as reported by the Duquesne scouts.

The Dukes bow out their night season this week and make ready to continue their 1932 campaign by the light of day, at least so far as Pittsburgh is concerned. The Night Riders will be primed to average their 12-to-0 defeat of last year when the great Gyp Battles played here for the last time.

BUCKS STUDY MISTAKES

COLUMBUS, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—A steady downpour of rain kept Ohio State University gridders indoors yesterday, where they talked over their errors Saturday in the Michigan game. Coach Willaman indicated that Oliphant, in place of Cramer, would be his starting quarterback this week when the Bucks take on Pittsburgh.

All Buckeye players came through the Michigan fracas in good shape physically but a bit disheartened.

Big Ten Briefs

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Coach Harry Kipke yesterday started rebuilding the Michigan backfield for the annual football battle with Illinois. His two stellar halfbacks, Jack Heston and Stanley Fay, will be unable to play Saturday because of injuries received in the Ohio State game. Heston probably is out for the remainder of the season. Johnny Regeczi, sophomore fullback, may be shifted to right half in Fay's place, with Russ Oliver, another sophomore, going in at fullback.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Northwestern's regulars donned sweat suits yesterday and went through a half-hour signal drill as preparation for the Purdue game Saturday. The reserves scrimmaged with the freshmen. Coach Dick Hanley expressed pleasure at the improvement shown against Illinois, particularly the return to form of Pug Rentner.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Coach A. A. Stagg bore down in real earnest yesterday as he started readying Chicago for its opening Big Ten battle against Indiana Saturday. The regulars worked long on plays and finished up with a brisk dummy scrimmage against the freshmen.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Illinois opened practice for the Michigan game yesterday, disappointed at the news that Fred Frink, star end, who has been out for two weeks with injuries, probably will not be able to face the Wolverines. Frink's leg injury has not responded to treatment as rapidly as expected.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Indiana's first-string football players, excused from heavy duty, yesterday watched freshman elevens execute Chicago formations and work Maroon passes effectively against a reserve squad. The squad also got plenty of work on blocking and tackling.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Battered by the drives of Minnesota and Wisconsin, the Purdue football regulars were released from drill yesterday after a chalk talk on the Northwestern offense. With Doxie Moore, halfback, out of action the coaches were grooming Vernon Craig and William Ribiet, lightweight reserves, to assist Duane Purvis at the right halfback berth.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Coach Bernie Bierman, reading the riot act to Minnesota Gophers for their transgressions of Saturday, ran them through the first Monday scrimmage on Northrop Field since the days when Dr. Clarence W. Spears coached Minnesota elevens. Bierman picked on almost the entire varsity roster for use against the freshmen.

IOWA CITY, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Three changes in the first team backfield yesterday marked the university's preparation for Saturday's home-coming game against Minnesota. Wilbur Wallace, Negro sophomore quarterback, replaced George Teyro; while another Negro lad, Voris Dickerson, was at Laws' halfback position. Bernard Page was at fullback in place of Marvin Kuhn. Page and Dickerson are former ends.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Although none of the regulars were injured in the hard-fought game with Purdue, Coach Spears gave the first string Wisconsin varsity a rest yesterday and drove reserves at top speed. With a non-Conference tilt against Coe College scheduled Saturday, the Badgers probably will concentrate on getting into shape for the Ohio State game the following week.

'Arizmendi Refused Title By N. B. A.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—James M. Brown, president of the National Boxing Association, in a telegram to Jack Doyle, local fight promoter, said it is impossible at this time to recognize Baby Arizmendi as featherweight champion of the world.

The message came in reply to Doyle's request that the N. B. A. follow the action of the California Athletic Commission in according the honor to the Mexican flash.

VAN MUNGO SIGNS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, apparently determined to get their 1933 baseball cast lined up early, today announced the signing of Van Lingle Mungo, sensational young pitcher. Terms were not announced. He comes from Pageland, S. C.

CHICAGO FROSH WANT STAGG

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Despite the University of Chicago board of trustees' action in setting the date for A. A. Stagg's retirement, Maroon freshmen football men want him to coach next season.

The board announced that the 70-year age limit for faculty members made necessary Stagg's retirement at the end of the college year next June. Members of the fresmen squad, however, yesterday started petitions around, asking that the Grand Old Man be engaged as head football coach, and the move immediately gained the support of several fraternities.

While Stagg may not, under the rules, continue as a member of the faculty, he may be hired as football coach, which the petition requests be done. The petition will be presented to the board of trustees and President Robert Maynard Hutchins within a few days.

Toronto Club Goes Into Liquidation

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The Toronto Baseball and Athletic Club, holder of a franchise in the International Baseball League, decided today to go into liquidation. Action towards that end was taken at a meeting of club directors and shareholders.

A few days ago it was announced the city of Toronto would auction the Maple Leaf Stadium, property of the baseball club, for arrears of taxes. Taxes for 1929, 1930 and 1931, amounting to more than $25,000 were unpaid.

These are given as the greatest of the club's liabilities.

A meeting of the creditors of the club will be held within the next few days and a trustee appointed.

GRINS From the GRID

—By O. W. (Red) Severence—

Noted Southern Football Official.
(Written for Associated Press.)

NO. 7.

Back in 1920, the series play was making football history and Coach Charley Bachman, at Northwestern, had perfected a truly unique one for the season's finale against Rutgers that "couldn't miss."

The key man was to be Jim, one of the greatest halfbacks Northwestern ever turned out but who always had a most difficult time remembering signals.

On the first down, Jim was to carry the ball over right tackle and be "knocked out."

And as sympathetic Rutgers linemen stood around waiting for him to revive, Northwestern was to line up hurriedly and the ball would be snapped for a wide end run without calling signals.

The team practiced diligently and rehearsed every detail time after time. The referee was warned to watch for the play and in the third quarter an opportunity was presented to turn the play into a touchdown.

The quarterback barked out the series play signals and everything started perfectly, with Jim gaining three yards over right tackle on the first down.

Northwestern lined up quickly—only to find Jim standing in his accustomed position at left half, a wide grin on his face over the three-yard gain.

The awful stillness warning him that something was amiss, Jim suddenly remembered the second part of the play, dropped to the ground and screamed:

"Ow—ow! I'm hurt!"

The referee blew his whistle, and the second part of the "sure fire" series still remains to be played.

COLGATE PREPS FOR N. Y. U.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—With undefeated New York University to be faced next, Colgate's Maroons went through a long session yesterday to perfect their powerful attack.

Bob Samuel, quarterback, returned to the squad and probably will start against N. Y. U.

Eastern Briefs

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Vic Hanson spent his time yesterday trying to bolster the Syracuse line through which Southern Methodist plowed for 273 yards. The Orange may return to the winning column since Penn State has looked fairly weak so far.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Disappointed with Princeton's offensive play against Cornell, Coach Fritz Crisler sent the Tigers through an intensive drill in the rain yesterday. Tad Wieman worked for more than an hour with the linemen, emphasizing blocking and charging in an effort to add speed and power to the Tiger attack.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Because of the battered condition of the Army football squad, Maj. Ralph Sasse was forced to call off his plans for hard work and devoted most of the practice session yesterday to a few limbering up exercises and a blackboard talk. Even though Yale seems to be far below form, Army's coaches seriously doubt whether they can bring the Cadet squad back to the peak in time for Saturday's game.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Lou Little have his Columbia team the usual light Monday practice, although he was dissatisfied w[illegible] the Lions' play against Virginia. V[illegible] a weaker-than-usual William team next on the list, Little is aiming at the Cornell game two weeks hence.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Hoping to find a smoother combination to throw against Princeton, Rip Miller, of Navy, was turning over in his mind a possible backfield shakeup with a new quarterback to replace Shorty Beckt. Faulty signal calling was blamed partly for the Tars' nine fumbles against Ohio University last week.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—As a reward for beating Yale, Brown's regulars were given yesterday off, but Tuss McLaughry sent the scrubs through a long scrimmage session. McLaughry is looking for reserve material. Brown meets Tufts, one of the East's undefeated teams, this week.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Wet weather forced Rutgers, preparing for the Holy Cross game, to work in the gymnasium yesterday, a signal drill being the most important item of the program.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Bob Higgins' principal task this week will be to find replacements for the several Penn State regulars who were so badly battered up in the Harvard game they are unlikely to play against Syracuse.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Harvey Harman, of Penn, gave his vearsity the day off yesterday, but worked strenuously with the reserves who probably will carry most of the burden against Lehigh.

Schmeling to Make Movie in Hollywood

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—Max Schmeling will spend the winter months making a movie in Hollywood and will do no fighting until next spring or summer, Joe Jacobs, manager of the former heavyweight champion, said today. Jacobs has booked passage for Germany, sailing tomorrow.

According to Jacobs, he has asked Jack Doyle, Los Angeles promoter, $100,000 and a privilege of 45 per cent of the gate receipts for a 12-round bout against Max Baer, of California.

The German's manager will sail with the remaining $25,000 of Schmeling's $55,000 purse of the Mickey Walker fight. Primo Carnera sued Schmeling, charging the German broke a contract to fight him, made an unsuccessful attempt to tie up the money.

Maxie, now in Germany, will return here in January.

Chicago Fighters Beat Cincy Team

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—A team of Chicago boxers defeated a Cincinnati group last night, winning four matches and gaining a draw in the other bout.

GALENTO STOPS BROWN

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 17.—Evening the score for a 10-round decision he lost to Natie Brown in Pittsburgh last winter, Tony Galento last night knocked out the California heavyweight in one round here. A right to the jaw and a left hook to the body finished Brown.

MORGAN TEAM, FIREMEN SET FOR CLASH

Seeking to remain in the race for Lightweight Conference football honors, the Scott Morgan gridders, of Homewood, will swing into action at Greenlee Field tonight under the lights with the Tarentum Firemen providing the opposition. The Rox Rangers, Etna and the Morgans are out in front in the title chase.

Hooks Carroll's aggregation cannot afford to hold the upriver outfit lightly in this game. Tarentum surprised the Rox Rangers early in the season in a close battle.

Carroll has missed Showboat Ware in his backfield, but there are rumors going around that Ware is back in town and soon will be back in the lineup. Meanwhile Plummer, the former Wittenberg College star, is playing fine ball, together with Coach Carroll, Bobby Dye and Howdy Levey.

Tomorrow night, all trails will lead to the New Kensington field, where the Dan Burns gridders will make an effort to avenge last Sunday's defeat at the hands of the J. P. Rooneys.

Two years ago, the Big Green machine lost its opening game when Pendro, Burns' end, took a Berkman pass out of the air for a touchdown. Tomorrow night, Burns will try to duplicate that victory.

It was a great game that Burns put up Sunday against the Champions. Coach Al Dunn had his men primed for the game, but Harp Vaughan had one of his greatest days, his play, along with that of Mose Kelsh and Jimmy Clark, spelled defeat for Burns.

Thursday night, the McKeesport Olympics will clash with the East Liberty Papales. Both teams still are in the race.

ABBOTT SEEKS CINCY JOB

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Spencer Abbott, manager of the Portland club, of the Pacific Coast League, has applied for the job of manager of the Cincinnati Reds. He came here to present his case to President Sidney Weil. Although under contract to Hollywood for another year, it was understood Abbott is at liberty to take any better post that is open to him.

Weil received also a recommendation that Johnny Dobbs, former Red outfielder, who piloted Birmingham of the Southern Association, be given the job. Wilbert Robinson, former Brooklyn manager, put in the word for Dobbs.

BANCROFT MAY TRY

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Dave Bancroft, released as coach by the New York Giants, may go after the Cincinnati Reds' vacant managerial post. He said:

"I intend to stop at Cincinnati on my way home. While there I may confer with the Red owners, but outside of that I have made no plans."

Larry Gains Loses To German Boxer

PARIS, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Larry Gains, Toronto Negro, holder of the British Empire heavyweight championship, was outpointed by Walter Neusel, of Germany, in a 10-round match here last night. Gains' title was not a stake.

Gains weighed 198½ pounds, Neusel 197.

Oswald Defeated In Cue Tourney

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Robert Vile, of Norristown, defeated Harry Oswald, of Pittsburgh, 100 points to 16, last night in the second of the eastern district qualifying matches for the world championship pocket billiards tournament.

In the opening contest, Edward McGeahan, of Philadelphia, triumphed over Edward Leonard, of York, 100 to 70.

Charge Dismissed Against Len Sacks

ANADARKO, Okla., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—A felony charge against Leonard Sacks, manager for Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, in connection with an automobile accident in which his car struck a truck loaded with Negro cotton pickers, fatally injuring one man, was dismissed in Justice Court here yesterday for lack of sufficient evidence.

Forbes

Finance World Marking Time; 'Buys America'

By B. C. FORBES

THE FINANCIAL world is content to mark time for the moment. It has its eye on politics. Yesterday's events on the principal exchanges reflected the existing tendency to "wait and see."

Mr. Forbes

My guess is that at least some of the recent liquidation of securities has come from heavyweight Republican investors who have reasoned that the handwriting on the wall points to the election of Gov. Roosevelt and who figure that they will be able to re-purchase at lower prices between now and the middle of November. Proverbially, financiers try to anticipate events. They don't wait until "the news is out" before operating.

It is not possible that those who have been selling on political prospects may discover that they have had lots of company on the bear side and that, when the time comes for them to re-buy, they will not be able to pick up stocks at slaughter prices?

The course of actual business during the next few weeks will be followed with intense interest. Heretofore the assumption has been that improvement has been seasonal. If activity persists throughout November, the deduction drawn will be that the turn has definitely come and that the time for bearish operaations on the exchanges has passed.

The business trend, after all, is more basically important than political trends.

EVEN THE Prince of Wales has not accounted it beneath his dignity to urge his fellow-countrymen to buy British products.

Should Americans take any less businesslike an attitude? If our own country were revelling in prosperity, perhaps we could and should have unlimited solicitude for other peoples.

But since there are, according to popular estimate, some 11,000,000 Americans unable to find employment, is it not natural and right that we should give first consideration to our own, a la the stand staken by the heir to the British throne?

What was said in this column last week about Japan's capturing of the American market for electric lamps, especially minature sizes, has evoked widespread interest. One reader, a railway office employe, writes that, having been obliged to move to cheaper living quarters, he needed to buy electric light bulbs regardless of the sadly depleted state of his finances.

He relates that, on entering a five-and-ten cent store, he found Mazda lamps priced "20 cents each." A sign over a collection of colored lamps read "10 cents each."

"I picked one up and to my surprise it was stamped, 'Made in Japan' in a very obscure place. Being located near the American lamps, the impression was that these also were American lamps. The Japanese lamps looked very poor.

"Although I didn't have sufficient money to buy the American lamps, I decided to wait until I could purchase the American lamps. I'll be damned if I'll buy Japanese lamps and thus contribute further to unemployment among American wage-earners. If it isn't 'Made in America' by American workmen it isn't good enough for the home of an American wage-earner."

AN AMERICAN electric company—not General Electric or Westinghouse—writes:

"We are the victims of Japanese dumping. For years we employed 400 people regularly. We paid fairly good salaries and carried on our business in a very humane way—compensation, insurance benefits, restaurants, doctors, nurses, etc.

"Since the Japanese started dumping lamps into our country they have smashed our industry to pieces.

"Go through a few department or syndicate stores and see how many foreign-made items they carry, produced by labor paid so little that our tariff protection is not adequate.

"Get our workers back into our factories and we will have prosperity. Nothing else will do it."

We have been buying more from Japan than Japan has bought from us. We are her best customer for her all-important raw silk.

Which is more important, to enable Japan to foist on this country electric lamps of inferior grade which cost buyers dearly in increased consumption of current, or to make it possible for trained American workers to continue to earn their family bread?

Perhaps when the millennium comes, free trade may be universal. At this stage of the world's widely-varying civilization, it isn't exactly feasible for America.

CONVENIENT FOR THE MOTORIST

There is a growing number of motorists who find it convenient to use the "courtesy cards" issued by gasoline and oil distributors. Purchases made by the bearer of one of these cards are charged to the customer and billed at the end of the month. The bill is conveniently paid by check, thus eliminating the annoyance of petty cash transactions on the road... Paying gasoline and oil bills monthly by check is another illustration of the many convenient uses of the checking account.

STOCK MARKET ADVANCE CHECKED

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The stock market appeared somewhat refreshened today after two sessions of quiet drifting, and prices pushed forward with some vigor in the earlier hours.

The advance was checked by early afternoon, and extreme gains of 1 to 4 points were reduced by from fractions to a point, but trading slackened on the decline as traders showed little inclination to sell.

Rails showed notably strength, with extreme gains of 2 to 3 points appearing in New York Central, Union Pacific and Santa Fe, and advances of 1 point or more appearing throughout the group. Merchandising issues also received more attention that they had for some time, with numerous advances of a point or so being recorded in that group.

The market remained largely a professional affair, and seemed to be governed more by its own internal condition than by corporate or trade news developments. The failure of the list to react in any important degree in the sessions following the sharp advance of Friday evidently impressed speculators for the rise, and encouraged renewed bullish activity.

A sharp sag in the British pound sterling, attributed in Wall street to withdrawal of support by the Bank of England, pulled European gold currencies generally lower, and brought a fresh reassertion of the strength of the dollar. European bear speculators in dollar exchange, according to gossip in international banking circles, appear to have taken considerable punishment in the past fortnight.

The first of the principal railroads to report for September was Union Pacific, which showed net operating income of $3,266,184, a relatively moderate recession from the $3,918,381 reported for that month of last year. Further evidence of the improvement in the oil industry appeared in the earning statement of Atlantic Refining for the first nine months, showing net of $1.58 a share, against a substantial deficit in the like period of last year.

COTTON GAINS EXTENDED

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Cotton futures opened steady, 3 to 7 higher on steadier Liverpool cables and forecast of rains in Western Texas and Oklahoma. October, 6.20; December, 6.30; January, 6.36; March, 6.43; May, 6.53; July, 6.62.

The opening advance encountered some southern selling, but it was much less active than yesterday and after some little irregularity, prices worked up another few points on trade buying and covering. Houses with Liverpool connections were among the buyers on the advance to 6.35 for December and 6.50 for March or about 8 to 12 points above yesterday's closing quotations.

The market was quieter but steady within a point or two of the best at the end of the first half hour.

Prices at midday were 2 to 3 points off from the best, but showed net advances of 6 to 8 points.

Chain Stores Cut Down Losses In Volume Of Sales

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE CHAIN STORES have made notable progress in checking the declining trend of their sales.

The September sales of 19 chains, covering a major share of retail activity, amounted to $132,196,000. This was 11.8 per cent under the corresponding period of last year, but it compared with declines of 18.2 per cent in August, 16.4 per cent in July, 15.9 per cent in June and 16.3 per cent in May.

Favorable buying weather in most parts of the country joined with higher prices for farm products were contributing factors to the improvement. Undoubtedly the change also reflected the fact that a large share of the public had delayed purchases of many necessities for as long a period as possible and had to come into the market for some of its needs.

Mail Order Houses Show Large Gain

INCLUDED AMONG the 19 chain stores are Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward, both of which are engaged in the mail order business as well as in the operation of chains of stores. These two organizations showed particularly marked improvement in the trend of their sales.

In the case of Sears, Roebuck the decline in its mail order business in the four weeks ended October 8 was the smallest of any period of this year, while sales through its stores declined only slightly. In the South Sears' volume actually increased. The decline of 10.3 per cent in the four weeks ended October 8, as compared with the corresponding period of last year stands in a distinctly favorable light against reductions of 21.6 per cent in September, 27.4 per cent in August, 25.2 per cent in July, 18.8 per cent in June, 23.3 per cent in May and 26.4 per cent in April.

Montgomery Ward's September decrease of 16.4 per cent was the smallest of any month this year. It compared with drops of 20.8 per cent in August, 22.9 per cent in July, 22.8 per cent in June, 23.6 per cent in May and 21.3 per cent in April.

Five and Tens Make Good Sales Showing

THE FIVE AND TEN cent stores also made progress in checking the downward trend of their sales, but the results in the grocery chains were irregular.

Woolworth reported the smallest decline of any month since March. The drop of 10.4 per cent in September compared with 15.9 per cent in August, 13.9 per cent in July and June and 14.8 per cent in May.

Increases over last year were actually reported by W. T. Grant and J. J. Newberry, while other chains of this type materially cut down the size of the declines under last year.

In the grocery field, Kroger improved its results in September, but Dominion Stores, National Tea and Grand Union showed larger decreases.

Daily Oil Output Declines Sharply

TULSA, Oct. 18.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended October 15 totaled 2,118,443 barrels, a decrease of 45,696 barrels daily from the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

BRITISH POUND WEAKENS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Weakness of the British pound was accompanied by general unsettlement in the foreign exchange market today.

Selling of sterling was said to have originated largely in England. In the absence of any readily apparent reason therefor, it was said in banking quarters that the Bank of England had apparently withdrawn support from the pound temporarily, just as it did last July when the quotation dropped sharply.

Sterling cables opened at $3.42½, off a cent, but the rate thereafter extended its dip to about 3 cents.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—(INS.)—The financial district was mystified today by an unusually heavy movement in sterling which was being sold in all quarters, with consequent decline.

Government support apparently was entirely lacking, leading to the belief that the treasury might be accumulating dollars in preparation for paying the December instalment of the war debt to the United States. No official confirmation was obtainable on this point.

There was, however, no evidence of a concerted bear raid nor of extraordinary demands for foreign commercial obligations.

I. C. C. ORDERS COAL STUDY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today ordered an investigation of rates on bituminous coal within the state of Ohio.

The investigation is a result of an order by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission reducing such rates within the state.

The Wheeling and Lake Erie reduced rates on coal shipped in interstate commerce as a result of this order. The Pittsburgh and West Virginia followed suit.

These reductions caused a protest from other carriers serving Northern Ohio points.

Hearings will be started on November 15, at the Deschler-Wallick Hotel at Columbus, O.

D. R. G. Lets Contract For Dotsero Tunnel

DENVER, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad has awarded the contract for grading, tunnel work and cement work for the Dotsero cutoff to three companies bidding in combination.

Representatives of the contractors said 500 men would be hired to begin the job, which is expected to get under way by November 1.

The contract, said to involve $2,000,000, calls for completion of the right of way. The railroad will lay its own track and build the bridges.

LOCAL MARKET QUIET AND STEADY

Securities displayed a steady to firm tone on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Volume of business continued light, however, with only a few shares of the leading issues changing hands.

The quiet market here reflected the movement on the "big board," where the list showed a little improvement during the forenoon, and backed down later in the day. The trading pace in New York showed no substantial change from yesterday's volume, which dropped to the unusually low total of 777,000 shares.

Fuels here were dull and narrow. Lone Star Gas continued to range around $7 a share, the level at which it sold most of yesterday. Western Public Service was teady around 6. Pittsburgh Plate Glass, which fell back a fraction to 14½ yesterday, lost another fraction today. The brewings were firm.

WHEAT, CORN ADVANCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Grain prices displayed firmness early today, influenced by comparative strength of securities and cotton. Corn bulls contended that cereal was on a better basis for investment than any other of the major agricultural products. Opening at ⅛c off to ¼c up, wheat later hardened a little more. Corn started at a shade to ⅛c advance and afterward held near the initial range.

It was pointed out that with present prices of corn approximating the record low level of 1896, the use of cord as fuel promised to be a decided factor. Stress was also given to reports showing corn production this season eastward from Illinois had been materially below that of last year. Provisions dropped because of moderate selling that met with only a thin demand.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.

CARRIERS FACE NECESSITY OF DEBT PARING

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Any thoroughgoing rehabilitation of railroad credit, such as the Coolidge nonpartisan committee is considering, must include a plan for improving the capitalization of numerous railroads, which have become overweighted with bonded indebtedness.

As the realities of the problem are canvassed, this phase of the question gets increasing attention. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's studies of the railroad situation pointed to the desirability of voluntary scaling down of excessive indebtedness, which cannot be borne under the existing asset and earning position of the carriers. When debt is better brought into line, financial health will be feasible.

Mr. Rukeyser

CONGRESS TO ACT

Unless voluntary adjustments can be made, certain carriers will have to go through the receivership bath. But there is much waste and needless expense and trouble in connection with calling in the sheriff. Leaders of both parties recognize the desirability of permanently averting large scale railroad receiverships, which have been temporarily held off by advances of public funds to the carriers by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

It is understood that when Congress reconvenes in December legislation will be introduced which would authorize voluntary reorganizations despite minority threats of receiverships. It is reported that the administration, through Solicitor Thatcher, has already prepared such a bill, and Gov. Roosevelt, in his Salt Lake City address on railroad rehabilitation, committed himself to some such measure, after pointing out the abuses of traditional receiverships.

Apart from such revisions, railroad management ought to be alert to take advantage of the next cycle of satisfactory earnings to improve their capital structures by substituting stocks for bonds to as large a degree as is feasible.

I. B. A. MEETS SATURDAY

One of the basic problems of business recovery, to which the delegates to the twenty-first annual convention of the Investment Bankers' Association, which opens at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., next Saturday, might well direct their attention, is the strike of capitalists against new securities of private industry. An inordinately large portion of new investment funds flows exclusively in these timid times into government obligations.

The delegates ought to make a candid and thorough-going investigation into the reasons which make for this continuing capital blockade, and could render real service in suggesting methods of inducing a new flow of funds into business projects.

Incidentally, on behalf of their clients, the investors of the country, the delegates also have an opportunity for great usefulness in formulating the standards to which municipalities, counties and even state governments should adhere under present conditions if they expect to raise additional funds through the sale of bonds to private investors.

IOWA GAS TAX UNDER FIRE

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 18.—(AP.)—The Mona Oil Company of Council Bluffs has filed an action in Federal Court asking recovery of $491,699.83 alleged to have been collected illegally by State Treasurer Ray E. Johnson, in behalf of the state. The petition names the American Surety Company of New York, bondsmen for Johnson, as co-defendant.

The oil company also asks a restraining order prohibiting Johnson and other state officials from interfering with the company's business through suits, actions or attachments, naming Attorney General John Fletcher, Assistant Attorney General J. J. Hess and P. A. Lainson, Pottawattamie County Sheriff.

Attacking the constitutionality of the Iowa laws placing a 1 cent a gallon tax on all gasoline "imported and used" in Iowa and a 2-cent tax on all gasoline "used and disposed of" in Iowa, the petition claims through present methods of collections, both taxes are a burden on interstate commerce and in violation of the federal Constitution.

PICKING COTTON BY MACHINE

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 18.—Practical utility in picking cotton has almost been reached in a machine being perfected at the State Agricultural and Mechanical College. The original machine in 1928 harvested 73.4 per cent of the total yield of 12 varieties of cotton in a series of field tests. Improvements were made which in 1930 brought up its average of cotton picked to 88.6 per cent, and in 1931 this was increased by still other improvements to 93.8 per cent. Since last season, the machine has been improved so much that it is believed it will show a picking of 98 per cent.

The cotton is gathered by rubber stripping rolls. Last season the cost of picking a bale of cotton with a machine was $3.08, as compared with $15.75 for hand picking. The college is now developing a type of cotton well suited to mechanical harvesting. Best results have been with a cross of Durango and Wacona cotton.

Street at Sea on Steel Dividend Action Next Week

A week from today directors of the Steel Corporation will meet to make public third quarter earnings and decide on the quarterly dividend due on the preferred stock. Interest in the meeting runs high in view of the fact that three months ago it was bluntly asserted that further payments on the senior issue must depend on improved business and earnings. Third quarter earnings will likely be the poorest on record, but of late there has been improvement in the steel situation. With the Steel finance committee meeting today, it is probable that recommendations for guidance of the board will be arrived at, but whether the stocks of the corporation will reflect the decision between now and next Tuesday remains to be seen.

The weekly condition statement of reporting member banks was a bit more encouraging, showing an increase of $99,000,000 in loans and investments. This expansion was chiefly the result of a rise in investments of $102,000,000, of which $61,000,000 occurred in holdings of government issues and the balance representing additions to holdings of miscellaneous bonds. The rise in "other" loans of $11,000,000, though small, was interpreted favorably as probably reflecting slightly better demand for accommodation from general business, but was more than offset by further reduction of $14,000,000 in security loans, so that total loans revealed a net drop of $3,000,000.

Many brokers are mildly optimistic on current market conditions, but the consensus in the "Street" is that it will be a mild trading affair until after election unless some startling news should make for a swing either way. Some traders say that the accumulating improvement in many lines will have forcible constructive effect on the market after election. Most of the important clients and traders are doing little or nothing in the market, and expect to do little until after November 8.

One of England's richest men has instructed his representatives in this country to pick up approximately 150,000 shares of representative American stocks, preferably in large blocks and at satisfactory prices, according to a report in the street. It is understood that one block of 25,000 shares of an industrial stock has been bought somewhat under current market quotations and negotiations are going forward for other large blocks. Inasmuch as the stocks are being "paid in full" they are for long-time investment.

Owens-Illinois Glass Company stock has established a new high and is in good demand. The rise in these shares is accompanied with gossip that the company has virtually completed negotiations for the acquisition of the Root Glass Company, an important bottle maker, with plants in Terre Haute, Ind., also the early possibility of the return of beer has been a bullish argument of followers of Owens shares. They point out that the company is the most important bottle maker in the country and is in position to benefit handsomely from a revival of the demand for bottles when the brewing business is resuscitated.

The September foreign trade figures show the second successive pick-up. The increase of almost $23,000,000 in exports over the previous month compares with an August increase of $3,000,000 over July, while the increase of about $8,000,000 in imports in August compared with about $11,000,000 for August over July. Virtually all of the almost $23,000,000 gain in exports is ascribable to increased cotton shipments.

HOME BUILDING TAKES TURN UPWARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Residential building activity which has been more severely affected by the depression than any other major branch of construction, appears, on the basis of recent statistics, to have struck a bottom.

September figures on residential building contracts, as compiled by statistical organizations, show a sharp upturn over the August figures. The F. W. Dodge Corporation estimates residential contracts for the month in 37 states east of the Rockies, at $22,803,900, a gain of about $2,000,000 or nearly 10 per cent over the previous month. September normally brings a seasonal decline of about 4 per cent.

CONTRA-SEASONAL RISE

The comparison is encouraging against the figures for September last year, the decline amounting to 59 per cent, whereas August contracts were 65.5 per cent down from the same month in 1931 and July nearly 70 per cent lower.

While the residential contract figures for the first nine months of the year make a disheartening comparison with the same period of 1931, there is ground for encouragement in the opinion of building trade interests, in the evidence of stabilizing tendencies since July.

SCRAPING BOTTOM

As one survey expresses it, there can be little question but that this branch of building activity is close to an irreducible minimum, and that the broad trend from this point, allowing for seasonal influences, will be slowly upward.

It is admitted that any considerable improvement will necessarily depend on real progress in expanding consumer purchasing power and a correction of the ills which now beset the home mortgage market. However hopes are widely entertained that the latter condition may be improved a good deal through the operation of the recently enacted home loan bank bill.

ESTEP DEFENDS TARIFF

Too many European goods are on the American store counters and shelves, Congressman Harry A. Estep told members of the Western Pennsylvania Petroleum and Markets Association at their meeting at Webster Hall last night.

Estep declared that if it were not for the present duties imposed in the Hawley-Smoot tariff, we would not have an industrial wheel turning in this country and, instead of 8,000,000 men out of work, we would have 15,000,000 idle.

He stated that the abandonment of the gold standard by foreign countries has resulted in an actual reduction of duties where tariffs are on an ad valorem basis. An ad valorum duty of 50 per cent on an English product costing a pound amounted to $2.43 before the gold standard was given up while today it amounts to only $1.84.

VALENTINE :-: Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love :-: By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Val Is Forbidden by Her Aunt Julia to Get Divorce From Joe

CHAPTER L.

In the morning Val was sick. Her eyelashes were stuck together. She could hardly open her eyes. Weeping through the night had nearly blinded her.

Aunt Julia, heavy-footed, clumped through the house getting a late breakfast for Val, who complained of a cold in her head.

"Humph, funny cold! I'm not deaf, you know. I heard you crying last night. And I heard you telephoning in the middle of the night, too!"

"Did you hear what I said?"

"I'm no eavesdropper," Aunt Julia said scornfully. "But I know who you were talking to. I warned you. I know you'd get into trouble if you persisted in flirting around with that Sherwood. That comes of letting you go to your mother's. I might have known it. Well, I can't help that now, but I'm going to see that you go right back to Joe Carey just as soon as I can pack your clothes and get your ticket reservations. I'm ashamed of you, yes I am. You're too flighty to be left alone, that's what!"

Val opened her mouth. Shut it again.

SURPRISED BY VISITOR

Aunt Julia poured the coffee, turned the pancakes. The doorbell rang, and Val, glad of the excuse to leave the table, jumped up to answer it.

"Never mind. I'll go. I think it's that peddler with the oranges again, but I'll take a look. You watch the pancakes. When the little holes in them deepen, and they sort of scallop around the edges, and get a teeny bit brown, they're done."

Aunt Julia was talking to someone at the door.

Val listened, pancake turner in hand. She hoped it wasn't the contractor again. She wanted to see him alone first, and then break all the news, good and bad, to Aunt Julia at the same time.

It was a man's voice. The voice was faintly familiar. She'd heard it somewhere . . . sounded like . . . how absurd! It couldn't be!

"I'll just go right out in the kitchen and see her myself," the man was saying.

Val retreated toward the stove, remembered the pancakes, turned them over, just in time.

It was just as she had feared. Joe's uncle, the Honorable Joel Joshua Bolton.

Aunt Julia, terribly flustered, was trying to untie her kitchen apron.

"This gentleman says he's Joe Carey's uncle, Val."

"Oh, yes, I—how do you do, Mr. Bolton?"

SISTER STILL AWAY

They shook hands. Aunt Julia, having got rid of the apron, was all hospitality. "Now you sit down and have some coffee with us."

"You don't mean to tell me you're making flannel cakes?"

"That's what they are!"

Uncle Joel drew up a chair. "If I'd known you could cook flannel cakes, I'd have come had breakfast with you and Joe," he told Val, with a twinkle in his eye.

"Now eat them while they're hot!" Aunt Julia had heaped a plate, and needing no second invitation, the Honorable Mr. Bolton set to.

"You must excuse me, coming so early," he said, helping himself to a little more butter and syrup. "I got Joe's wire asking me to bring you the money, Valentine, and I thought I'd come myself. I see my sister is still honeymooning. I'm staying in San Francisco. Came out here on a little business."

"Your sister will be glad to see you, I'm sure. She talks enough about you," Aunt Julia said dryly.

"Yes? Great talker, Cora. Talk about anything. Well, she's going to get quite a talk from me. She sent the boy George and one of the girls—Ruth, I think the name is, down to a ranch in Riverside. I'll get them on my way back. I won't have the brats treated that way. Joe sent the other young one to boarding school. I'll see she's kept there and Ruth can go, too. The boy I'll take back with me. You can't let your own kin go to the devil. But Joe's the only one will ever amount to a lick."

DIVORCE PLAN REVEALED

He was looking steadily at Val. "So you changed your mind about Joe. Going to get a divorce, eh? Too bad."

Aunt Julia gulped, swallowed her coffee the wrong way. When she could speak she said, "Val—you—you don't mean that you—"

"No, I'm not going to, Aunt Julia. I was, but I changed my mind."

Relief showed all over Aunt Julia's big, honest face.

"She's always been temperamental and sensitive, Mr. Bolton, but you can depend on the child to do the right thing. She wouldn't leave her husband like that. I didn't bring her up that way. She might think she would, but when it came right down to it I wouldn't let her, and she wouldn't do it, anyway. She isn't that kind. She—"

The doorbell was ringing again. Val rose. Aunt Julia pushed her aside. "No—I'll go. Excuse me."

When she had gone, carefully closing the kitchen door behind her, the old man turned to Val again. She thought his eyes were like gimlets boring right through to her soul.

"Now what's all this? Joe informs me you have left him. Says you wanted your savings returned to you, so that you could go to Reno for a divorce. Now, you've changed your mind. Why?"

She looked down at her plate, did not answer.

"Just as I thought. You've heard."

"Heard what?"

"Heard that I settled something on Joe. Told him to go ahead and build himself that house he's been wanting so much."

HOLDS JOE'S FAITH

She colored. "No, I didn't know."

"How do I know that you are telling the truth?"

"You don't. But I didn't hear. It doesn't make the least bit of difference to men, anyway. I'm not going back to Joe. I just can't afford the divorce now and I'm not going to get it, so don't say any more to Aunt Julia. It will only hurt her."

"Why can't you afford the divorce? What are you going to do with that money?"

"I won't tell you."

"I advise you to," he said gently.

She felt her eyes filling, hastily grabbed her handkerchief. "Because Aunt Julia's losing the house. I'm going to use the money to get it back again. And I'm going to stay here with her, and work again. Now!"

"Joe's faith seems faintly justified. He said, poor boy, that you were incapable of cupidity."

The big words confused her. "Of what?"

He smiled. "I'm beginning to understand you—and Joe."

She knew what he meant, shook her head. "No, you may as well know it all. You think that Joe will forgive me and take me back and it will all end happily. Well, it won't. Because I deceived him. I—"

What did you do?"

REALIZES HER MISTAKE

"Oh, I wasn't as sick as I made out. I came because I wanted to come out here. I thought—I thought a boy I used to know was the right one. I got to thinking about it, and the more I thought, the more nearly crazy I got. And then I couldn't stand it any more, and I left and—"

"Yes—"

"I saw him. I let him kiss me and love me, and I thought I loved him. I wired Joe and I told him I wouldn't ever come back—and I won't—but I'm not going to get the divorce now—"

"You explained that."

"No. It's worse than I said. I did think I would. I thought I would just postpone it, and Lester—that's his name—would understand. But he didn't. He just said I had to choose between him and Aunt Julia. Oh, I can't talk any more. You'll have to excuse me. I'll have to have another handkerchief—"

He passed her his. "Go on."

"So I did, and I chose Aunt Julia, and I saw that I had made a mistake, and he wasn't like Joe, he didn't understand, and I saw I didn't love him, and ooh I'm so lonely, and my whole life is spoiled! Just ruined, and I—"

Aunt Julia came in. Rushed to Val. Held her against her big, square shoulder. "What have you been saying to her? I tell you she's a good girl. She wouldn't harm a soul!"

Val had lost all control. She sobbed convulsively, tried to break away.

"Hush!" Aunt Julia said sternly. "You must excuse her, Mr. Bolton. She's all upset about this. I never saw her act like it before. Val, you stop that crying."

"Joe'll make her stop," the old man said, smiling a little. "Did you hear me, Valentine? Joe's here."

Val blanched, stared—"Joe—he's here?"

"At the hotel. I brought him out with me. Or I came with him. He had to confide in me to borrow the money. You see, he couldn't turn your bonds into cash over night and he didn't think it would be enough, in any case. He wanted you to have a first-class divorce, Valentine. At least a $1,500 one."

He was still smiling, but there was no answering smile on Aunt Julia's face. She flew at him.

"Joe Carey's not good enough for her and never was. But there'll be no divorce in MY family. Do you hear that, Val Macfarlane?"

ITCHING RASH COVERED LEGS

"For three months I have had an itching rash on my legs from my knees to my hips and it bothered me so bad that I was not able to sleep and could hardly stand anything to touch the irritated skin. I tried various prescriptions and other treatments but could get no relief and was about to give up hope when I tried Resinol Ointment. After three applications the improvement was very great and now the rash is completely healed." (Signed)—Frank Duffy, 2227 Jackson St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Madge Perturbed When Husband Overhears Hugh's Request

I had startled Hugh Grantland—I saw that plainly—with my question as to whether he would do something rather odd to help along the scheme which we had for curing Marion of her infatuation for Charles Owen.

"I will do anything in the world you ask me. You ought to know that," he said, earnestly.

"It's very simple," I said. "When Marion and Mr. Owen come within earshot again, I want you to repeat to me the question you asked when they passed before, making sure that it is loud enough for Marion to hear. I'd like also for you to add a few words to it."

He frowned involuntarily.

"I don't even remember what I said," he said slowly, "and it seems an awfully cheeky thing to do. But if you wish it, as I said before, I'm at your service. What is it you wish me to say?"

I smothered my qualms relentlessly.

"Just ask," I began slowly, "as you did before: 'Who is that middle-aged man dancing with Mrs. Underwood's young daughter?' Then add something to the effect that she is so attractive it seems odd her partners are confined to a young boy and a comparatively old man."

His face showed the strong distaste which any man of his caliber would have for such an assignment.

"I have promised you, and I will do it," he said, "but have you considered this thing seriously?"

HUGH GETS SIGNAL

"Yes, I have," I said, relentlessly putting down my own doubts. "It is the one thing I want Marion to hear at this juncture. I have a fancy that if she is not already disillusioned, as I hope she is, this is just the remark that will tip the scales against Charles Owen. Please let your voice be as disparaging as possible."

"Do you realize," he asked smiling down at me, "that Mr. Owen is likely to call me out for coffee and pistols before breakfast tomorrow morning?"

"I'll take the risk of that," I told him. "Mr. Owen is avoiding trouble just now—not inviting it."

"Then I'll face the music," he said resignedly, "but you must give me the signal when you wish me to stage this very reprehensible comedy."

"I'll simply say 'now,'" I answered, and then we sat silently watching the dancers revolving before us.

When Marion danced closer to us, I caught a bewildered, hurt look as she watched Ronald's blond head bent against Avis' equally fair curls. It tugged at my heart, but I crushed all remonstrances and whispered "now" to Hugh Grantland, as the couple neared us.

His task was a most distasteful one. That I knew. But he performed it so skillfully that no one could have dreamed it had been rehearsed. I saw Charles Owen stiffen, and saw Marion throw her head up as if she had been struck an unexpected blow in the face; but they danced on without turning their heads, and Hugh looked ruefully to me.

WANTS ANOTHER DANCE

"I shall be ashamed to look either of them in the face again," he said.

"You won't have to for a long time," I said. "We are going to change tables and partners with the next course of the dinner, and after that will come a surprise which Mr. Veritzen has prepared for us. You probably will not be within speaking distance of either of them for the rest of the evening."

"I hope not," he said fervently, "but tell me, in this new arrangement of tables is there any chance that I may be seated near you?"

"I do not know," I said., "Mrs. Underwood arranged the place cards for the second tables."

I did not wish him to know that on Dicky's account I purposely had seen to it that Hugh and I should not be seated at the same table during the entire evening.

"But—" His voice was suddenly anxious, entreating—"you will give me another dance this evening, won't you?"

I don't know what drew my eyes to the dancing floor at that moment. But I saw Dicky and Helena Brixton dancing past our table, Helena with her lips quirked in a smile touched with mirthful malice and Dicky with eyebrows drawn together into a black frown. I realized that Hugh's voice had again carried outside our table.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

By ANN HELFGOTT

Saturday's meeting of the Enright Chapter was another thrilling and fun-filled hour for all the members and the dancing school pupils were happy to welcome back their instructress, Ruthie Miller, who had been absent last meeting due to a slight illness.

Here's another record in this age of unusual things. Louise Weckerly likes her peanut brittle and she appeared at the club this morning with a huge bag of the candy. Long 'ere the club hour had finished Louise had devoured the contents of said bag. She claims the record on eating candy and challenges all-comers to try and take away her crown.

Here's a secret. I really shouldn't tell you, but what fun is there to knowing a secret if you don't tell it to someone. If you should see a pretty little flapper strolling down the avenue on Halloween night it will be our own Ruth Bowman. If she asks you, don't tell her that I told her secret.

Jane Staub is an expert at spelling. She told me how to spell bicentennial or I wouldn't have been able to write this. That's a hard word, too, so see if you know a more difficult dictionary product.

Youthful ambitions. Augusta Tanburo is going to be a school teacher. Alvin Caplan continues with his ambition to become an aviator and fly around in the clouds. Clyde Wiggins, our curly-haired friend, is going to be an Irish policeman. Why an Irish policeman? He's Irish that's why, tee hee! Betty Maroney is going to be a "stenog" some day. Jean Maroney, her sister, is going to be an "hello girl." Number please? Shirley Goldbetz wants to be a good nurse and if present indications can be counted upon she will have plenty of patients. Rita Behm, who won a great big pie today, will also answer telephone and say, "number please."

One of our most promising dancing students, Jeane Berkenbush, enjoys acrobatics and says that she would rather dance than eat.

Mary Sharbaugh, who wore that "prettiest pink dress," has a beautiful play-room at her home and plans to throw a big party there on Halloween. Are you invited?

Marion White says that she likes arithmetic. And can she add? Those speed and accuracy tests at school always find her right up in front.

Pauline Packets enjoys rope jumping and plans to follow a dancing career on the stage. Here's all the luck in the world to you, Pauline.

Dick Pewell's little friend, Charley Ross, appeared at the club today with an inflamed right orbit. He says that it takes much more than one eye to keep him away. That's the spirit, Charles.

I hope that Pitt beats Notre Dame in this year's grid tilt, and I hope that I see all my friends at Next Saturday's meeting at the Enright. Bye, bye!

The Community Bus Plan

The Rebellion Against the 25-Cent Fare Is to Find an Outlet in Action.

The people's indignation over the unconscionable 25-cent bus fare charged by the monopolistic Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is to find other expression than in bitter words and futile protests to the Public Service Commission.

A movement is afoot to have the suburban and outlying districts of the city organize their own bus service. It is proposed to carry passengers for 12½ cents.

The promoters of the plan say they will not operate, technically, as a common carrier, and consequently will not be subject to the regulation of the Public Service Commission.

This movement, which has already gone beyond the stage of mere talk, serves warning on the public utilities and the Public Service Commission that a great community like Pittsburgh cannot be deprived of a necessary service at a reasonable price.

If aid cannot be obtained from the constituted authorities, the people will find some other way of getting relief from an intolerable condition.

They 'Made the Grade'

But Some of Pittsburgh's Hospitals Are Having a Hard Time Maintaining Their High Standards.

The American College of Surgeons announces, on completion of its annual survey of the hospitals of the United States, that those of Pittsburgh are still of the first grade. Nineteen hospitals in the city and 10 in suburban towns have been given the "fully accredited" mark of approval.

This is particularly gratifying because straitened financial circumstances have made it hard for some of our hospitals to "make the grade" this year. They have had more than the usual number of charity cases. Other patients, who will eventually pay, are unable to do so now. The hospitals, in consequence, have trouble in obtaining necessary supplies and equipment.

It has been a hard struggle, under the circumstances, to maintain the highest standards, and it is a credit to the managers of the hospitals that they have succeeded in doing so.

No doubt most if not all of them would rather close their doors than lower their standards.

The Big Game Situation

It Will Not Be Surprising If Deer Are Scarcer in View of Last Year's Slaughter.

Deer were reported in a dispatch from Bellefonte in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday to be scarcer this year than in a number of seasons. Some hunters discount stories of scarcity of deer at this time of the year, saying they are put out by farmers and others in the hope of discouraging the army of city sportsmen from descending on their places when the gunning season opens. It would not be surprising, however, if deer should really prove to be scarcer this year; for the slaughter last season, when hunters were permitted to shoot does as well as bucks, was terrific.

Notwithstanding the slaughter deer are still far more plentiful than they were a decade or two ago, and the kill this year probably will again give Pennsylvania the distinction of being the best big-game hunting region in the United States, if not in the civilized world.

The open season for bear this year will be in the latter part of November, before the deer season opens. Some of the prospective deer hunters are complaining that the bear hunters, firing their rifles in the woods, will make the deer too wild and difficult to shoot when their turn comes.

What kind of sportsmen are they, who wish to shoot tame deer?

The Rule Still Holds

The Sensible Course, When Bitten by a Mad Dog, Is to Take the Pasteur Treatment.

Notwithstanding that he had taken the Pasteur treatment promptly, a West View boy, bitten by a mad dog, died Sunday night of rabies.

Some months ago a South Side man was bitten by a dog, which was found unmistakably to be mad. The man, obdurate to all entreaties and warnings, refused to take the Pasteur treatment; nevertheless he suffered no ill effects.

But one swallow does not make a summer, and neither do these two cases constitute an argument against the Pasteur treatment. Countless other cases prove that it is efficacious and that the victim of a mad dog who fails to take it runs grave risk of an early and agonizing death.

The Oldest School

Ancient Buildings, Still Used for Teaching, Are None Too Common in Progressive Pennsylvania.

Dr. James N. Rule, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, desires to locate the oldest school building in Pennsylvania still used for school purposes. The information is to be used in connection with the observance of American Education Week, November 7-13, the theme of which is "The Schools and the Nation's Founders."

Dr. Rule is experiencing difficulty in determining which is the oldest school, and has accordingly asked the public to help him. What is believed to be the oldest school house in the state is an octagonal building of stone on Brandywine battlefield, built some years before the Revolutionary War; but since it is no longer used for teaching it does not fill the bill.

The fact is that ancient school houses are scarce in Pennsylvania, because the people insist on modern, efficient educational plants and equipment. The scarcity of very old school buildings is a credit to the state.

6—Voting machines to insure honest elections.

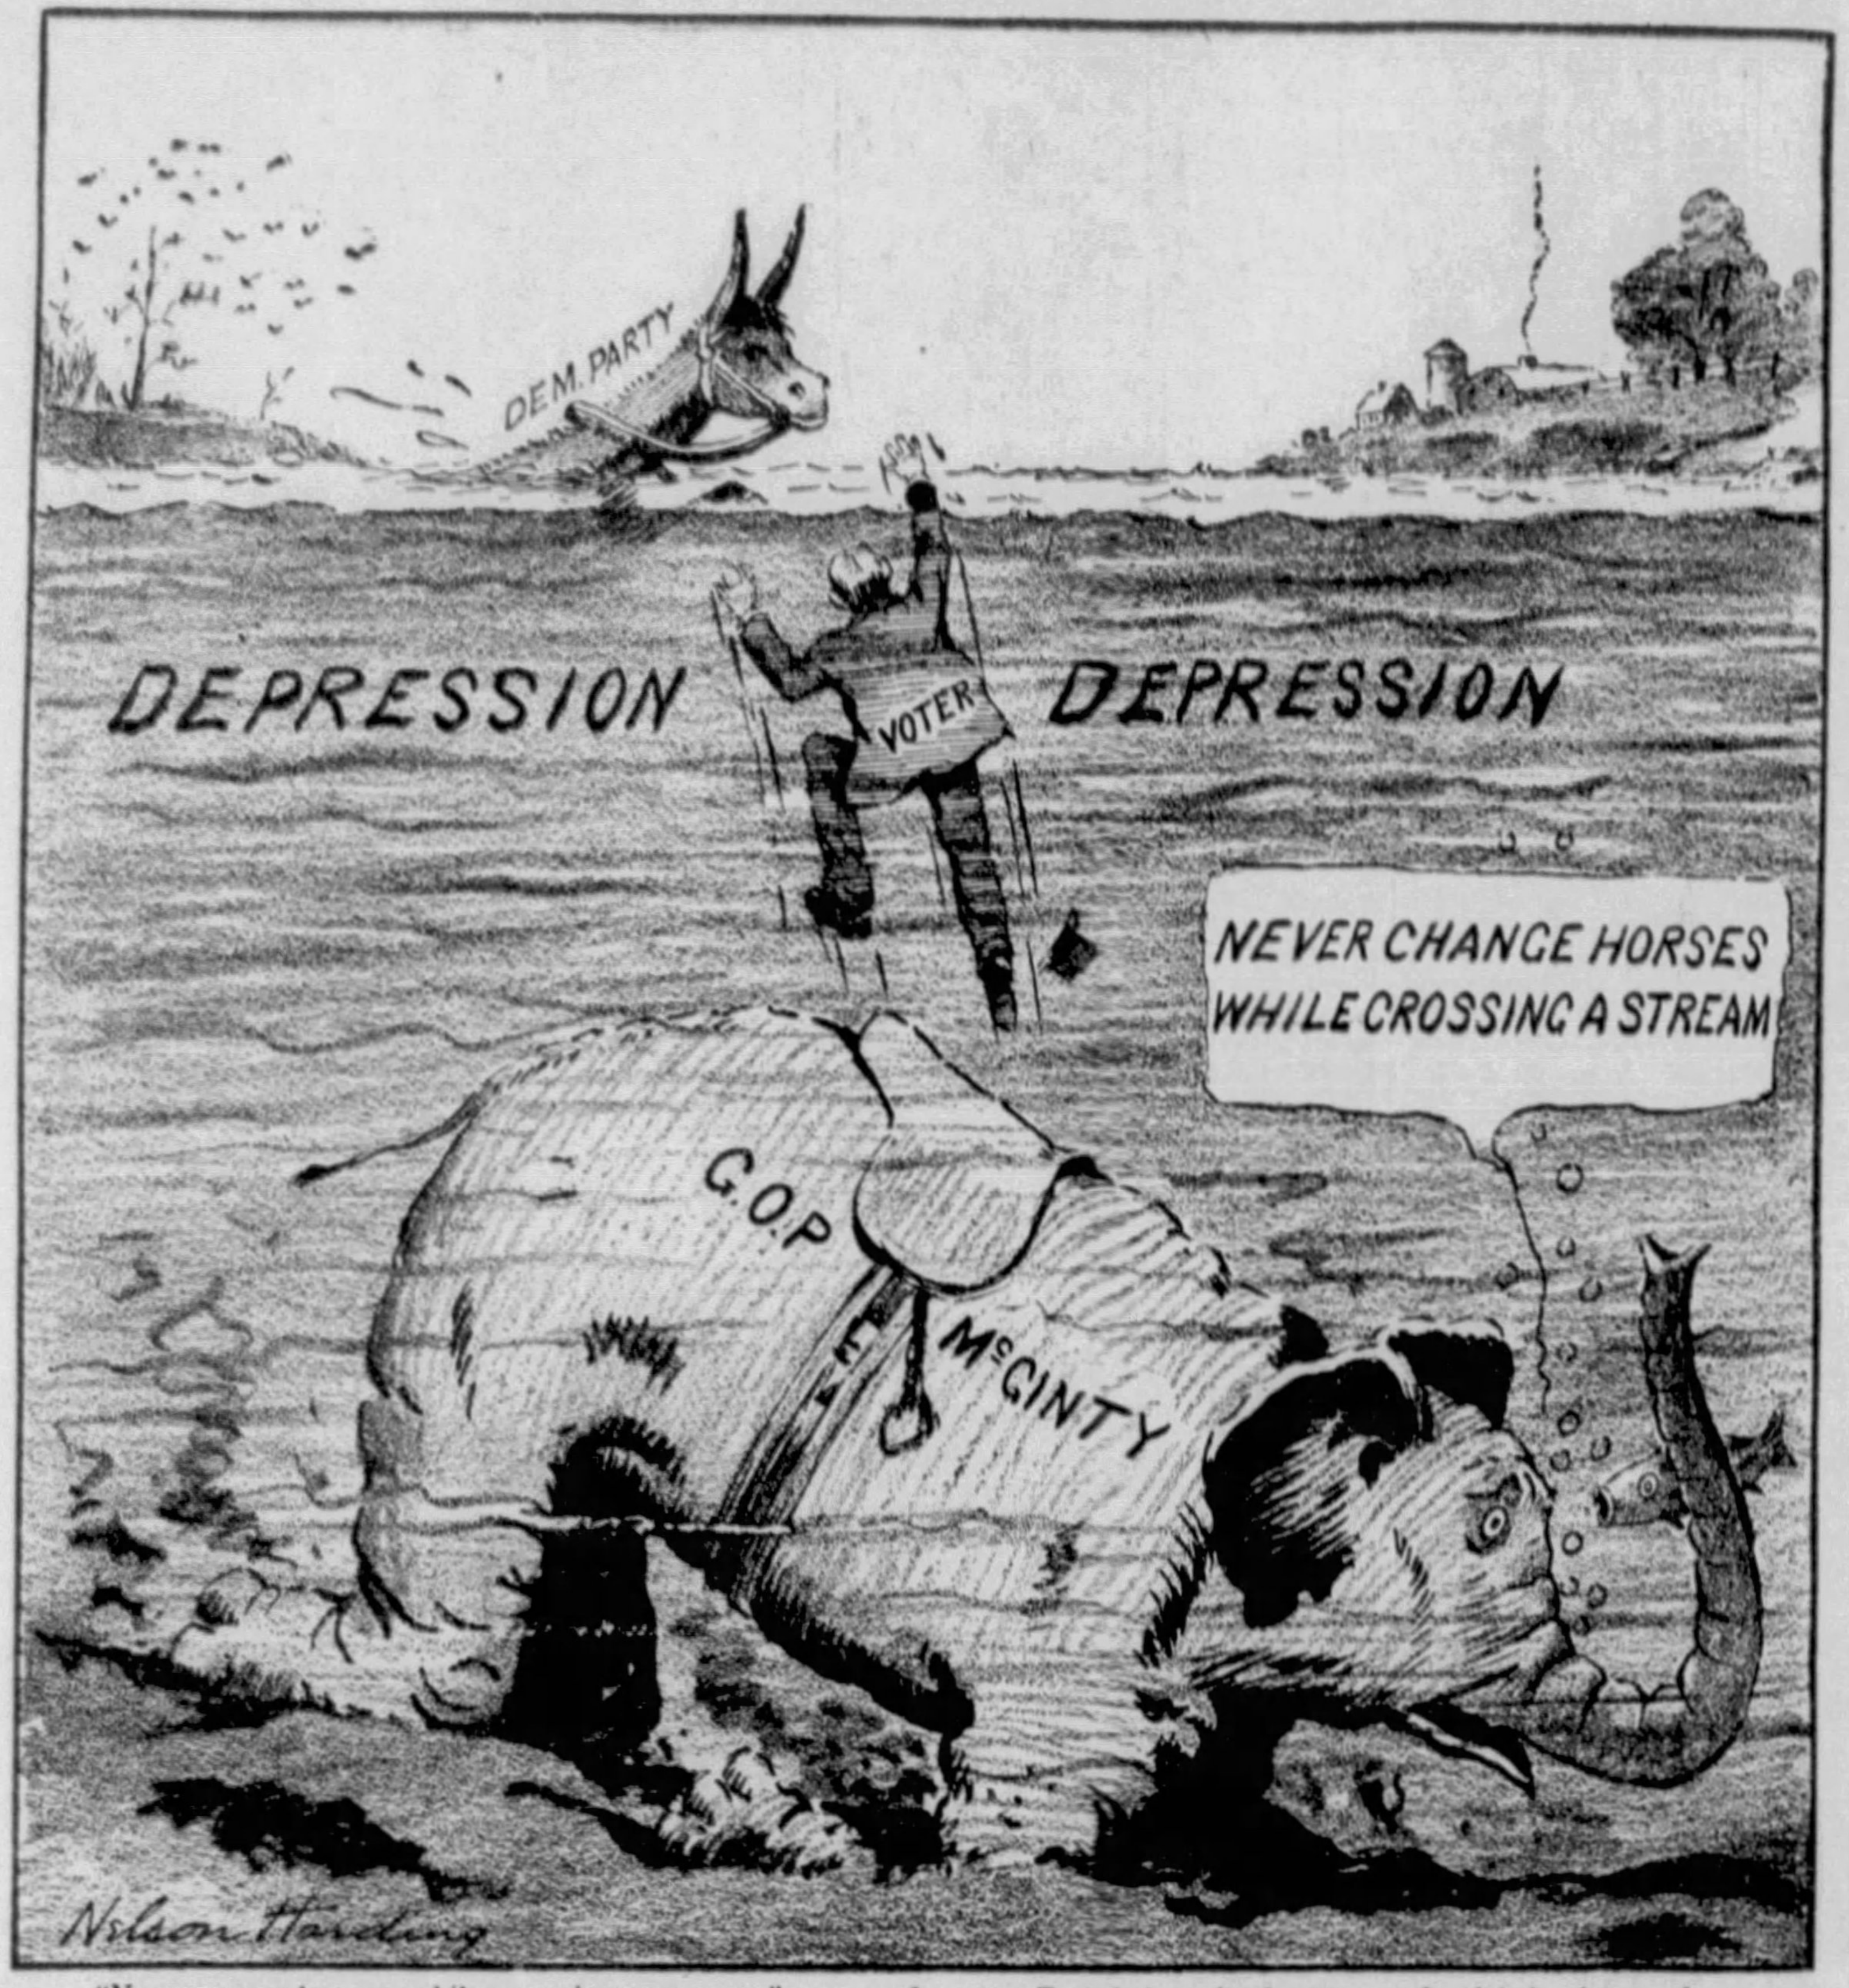
8—Development of air transportation.
9—Electrification of railroads.
10—Fair public utility rates.

When the Animal Can't Swim We Change

By Nelson Harding



"Never swap horses while crossing a stream,"
The elephant likes to advise,
But that, to the rider so nearly submerged,
Doesn't sound like advice that is wise.

To sink to the bottom and stick in the mud
Is crossing in ways rather strange.
And wouldn't the rider be foolish, indeed,
If he made no decision to change?

ENGLAND DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LONDON, Oct. 18. — There's sharp realization that pronounced class distinction of the narrow minded England of pre-war days is on its way out. Nothing specific for such calculations. It's just in the air. Somehow you sense an increased insolence in the "very good, sir" of lift and cabmen.

Socialists wield power. Labor is in the Cabinet and hide-bound Tories garrumph glumly from club windows. Yet withal, no other city has so retained the traditional pride. I went forth before breakfast, threading the noisy Strand to Trafalgar and loitered near the Nelson monument.

London was going to work — plodding, not rushing. It displays no enthusiasm for daily routine and the mechanics of existence. Factories and offices are so much stuff. The Englishman is a born putterer, a rider of hobbies. He regards the city with lusty impudence as enslaving.

His call is for the village and its meadows, the woods, the lanes and their flowers. He finds elation in digging among his gardens, raising dogs, cats, horses or lingering along the countryside listening to the chirp of crickets. One has the everlasting impression of excellent breeding.

It is said fear built the first city, inspired by the instinct to herd behind protecting walls. London somehow illustrates some vague terror. Millions pour into it daily to snatch material profits that will permit them to live away from it. Or so it appears.

The first question for every visitor: "Have you seen Noel Coward's 'Cavalcade?'" We attended a matinee, the drama of England, its defeats and triumphs in stirring pageantry. There are moments of poignancy when the eyes swim, yet I found myself murmuring: "What hokum!" The play got away to a flying start when the King and Queen attended the opening. Because of a belief it congealed a wobbling loyalty, it is likely Coward will be knighted.

* * *

The night club rages of the past summer were Charlie Farrel and Chic Ender, American entertainers. In white-tied, gardeniaed elegance they duoed the same dickydackydoo deleriums, climaxed with the same ribald snappers, we used to hear at Charlie Journal's Montmarte and the Helen Morgan Club.

* * *

Study in contentment: She was little, old and threadbare like the trembly handful of frayed flowers held out for sale near Drury Lane.

"Well, sister, how does it go?"

"I can't complain, sir. I go on breathing."

After listening to local garnishings of "rawthah," "I daresay" and "fawncy," one feels like Joseph Hergesheimer, who, after a few days in England, awakened for breakfast and asked the waiter to bring him "a spot of eggs, a touch of kippers and a dash of potato."

The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, have become steadfast pals. One goes nowhere without the other, often dressing almost alike, and the press speaks of them as "the Royal brothers." So enormous is their appeal that wherever they go dining or dancing, news spreads magically and the particular place is soon overflowing. Wales, the reports go, is taking on weight and is carrying out rigid diet and exercises. He eats no breakfast and has limited himself to one mild after-dinner highball. He loves beer. And burns up cigarets furiously.

In a country where beer, wines and whisky are so accessible, popularity of the tea shop is a minor wonder. Each afternoon for everybody from salesdamsel to aristocrat ends with tea. There is every variety of shop from those serving halfpenny muffins, on pine tops, to cakes tasting of Benedictine, on spindly tables inlaid with jade. In latter places, tea talk is always a polite hum, never barbed with a rollicking laugh, and a chit for two has an odd habit of totaling 15 shillings.

* * *

Late this afternoon, incidentally, we motored to a Surrey country club for tea. Our window overlooked an 18-hole putting course where tweedy Britons disported with solemnity. My ambition was to wait until one ruddy golfer with mutton-chop whiskers attempted a two-foot putt and missed. So I could stick my head out of the window and scream "Lousy!" But we had to leave.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Often I think of the valiant beginning of Lawrence's last book. Destruction was upon him, as it was upon the heroine of his story, but that mustn't be allowed to matter; life had to go on.

"The cataclysm has happened," he wrote. "We are among the ruins. We start to build up new little habitats, to have new little hopes. It is now rather hard work; there is now no smooth road into the future. But we go round, or scramble over, the obstacles. We've got to live, no matter how many skies have fallen."

WE'VE GOT TO LIVE NO MATTER HOW MANY SKIES HAVE FALLEN. There's a brave slogan for all of us, as we face the chaos of these days.

Skies must always fall. There must always be cataclysms. We must always build on ruins. Life has been that way from the very first. That is the law.

Do you remember that story, in Genesis?

"In the beginning, God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said 'Let there be light'; and there was light."

Darkness on the face of the waters. Always there must be that darkness. And always the Spirit of God must move across the face of the darkness, through the terror of darkness, before there can come a new world. That has been the way of life since the beginning.

CHAOS AND CONFUSION ARE NOT ACCIDENTS. THEY ARE A PART OF LIFE. DISORDER IS THE BEGINNING OF ORDER.

It is hard for us to realize that, looking at our ruined world. So much shame. So much pain! Such evidence, on every side, of criminal stupidity and greed! One loses heart and hope. Surely this is the end. Surely one cannot have faith in human nature after a debacle like this!

Why not?

Life has always been one debacle after another!

Take a pebble in your hand. That pebble was a boulder. That boulder was a cliff. That cliff was part of a continent. Now, that continent is a pebble. Presently, in a few more aeons, the pebble will be a continent again—A BETTER CONTINENT.

You accept that story. You don't get excited or alarmed about the countless catastrophes which make and unmake pebbles and continents. You realize that these catastrophes are the natural and normal program of geology.

THEN WHY NOT SEE THAT THE SAME TRUTH APPLIES TO THE LIFE OF MEN AND NATIONS?

LIFE GOES DOWN, AND LIFE COMES UP. ITS FORM IS BROKEN TO PIECES, AND REASSEMBLED. BUT YOU CAN ALWAYS BET ON LIFE. IT MAY PASS THROUGH A MILLION FORMS, A MILLION CATASTROPHIES, BUT LIFE WILL ALWAYS GO ON.

AND WE MUST GO WITH IT!

Our skies have fallen—yours and mine. The world is in ruins around us. But WE'RE not in ruins. The life that ran warm in us yesterday runs warm in us today. The dreams that rose eager in us yesterday can rise eager again today. The highways are littered and the lights have gone out, but what of it! That's life!

WHAT DOES THE SCENERY MATTER AS LONG AS WE HAVE OURSELVES?

RUINS? WE HAVE FIFTY MILLION YEARS OF RUINS BEHIND US, AND THEY HAVEN'T CRAMPED OUR STYLE!

HIGHWAYS WRECKED? LIGHTS OUT? WE'LL MAKE BROADER HIGHWAYS! WE'LL LIGHT BRIGHTER LIGHTS!

WE DID IT BEFORE. WE CAN DO IT AGAIN!

LET'S GO!

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

Are You Afraid Of a Change?

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Mr. F. Trubee Davison was not the object of Mr. Coolidge's demagogic attack on men in politics with money and "family influence," though he was included. He is now making some desultory remarks on the campaign and one bright comment of his will meet with general consent:

"Now Mr. Smith is one of our really great Americans, although he has not been considered a Calvin Coolidge or a Herbert Hoover."

How true!

Nor a Warren G. Harding.

We Must Not Make a Change

The campaign managers of Mr. Hoover have finally settled down to a strategy which is two-fold. One is to play for sympathy for the man who has manifested such scant sympathy for the victims of the policies of the last two administrations. The other is to frighten the people with the superannuated bugaboo that if the Democrats come in it will destroy our present prosperity. It worked for many years.

There was a panic many years ago during the second Cleveland administration which, historians have agreed unanimously, was hurrying on with the wings of the lightning during the last months of the administration of Mr. Harrison. We have it on the authority of an authentic historian that for four months Mr. Harrison and Charles Foster, his Secretary of the Treasury, watched, with heavy breathing, the rapid advance of a calamity and heaved a sigh of relief when the fourth of March came around and they could dump the responsibility into the lap of Mr. Cleveland.

But for more than a generation this was used to show that the party of Cleveland means panic.

An infinitely worse panic was that of 1873 under Republican auspices; and there was the panic of 1907; but these have been conveniently overlooked.

Now we have the worst panic in all history; but in the midst of it the Hoover orators solemnly are warning us that if we want to hold on to such "prosperity" as we have we must not make a change.

Mr. Hoover Has Done Little

Mr. Roosevelt and his followers are to be pictured as dangerous people who will destroy the financial fabric—such as is still standing.

And we are told that Mr. Hoover's miracle powers have wrought the salvation of the financial structure.

Now the truth is, of course, that Mr. Hoover has done little, and has done the little that he did very late after irreparable damage had been done. But the little that he has done has not been born of any wizardry of his own.

Two things have saved the financial structure and prevented a complete collapse—and both were born of the constructive statesmanship of the Wilson administration.

Had there been no Federal Reserve System the collapse would have been complete; and if Mr. Hoover and his associates had had their way there would have been no Federal Reserve System.

That was a product of the Wilson administration and was due to Carter Glass more than to any other man, and Carter Glass is one of the most severe of the critics of Mr. Hoover's bungling.

When Mr. Roosevelt's associates were fighting to put the Federal Reserve System into operation, Mr. Hoover's associates were lined up to a man to fight it. Mr. Root was against it and solemnly told the country that it would mean "fiat money." Instead it has been the salvation of American business more than once.

How dangerous Mr. Roosevelt's associates were to business when they forced the Federal Reserve Act upon the statutes! Dreadful men! Were not all the big bankers in the country against it? Didn't they literally mob a man who dared to speak for it at the national convention in Boston? And how wise they were! And how destructive were Mr. Roosevelt's associates in ignoring their supernal wisdom and putting it into operation over the united opposition of Mr. Hoover's associates.

Ogden Mills Knows

Now Mr. Hoover may not be familiar with this phase of history. For many years he had not been a resident of this country, but had maintained for a generation his residence and his office in London. He was very little interested in American affairs in those days. But someone should have told him; and Ogden Mills knows.

We may accept as true that there is one other thing that has saved the financial structure—the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. This, too, was not born of Mr. Hoover's ingenuity. Mr. Wilson had created a War Finance Corporation which has served the nation well in a war crisis. When the present crisis came scores of people urged the revival of that Wilsonian organization, and it was urged in editorials, interviews and speeches for months before Mr. Hoover decided to borrow the idea that originated with Mr. Roosevelt's associates.

Thus the two things that have saved the financial structure have been the Federal Reserve System and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, both born of the ingenuity, constructive capacity, foresight, of the party of Mr. Roosevelt.

What More Do The People Want!

Can it be that intelligent Americans will not be frightened at the thought of the government passing into the hands of the people who furnished the only two things that have saved the business and financial fabric? And especially when they are told so by the men who are entirely satisfied with the manner in which Mr. Hoover has handled the situation?

Are not 11,000,000 in the street? Are not 30,000,000 involved in unemployment in distress? Are not millions of farmers bankrupt or on the verge of bankruptcy? Did not thousands of banks fail while Mr. Hoover in a quandary did nothing? Were not more than a million farm mortgages foreclosed without attracting the attention of the administration until six weeks before the election? Is not business prostrate? What more do the people want?

Are they not afraid to have a change?

What a 'Dangerous' Man Jack Garner Is

And how well Mr. Hoover managed things in the case of the loans of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation in regard to mortgages on farms and homes! He has turned the people's money in an enormous stream into private lending institutions without stipulating that the benefit be passed on to those who had borrowed from the banks, as the banks borrowed from the people. Now, at last, Mr. Hoover, the election so close, is going to do something about it. And Speaker Garner comments:

"After extending the loans he states that he is now endeavoring to induct those who have secured the millions of government credit to be lenient with the farmers and home-owners whose mortgages they hold.

"The theory that government credit should be extended to a select few, and that the government should then supplicate the beneficiaries of this credit to be lenient with those whose mortgages they hold, is contrary to all precepts of business or common sense."

But what a "dangerous" man Jack Garner is!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Days to Be

Oh, days as yet unflowered
From out the bud of time,
How will your hours be dowered;
With what of joy sublime?

Oh, golden future, luring;
Oh, days that stretch away
With hopes of bliss enduring
And seasons fair and gay!

Your song comes calling, calling,
A promise in my ear,
A pledge of hopes enthralling,
Of dreams almost too dear.

Oh, days-to-be, I reckon
On treasures you will hold,
While joyously you beckon
To gifts worth more than gold.

Oh, days as yet unbudded
From out the branch of time,
I wait your honors, flooded
With happiness sublime!
